INDIANA RAILROAD SEIZED

A WHOLE FAMILY IN INDIANA
POISONED BY COOKIES.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 23.—The Elmore bank, a private unincorporated institution, at Elmore, twenty miles north, has failed and the proprietor, Pleasant Durham and his wife, have fled. Deposits to the amount of $8,000 or $10,000 are believed to have been lost. The town is in a wild state of excitement.

HAS SEIZED A RAILROAD.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 23.—Acting on published reports that the Chicago and Southeastern railway, known as the Midland, has been sold by President Harry Crawford to the Big Four, Benj. Simpson, receiver, has seized the road and run it today. The general offices were seized last night by the receiver, C. T. Phillips of Carbon, a petty creditor. The receiver in a statement issued this afternoon says he will operate the road for the creditors. The general offices here have made no fight today to regain possession.

FAMILY IS POISONED.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 23.—The family of Mrs. Mary Collier of this city, and two boarders, fourteen persons, were mysteriously poisoned last night by eating cookies. They were prostrated by what the attending physician diagnosed as arsenic poisoning. Among the number are seven children, aged from sixteen months to twenty-one years. Nine of the victims are still in bed in a serious condition.

NEEDS OF SCHOOLS DISCUSSED.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 23.—Much of the business transacted yesterday by the Evangelical Lutheran joint synod of Ohio and other states related to educational institutions. The attendance at the Theological Seminary in Columbus, Ohio, was reported decreasing and the synod authorized pastors, professors and teachers to act as agents and to use their best endeavors to gain young men for the institution.

A resolution forbidding theological students from permanently filling vacancies without the consent of the district president was approved.

Professor M. Loy, D. D., dean of the seminary for forty-six years, was retired as professor emeritus, with full pay.

The synod made overtures for a closer relation with Lima college at Lima, Ohio, an independent Lutheran institution.

MARRIED AT NOON.

Today at noon, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Krick, 1224 Walton avenue, Rev. M. C. Cooper performed the ceremony that united Mr. Al Stemen and Miss Bertha May Swygart in wedlock. The bridal couple had no attendants and the ceremony was performed in the presence of about twenty-five invited guests, relatives and immediate friends of the couple. After the ceremony the guests partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner. The bride received numerous very handsome and valuable wedding gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Stemen will leave the first of the week on a wedding tour in Ohio and the east and will be for a time at home at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Krick, upon their return. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Belle Libby, of Decatur, and is a young lady of many graces and accomplishments. The groom is a well known teamster in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad.

PRETTY CARNIVAL WINDOW.

BIG MARKET TODAY.

The market this morning was decidedly the largest of the year. The regular marketers and hucksters occupied the entire market space as thickly as they could be placed and extended around on the Berry street front of the city building and all along the east side of Berry street as far as Columbia street. There were some wagons even south of Washington street and a few stood on Wayne street west of the market place.

JOHN MACKENZIE RESIGNS.

John MacKenzie, who has held the office of superintendent of utilities power of the Nickel Plate ever since 1893, has resigned, the same to become effective at once. He is succeeded by J. L. Gilmore, formerly of the Lake Shore, who had his headquarters in Elkhart.

LACK OF IRON CAUSES DELAY

ANNOYING SUSPENSION OF
WORK AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Contractors Cannot Get Structural
Work for Perhaps Two Weeks
Longer—Trustees Meet Monday.

The board of school trustees will meet next Monday evening when the contract for the plumbing and electric lighting and wiring of the new high school building will in all probability be let. The bids were opened several weeks ago and were taken under advisement.

Treasurer Rockhill, of the board, says that the delay in the construction of the building is due wholly to the failure of the iron contractors to furnish the material necessary for the frame work of the first story. It is now five weeks since work on the building was stopped and the best advice is that two weeks more will elapse before work can be resumed. Mr. Roney, the contractor, is much annoyed at the failure of the iron mills to deliver the structural work promptly, and notwithstanding the fact that he has a strong "stand in" with the iron operators, he has been unable to get his work delivered. The iron for the first story has been delivered at Toledo, where the drilling and riveting is being done, and it is almost a certainty that shipments will be commenced within two weeks. At that time there will have been a delay of nearly two months and the trustees are chagrined to know that the work will have progressed only to the stage at which it will be found when cold weather will necessitate the suspensions of further operations.

REPUBLICANS IN CONFERENCE

STATE CHAIRMAN GOODRICH IN
THE CITY TODAY.

With Candidates and Committeemen

a Meeting is Held in Arcade

This Afternoon.

Allen county republicans are holding a conference at the headquarters in the Arcade this afternoon, and State Chairman J. P. Goodrich, who arrived from Winchester this morning, is giving the local organization some advice concerning the conduct of the active campaign which is soon to open.

Others present included Hon. N. U. Hill, of Bloomington, candidate for state treasurer; Hon. C. W. Miller, of Goshen, republican nominee for attorney general; District Chairman Leonard, County Chairman Harris, a fairly complete representation of the county central committee and the county nominees.

Addresses were delivered by Mr. Goodrich, Mr. Hill, Mr. Miller and others. C. C. Gilhams, the congressional nominee, is attending a soldiers' reunion at Mt. Pisgah, LaGrange county, and wired Chairman Harris that he could not reach Fort Wayne today.

EN ROUTE TO INDIA.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin B. Detweiler, of Topeka, Ind., who have been the guests of Mrs. Detweiler's cousins, Mrs. W. T. Warcup, of Cass street, and Mrs. H. J. Schmidt, of Walnut street, left today for the east. They will sail September 6 from New York on the steamship Stridra to India.

IN LITTLE RHODY

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CON-TINUES HIS TOUR.

OPENS DAY IN CONNECTICUT

WARM GREETING FROM CROWD
IN PROVIDENCE.

PRESIDENT VOICES HIS WELL KNOWN VIEWS.

Willimantic, Conn., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt, after spending the night at the home of John T. Robinson at Hartford today resumed his journey through New England. His train left that city promptly at 8 o'clock, but the early hour set for his departure did not deter the people from turning out in force and giving him a hearty send-off. As he drove up to the station in an open carriage accompanied by Senator Platt, the crowd cheered and the president responded by raising his hat. The floral horseshoe presented to the president by the workmen of Hartford yesterday was by his request placed on the engine. All along the line the small towns turned out their entire population, each apparently anxious to share in the welcome which Connecticut is extending.

When Willimantic was reached the president was driven to the public square, where he delivered an address from his carriage.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Following are the president's remarks:

"Mr. Mayor, and you my fellow citizens: I thank you for the greeting you have given me and for the chance of seeing you this morning. I have greatly enjoyed passing through your beautiful state. I welcome the opportunity of meeting you and your representatives. I think that it is an advantage to all of us who are trying to put your purpose and wishes into effect in the national legislature and administration when we can come into touch with you personally. I have taken the chance to try, now that congress is not in session, now that there is a holiday at the national capital, of going through the country to see you, my fellow citizens. I am obliged to you for coming out here. Last night in Hartford I spoke of two or three of the questions which we now have before our people. I shall not try to make any address to you today. This nation has great problems to face, problems in its external policy, problems even more important in the administration of its internal affairs. We can solve them only if with serious purpose we set ourselves to the task alike in the national and state governments and in the local municipality and county organizations."

GREAT PROBLEMS AHEAD.

"We have great problems ahead of us as a nation. They will task our intelligence but they will task still more what ranks ahead of intelligence—character. (Applause and cries of "good.")

"It is a good thing for a nation to demand in its representatives intellect, but it is a better thing to demand in them that sum of qualities which we talk of as character. (Prolonged applause.)

"All of you know that that is true in private life. If you are dealing with a man in a business way, whether as employer or employee, or in commerce with a storekeeper or with any one, you want him to be a smart man, but it is a mighty bad thing if he is only smart. (Laughter.)

"Isn't that so (Cries of "yes, yes, that's right.")

"Exactly. Now what you want in a private man with whom you deal is what you want in your public representatives. If you are going to get good results from your association with a man in the business world, in the working world, it will be because that man has got the right stuff in him, because he has got common sense, honesty, decency and courage. And you have got to have the same qualities shown in public life if we are to make this country what we will make it—an example to all the nations of mankind." (Applause.)

GREETED BY MILL WORKERS.

Plainfield, Conn., Aug. 23.—On the run of President Roosevelt's train to Providence a brief stop was made at Plainfield, where about 500 people had gathered, mostly employees of a cotton mill. They cheered the president as he came out on the rear platform and in response to his waving.

tions of affairs existing in war times. A basket of roses was handed to the president by the superintendent of the mill.

BIG CROWD AT PROVIDENCE.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 23.—Not since the visit here of President Hayes, fifteen years ago, has a chief executive been accorded so brilliant and thoroughly genuine reception as that tendered today to President Roosevelt on the occasion of his tour through this state. People came from every part of the state and gathered 1,500 strong about the platform at city hall, from which the president delivered an address. An ovation which lasted five minutes was the president's greeting when he rose to speak.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

President Roosevelt spoke here as follows:

"We are passing through a period of great material prosperity and such a period is as sure as adversity itself to bring mutterings of discontent. At a time when most men prosper somewhat it always happens that a few men prosper greatly and it is as true now as it was when the Tower of Babel fell upon all who were under it, that good fortune does not come only to the just, nor bad fortune only to the unjust. When the weather is good for crops it is also good for weeds. Moreover, not only do the wicked flourish when the times are such that most men flourish, but what is worse, the spirit of envy and jealousy and hatred springs up in the breasts of those who, though they may be doing fairly well themselves, yet see others who are no more deserving doing far better."

WHAT LAWS CAN DO.

"Wise laws and fearless and upright administration of the laws can give the opportunity for such prosperity as that we see about us. But this is all that they can do. When the conditions have been created which make prosperity possible, then each individual man must achieve it for himself, by his own thrift, intelligence, energy, industry and resolute purpose. If when people wax fat they kick, as they have been prone to do since the days of Jeroboam, they will speedily destroy their own prosperity. If they go into wild speculation and lose their heads, they have lost that which no legislation can supply, and the business world will suffer in consequence. If in a spirit of sullen envy they insist upon pulling down those who have profited most by the years of fatness, they will bury themselves in the crash of the common disaster. It is difficult to make our material condition better by the best laws, but it is easy enough by bad laws to throw the whole nation into an abyss of misery."

PRUDENCE IS NECESSARY.

"Now, the upshot of all this is that it is peculiarly incumbent upon us in a time of such material well-being, both collectively as a nation and individually, each on his own account, to show that we possess the qualities of prudence, self-knowledge and self-restraint. In our government we need above all things stability, fixity of economic policy, while remembering that this fixity must not be fossilization, that there must not be inability to shape our course anew to meet the shifting needs of the people as these needs change."

$4,000 IN LOSSES IN A WEEK

BAD SEVEN DAYS FOR ALLEN

COUNTY FARMERS.

Mutual Insurance Losses for Week

for Last Year.

During the past week the Allen County Farmers' Mutual Insurance company has suffered the severest seven days in its history, the losses aggregating over $4,000, but the company is in excellent condition, and all losses will be promptly met.

Starting with the Decker fire in Maumee township last Sunday, where $1,800 of insurance was carried, including the Summers loss in Pleasant township, where there was a $1,300 risk, and concluding with a loss of $1,400 reported today, the company will be compelled to pay for a single week's fires a sum very close to the entire losses for the year 1901. The total amount is something over $4,000, and in very nearly every case the damage was caused by lightning.

The loss reported to Secretary Keasey today was that of John S. Driver, in Springfield township, whose barn was struck by lightning and totally destroyed.

DEATH CONQUERS

HON. JAMES ENGLISH IS GONE
FROM EARTH.

END CAME THIS MORNING

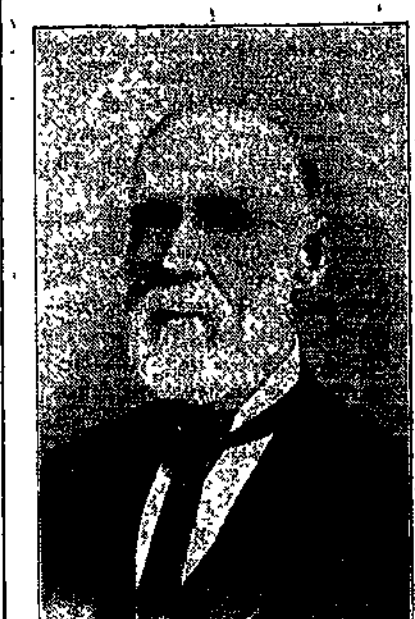

MANY YEARS A RESIDENT OF

MADISON TOWNSHIP.

Hon. James English, pioneer farmer, widely known citizen and former representative from Allen county to the state legislature, died at 2 o'clock this morning at his home, 2535 South Lafayette street, at the age of 79 years.

Death was due to acute dysentery, and it came as the termination of an illness of little more than two weeks. While enjoying a stay at Winona August 5, Mr. English was taken ill, and was brought to his home in this city on a cot. From that time he was never able to leave his bed, and despite the skilled ministrations of physicians and friends, the patient declined steadily. For some days it had been realized that the end was near, and for two days the patient's condition was such that death might have occurred at any moment. The venerable man was conscious until the last, though for nearly forty-eight hours he had been unable to speak. The end came peacefully early today.

NATIVE OF IRELAND.

Mr. English was a native of Ireland, born in County Antrim, September 7, 1822. He was united in marriage in 1846 to Isabel McConahay, an acquaintance of his boyhood in their native village, and together they came to America in 1847, landing in New York. For two years Mr. and Mrs. English resided in Philadelphia, and then removed to Muskingum county, Ohio, remaining five years until 1853, when they removed to Allen county, Indiana, which has since been Mr. English's home. Shortly after his arrival he purchased a farm half a mile north of Hoagland, and here he resided until 1899, when the family removed to Fort Wayne, living first on Jackson street, near Jefferson, and later occupying the pretty south side residence where his death occurred today.

Mrs. English died at Hoagland in March, 1890, and two years later, in April 1892, Mr. English was united in marriage to Electa S. Wadge, the ceremony being performed at Hobart, Lake county, once the home of the bride. Mr. English was the father of nine children, eight of whom, with the widow, survive him. One son, James, was drowned in the Maumee river in this city in 1880. The surviving children are Mrs. Margaret Greeley, of Hoagland; Rev. John W. English, of Sturgeon, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Hubler, of Fort Morgan, Col.; Mrs. Rose McIntosh, of Huntington; Dr. Calvin H. English, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Nettie Hubler, of Hoagland; Mrs. Kate Merriam, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Minnie Barkley, of Fort Morgan, Col.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS.

Politically Mr. English was identified with the republican party, and he was active in the political affairs of that party for many years. He served for some years as a justice of the peace in Madison township, and about twenty years ago represented Allen county in the legislature.

Mr. English was a splendid representative of the loftiest type of citizenship. For nearly half a century he was a resident of Allen county and throughout that time enjoyed the unbounded confidence and respect of all.

advancing age made it necessary to retire from active duties. Then he came to this city, and in peace and quietude passed the closing days of a life of industry, helpfulness and integrity. His death will be widely mourned, for few men in Allen county enjoyed a more extensive acquaintance.

HIS RELIGIOUS LIFE.

Since early in his boyhood Mr. English had led a devoted Christian life, consistently adhering to his religious convictions, and was one of the most steadfast supporters of the church. At 16 years of age, while yet in the land of his birth, he united with the Covenant church, and on coming to America placed his membership with a United Presbyterian church at Philadelphia. Removing to Indiana he affiliated with the United Presbyterian church at Hoagland, and when that organization went out of existence some years ago his membership was placed with the Third Presbyterian church in this city. For many years he has been an elder in that church, and one of its most devoted supporters. His life was clean, pure, admirable and helpful. It has been a benediction to those with whom he came in contact.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence and at 2:30 from the Third Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. J. A. P. McGaw will officiate.

NOW NEARING CHURUBUSCO

SURVEYING GOSHEN - FORT

WAYNE INTERURBAN LINE.

Promoters Spend the Night in the

City—Are Driving Over the Proposed Route.

James F. Rothwell, James Lynch and Arthur S. Partridge, of St. Louis, promoters of the proposed Fort Wayne-Goshen electric line, accompanied by their attorneys, Wilbur L. Stoner and Arthur B. Stoner, of Goshen, were in the city last evening registered at the Randall hotel.

They had driven from Goshen to this city over the proposed line of the road, and after spending the night in Fort Wayne Mr. Partridge left for St. Louis, while the other gentlemen in the party returned to go back over the road to make further observations concerning the most desirable route to be taken.

They are most positive in their statements that the outlook for the line is excellent, and the surveying party that is working this way is moving as rapidly as possible. It is expected that the surveyors will reach Churubusco early in the coming week.

LOCAL LINES.

Ben H. Tower, of Toledo, is in the city greeting old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Van B. Forraine leave this evening for Clear Lake.

Mrs. G. H. Heine will leave tomorrow for a visit in Chicago.

The Misses McGuigan, of New York, are the guests of Miss Bertha Scott.

Miss Olivette Shondell has returned from a two months' visit in Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Felker, of Toledo, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Spiegel.

Mrs. J. W. Thompson returns tomorrow from a two weeks' visit at Adrian, Mich.

Dr. G. W. McCaskey has returned from Chicago, where he had been staying for ten days.

Misses Marie and Hilda Spiegel will return tomorrow from a two weeks' visit with friends in Toledo.

Horace Hall, of Topeka, Kan., will arrive Tuesday for a visit with his sister, Mrs. T. E. Ellison, and family.

Rev. C. C. Cissel, former pastor of Barry Street M. E. church, will preach at that church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Joseph K. Long and son left this morning for New York, where they will visit friends for several weeks.

Mrs. A. H. Dougall, who has been the guest of her parents in New York for several weeks, will return home tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fields and daughter, Violet, and Mrs. A. Lazarus will leave tomorrow for Chicago, where they will visit a week with Mrs. George Myers.

IN EXTRA SESSION

OHIO LEGISLATURE MEETS AT GOVERNOR'S CALL.

MUST CORRECT BLUNDERS

LAWS NEEDED TO RESTORE GOVERNMENT TO CITIES.

PET IDEAS ARE DEPRECATED

GOVERNOR SAYS SUCH PLANS WILL HAVE TO WAIT.

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—The Ohio legislature convened at 3 p. m. today in extraordinary session to enact laws to provide for the government of municipalities and to restore lost jurisdiction to the supreme court, these matters having been rendered chaotic by the action of the court during the early summer.

After roll call the governor's message, accompanied by a municipal code bill, prepared under the direction of the chief executive, was received. Following this resolutions were offered on the death of T. William Bell, jr., former secretary of state and at the time of his death a member of the house. Adjournment was then taken.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

In his message, Governor Nash first calls attention to the act passed last May, depriving the supreme court of nearly all appellate jurisdiction formerly possessed by the court. The repeal of the act is recommended. Continuing, the message says:

"During the last days of June the supreme court of the state handed down several decisions which practically deprive our municipal corporations of all government. It is apparent that this is an extraordinary occasion which needs a remedy at the earliest possible moment. Constitutional government must be restored to our cities and villages. The labor demanded of us is not so much a work of constitution as of readjustment. The question now is not what we think would be a 'model' municipal government, but what we can get considering the constitutional limitations and all the circumstances surrounding us. The task must be approached with a spirit of 'give and take' and with a determination to accept something which will bring good out of it. It will be time enough to attempt to have favorite ideas in regard to municipalities incorporated into law when order has been restored and when the general assembly has ample time at its regular session to discuss and consider them."

OPPOSED TO CONVENTION.

The governor then traces briefly the history of the constitutional government of municipalities, and advises that the legislature ignore the requests for a constitutional convention.

He submits his ideas of the necessity of the situation in the form of a municipal code bill, the enactment of which he recommends.

Concluding, the governor says:

"I suggest that by joint resolutions you refer the school laws to the state commissioner of common schools and the attorney general, the laws relating to compensation of county officers to the auditor of state, secretary of state and the attorney general; the laws relating to registration and elections to the secretary of state and to annual boards of equalization to the auditor of state, with instructions to revise and re-codify said laws, remove therefrom all imperfections and have their work ready for presentation to the general assembly on the first Monday in January, 1904."

He earnestly recommends that no other subject of legislation be considered.

CHANGE OF CARRIERS.

Frank Neuhaus, carrier on rural free delivery route No. 7, which reaches the territory southeast of the city, will retire from the service this evening and the place will be filled by a substitute until a regular carrier is appointed from Washington. Charles O. Leihamer, carrier on route No. 3, has tendered his resignation in order to take a position as fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad. It will take effect as soon as his successor is named from the eligible list.

COMES UP TONIGHT.

The matter of an entrance into the city of Wabash for the Fort Wayne and Southwestern electric line comes up this evening in the council there for final settlement. An agreement was reached between Manager Nelson and the council some days ago for the use of Water street instead of Main.

Shortly before noon Manager Nelson and his stenographer, together with Judge Olds, the company's attorney, went to Wabash, where a temporary office is to be opened in a car. This is done in order that any question which may come up at the eleventh hour can be disposed of without further delay.

GENERAL NILES IN TROUBLE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 25.—Gen. Edwin R. Niles, of Goshen, Ind., was arrested at a hotel here at noon today for stealing a government mail pouch which had been dropped by a passing street car at a transfer point. The bag was later found intact. General Niles was placed in jail. It was found that he is demoted. Relatives at Goshen and Elkhart were notified. General Niles is a civil war veteran and was formerly a prominent attorney in northern Indiana.

WED IN INSURANCE OFFICE

NUPTIAL CEREMONY IS CELEBRATED IN NOVEL PLACE.

Joseph Killian and Mrs. Theresa Darby Married at Office of the Prudential Company.

Joseph Killian and Mrs. Theresa Darby, who were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, enjoy the distinction of having had the nuptial ceremony performed in one of the most unique places on record. They were married in an insurance office.

Both bride and groom reside north of the city and are quite well known. They came to the city Saturday afternoon in quest of a clergyman, expressing a preference for Rev. M. C. Cooper, formerly pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, and now an assistant superintendent for the Prudential Insurance company.

An acquaintance directed them to the offices of the Prudential company, in the City Y. M. C. A. building, where Rev. Cooper was found busy over his weekly report of business. The mission was quickly explained and the expectant couple was ushered into the handsome private office of Superintendent Beale. With the office staff of the insurance company as witnesses, Mr. Killian and Mrs. Darby were made one at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and no bride and groom ever had more sincere congratulations showered upon them than were expressed by the insurance solicitors. The event was a unique one for the insurance office, but it is unanimously agreed that Mr. and Mrs. Killian will be none the less happy for having departed somewhat from usual custom in matters matrimonial.

THE SHAH LEAVES ENGLAND.

London, Aug. 25.—The shah bid farewell to England today after a week's round of gayeties. He has gone to Paris, where he will spend ten days incognito. His departure from London was marked by the same scenes as were witnessed on his arrival. There was a big gathering of officials and a military display. The special steamer, which conveyed the Persian monarch to France left Dover amidst the firing of a royal salute and escorted by a couple of British cruisers.

MISTAKEN FOR A BURGLAR.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 25.—Mistaking his friend, who occupied the same dwelling with him, for a burglar, J. D. Wilson shot and killed G. F. Apperson here late last night. Apperson recently had changed his sleeping apartments and Wilson, seeing a form which in the dark he supposed to be that of a burglar, challenged and receiving no answer, fired.

SLAIN BY HER ADMIRER.

Huntingdon, Tenn., Aug. 25.—News has just reached here that Miss Maud Thompson was killed by James Greer near the girl's home in Henderson county. The only cause assigned is that the girl refused to go away with him. The murderer escaped.

LONG TRIP IN AUTOMOBILE.

Messrs. R. L. Duesler and H. D. Alderman left today for Buffalo, N. Y., in Mr. Duesler's gasoline automobile. They expect to make the trip in about five days, barring accidents, and will remain in Buffalo about two weeks. They will bring a Spalding machine back with them.

Charles S. Bash and family leave tomorrow for a stay at Bear Lake, Idaho. Bash goes to escape the heat.

STRIKERS PREVENT WORK

ATTEMPTS TO RESUME ARE FOILED BY MINERS.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 25.—August Schuch, aged 56 years, a special policeman in the service of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co., was assaulted and stabbed on the outskirts of the city today while attempting to rescue his son, William Schuch, a non-union workman, employed at the company's No. 40 colliery, from a mob of about 3,000 strikers who had gathered from all parts of the Hazleton region on the roads leading to the mine to frustrate the plans of the company for a partial resumption of operations with a non-union force of 250 hands.

A majority of the non-union men were taken to the workings in a special train with which the strikers did not attempt to interfere. William Schuch, who lives in this city, walked from his home toward the colliery and thus fell into the hands of the pickets. Most of the clothing was torn from his back in the struggle which followed. When Schuch's father rushed to his aid the mob set upon the elder Schuch, who was finally rescued by a mine foreman and removed to the miners' hospital. Schuch was stabbed in the breast and on each hip, kicked in the abdomen and struck on the head with a stone. His injuries are not very serious. The knife which was sunk into his breast struck a rib and that fact probably saved his life. The effort to prevent work at the mine was unsuccessful.

The report of a resumption at the Cranberry colliery of A. Pardee & Co. caused about 500 men to gather near the mine today, but no attempt was made to start work.

PICKETS PREVENT WORK.

Tamaqua, Pa., Aug. 25.—Not since the inauguration of the anthracite coal miners' strike have the United Mine Workers had so many pickets patrolling the Panther creek valley as was the case today. Every road and path leading to the collieries was guarded in an effort to persuade the non-union men not to go to work. No new recruits were added to the working force and quite a number were turned back. The extra vigilance was due to the rumor that it is the intention of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company to cut coal as soon as sufficient men can be secured. An official of the company admitted today that practical miners are hard to procure and that none of the coal companies is able to operate any of the mines for this reason.

FOREMAN SHOT A BOY.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 25.—George Wheatley, an outside foreman at the Brookside colliery of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, is under $1,000 bail, charged with shooting George Searer, aged nineteen years, of Tower City. Wheatley says he was followed through the streets by a crowd of strikers and their sympathizers, who jeered and hooted him. Becoming enraged, he drew a revolver and fired into the crowd. The bullet took effect in Searer's leg. Wheatley has been a mine boss for a number of years.

GENERAL GOBIN POPULAR.

Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 25.—Much importance is attached to the calls General Gobin receives from coal mine operators, who spend hours with the general in going over the strike situation. After having met a number of operators General Gobin said today that he does not see any signs of a settlement. In fact, he stated that all indications point more definitely to a prolongation of the strike now than they did when he first reached here. He keeps in touch with the strikers, as well as the operators, and may be seen daily riding over the hills with members of his staff. Along the road he frequently holds conversations with miners, all of whom display a friendly feeling toward him personally.

There is no ill feeling here against the soldiers and the military has become so popular that a movement has been set afoot to start a company in town.

to display evidence of a willingness to end the strike if a method could be shown them how they could make concessions to the men without stultifying themselves. In speaking with members of the staff at brigade headquarters some have within the past few days stated that if a way could be suggested whereby they could give in without placing themselves in a bad light they would favor a settlement. General Gobin is using his good offices toward a settlement, and he allows no opportunity to pass, when in conference with operators, to make a conservative plea for the men on strike.

GUARD HELD FOR SHOOTING.

Seranton, Pa., Aug. 25.—Frank Decker, one of the guards employed by the Temple Iron company, at the Edgerton colliery, was today placed under $3,000 bond on the charge of shooting Foreman Connolly and Forester Crossman last Monday night. Up to the present time the belief has been general that the shooting was done by the strikers and General Manager Thorns had offered $1,000 reward for the arrest of the perpetrator of the deed. The evidence which led to Decker's arrest came from Crossman, whose deposition was taken in the Carbondale hospital. He said he distinctly saw Decker shoot and recognized him at once. This testimony is strengthened by the fact that both Crossman and Connolly were hit with shot and not by bullets. Decker, on the night of the shooting, was armed with a shotgun loaded with the same size shot as were extracted from Crossman's eye and Connolly's leg. Crossman says he believes Decker shot, believing Connolly and himself were strikers intent on mischief.

NAVAL RECRUITING BEGINS

EARL B. POTTER AND ADOLPH M'KEE ARE ACCEPTED.

Lieutenant Hasbrouck and His Party

Open Office in Government Building.

Recruiting for Uncle Sam's navy began in Fort Wayne this morning, and before noon today there had been nine applications from young men who aspire to life upon the fighting ships. The first two to be accepted and sworn into the service were Earl Bert Potter, who goes as a machinist of the second class, and Adolph McKee, enlisted as a landsman for training. Both will be sent Saturday to Philadelphia, where they will go aboard the United States receiving ship Minneapolis.

Lieutenant Raymond Delancey Hasbrouck and his party arrived in the city last evening from Grand Rapids, and will make a stay of a week in Fort Wayne to receive enlistments. The office is opened in the court rooms at the postoffice building. With Lieutenant Hasbrouck as Past Assistant Surgeon D. B. Keer, Hospital Steward C. W. Sherry, Hospital Apprentice J. L. McCarty, Boatswain J. W. Angus, Chief Boatswain's Mate A. Seeger, Chief Machinist G. S. Bingham, Chief Quartermaster N. Carroll, Messenger J. Gettel, and Yeoman (third class) H. T. Culp, who is acting as stenographer to Lieutenant Hasbrouck.

Lieutenant Hasbrouck says he has been meeting with excellent success in securing recruits for the navy, and the celebrity with which applications started this morning leads him to believe the results in Fort Wayne will be quite up to the record of other cities. Recruits are desired for every branch of the naval service, and the term of enlistment is four years.

The lieutenant is an active young officer, modest in his bearing and agreeable in his manner, and talks entertainingly of life in the navy, which, he says, is in every way desirable. During the Spanish-American war the lieutenant was attached to the monitor Puritan, on duty off the north coast of Cuba, and participated in the activities there, though denied the privilege of getting into the famous fight at Santiago. He was with the Puritan at Matanzas in the famous bombardment in which it was claimed that the only casualty was that of a mule which went down before the Puritan's guns. Later the Puritan was on duty in Porto Rican waters, and following that Lieutenant Hasbrouck was transferred to the Monocacy of the Asiatic Squadron, and participated in the Chinese campaign during the boxer troubles, being on shore duty the greatest part of the time. His visits to nearly every country upon the globe have given him a vast fund of interesting information, and he tells it well when he gets him

CARNIVAL IS ON

FALL FESTIVAL IS FORMALLY INAUGURATED.

INDUSTRIAL PARADE GIVEN

THOUSANDS SEE BIG PAGEANT THIS AFTERNOON.

ATTRACTIONS OPEN TONIGHT

MANY FINE EVENTS ON THE WEEK'S PROGRAM.

The fall festival is on. It was formally inaugurated this afternoon when the hurry and bustle of days of activity culminated in the industrial parade as the opening feature of the week's festivities and the big pageant moved over the downtown streets, while thousands of people gazed at its attractive features from points of vantage all along the line of march.

The day has been perfect, and promoters of the big enterprise are looking confidently forward to a great week for the celebration. Down town a force of expert decorators have been at work for several days placing flags and bunting upon business houses, though the embellishment is by no means general. There was an unusual activity upon the streets early today in anticipation of the opening of the festival, and bands of music were out during the forenoon giving introductory concerts. The number of visitors in the city is not large and the big crowd which saw the parade this afternoon was made up very largely of Fort Wayne people.

IT WAS A LONG ONE.

The industrial parade formed on Barr street today, and despite some delays in the arrival of wagons the line moved shortly after 2 o'clock. At its head was Capt. W. G. Cleary as grand marshal, together with his aides, and behind them a platoon of police under command of Sergeant Harkemider. The Fort Wayne City band occupied the next position, and behind the musicians rode the festival officials in open carriages. Following them were carriages containing a large number of pretty little girls who are to have a part in the week's festivities.

Then began the long display of wagons representing many of the business houses of the city, and this portion of the pageant brought out a very large representation from pretty nearly every line of business, and the display was nearly half an hour in passing a given point. Many of the business houses contented themselves with sending out delivery wagons with some ornamentation, but in a number of instances really elaborate floats were presented, and they made an attractive appearance.

Midway down the line rode Harry Corrazi at the head of Wolff's Military band attired in "Rube" costume, but playing music in a manner that attested the excellence. Heading the third division was a band from the state school for feeble-minded. Taken altogether the parade was one of the longest of its kind seen in Fort Wayne for many days, and it held the crowds steadily until its line of march had been completed and the parade disbanded.

WHO HAD DISPLAYS.

TO PROMOTE CURFEW WORK

A MEETING TO BE HELD UNDER AUSPICES OF CHURCHES.

Colonel Hogeland Is Arousing New

Interest in the Subject—

Talks to Newsboys.

Col. Alexander Hogeland, "father of the curfew," and president of the National Curfew association, is arousing new interest in the work of saving youth in Fort Wayne. This evening a meeting will be held at the Berry Street M. E. church to organize more fully for the protection of youth and enforcement of the curfew laws. The following call was issued:

"Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 23, 1902.

—To the Pastors of the Various Churches, or Superintendents of Sabbath Schools: Dear Sir and Brother: You are requested to appoint from your congregation or Sabbath school a committee of four each of ladies and gentlemen to meet a like committee from other churches at the Berry Street M. E. church on Monday evening, Aug. 25, at 7:30 o'clock, to organize more fully for the protection of youth through the curfew and other municipal laws. This plan of conference and free discussion for the care of youth has grown very popular in many of the cities of the country. President Hogeland, of the National Curfew association, and others will be present and address the meeting. The pastors of churches are cordially invited to take part in the discussions.

"John W. Sale, for Wayne street M. E. church.

"J. W. Burns, for R. R. Y. M. C. A.

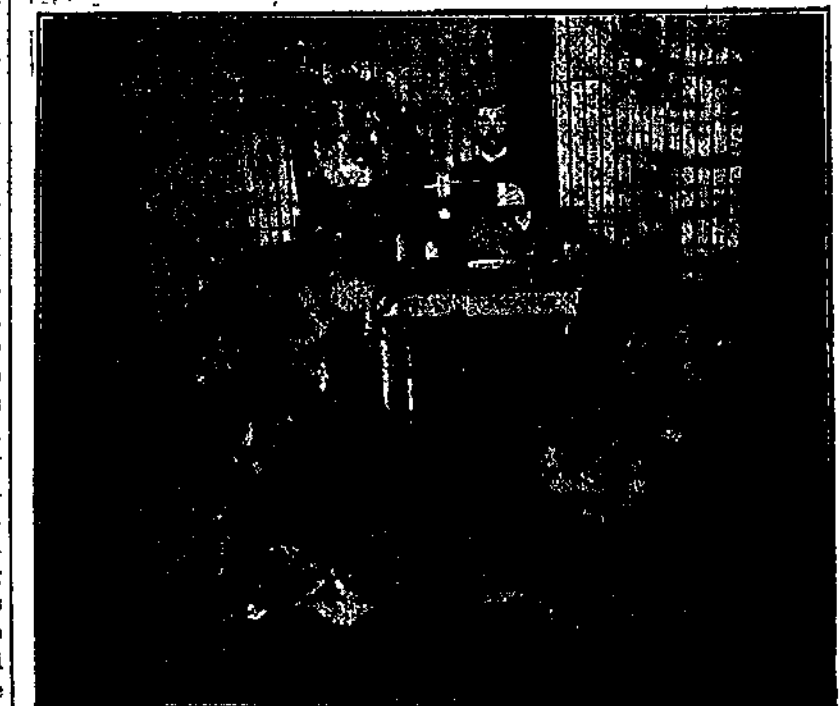

"J. K. Walts, for Berry street M. E. church.

"J. N. Study, superintendent public schools.

THE NEWSBOYS' MEETING.

Col. Hogeland delivered an open air address for the benefit of newsboys on the court house square on Saturday evening, and on Sabbath afternoon spoke again to the boys at Berry street M. E. church. The principal address was given in the evening at the First Baptist church before a large and interested audience. There will be a meeting of committees from several churches at Berry street M. E. church at 7:30 o'clock this evening for the purpose of discussing plans of keeping youths from bad influences.

COMRADES OF THE QUIET HOUR

The Comrades of the Quiet Hour consist of all persons that are willing to sign the following covenant: "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will make it the rule of my life to set apart at least fifteen minutes every day, if possible in the morning, for quiet meditation and direct communion with God." Covenant cards will be furnished free to all that will send their names, addressing Rev. Francis E. Clark, Tremont Temple, Boston. A stamp should be sent for the return of the card. Literature for use in extending the movement is also furnished free.

Our motto: "O satisfy us in the morning with Thy mercy." Ps. 90:14, R. V.

This week we are glad to report 30,487 Comrades of the Quiet Hour.

VARIOUS GOOD THINGS.
A schoolhouse Endeavor society of fifty-two farmer boys and girls, five miles from Fort Scott, Kan., connected with the Dunkard church, is doing remarkable work. It has eleven Tenth Legionaries. One member supports an orphan in China. You don't have to have a stone church, in a town on three or four trunk lines of railroad, to have the true spirit of triumphant Endeavor.

A society that trains the children in Bible study and giving synopses of the pastor's sermons, that helps build churches at home and supports two scholarships in Mexico, and that aids in prison work and every good cause, ought to be held up as a beacon light. Name it? The Hopkinsville, Ky., Cumberland Presbyterian Endeavor society.

Some very interesting facts that will be welcome to Miss Frances B. Patterson's many friends are given in a report of the Tienstin station, China, where Miss Patterson is working. She says that the girls in the school are very faithful to their Christian Endeavor pledge. One of them, whose home was burned by the boxers because her father would not deny Christ, said, "Don't cry; we have a heavenly home."

The Fort Wayne district convention will be held Nov. 27th to 29th. The prize and advertising committees have been appointed and are at work.

Keep the Junior societies going. The Christian Endeavor Union will have a junior superintendent to give help and suggestions to societies already organized, also helping to organize new societies.

The state paper will be issued about Sept. 1, 1902, known as the "Indiana Endeavorist." Its value depends upon the support received throughout the state by each society. It is to be an eight-page monthly, 25 cents per year, 20 cents in clubs of five or over. It is to be published by Edward W. Clark, of Indianapolis, a practical newspaper man, whose business talents are consecrated to the cause of Christ.

It's Pretty Hard

For any Fort Wayne woman to attend to household duties with the aches and pains of a bad back. A woman's back wasn't made to ache and it won't if the kidneys are well. Most backache pains, most nervous headaches and other bodily troubles of womanhood come from sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cure every form of kidney ills; cure all urinary troubles, diabetes, down to the first stages of Bright's disease. They are endorsed by Fort Wayne people.

Mrs. A. S. Booth, who lives at 70 Bart street, says: "I had kidney trouble ever since I can remember and a backache seemed to be as much a part of me as my hands or feet. I had a hemorrhage of the kidneys, which I thought was going to end my life. I became so nervous that I could not control myself and I had great difficulty in remembering things. One day a lady friend of mine was going to get Doan's Kidney Pills and I thought I would also try them, so I got a box at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store. I began taking them and continued the treatment, with the result that I steadily gained in health from the commencement until I was better than I had been in a long time."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all drug stores—50c a box. Do not accept a substitute. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HISTORY OF FRIAR ISSUE

Rome, Aug. 22.—The vatican authorities have completed the collection of documents referring to the Philippines question for the use of the apostolic delegate at Manila and it is conjectured that his appointment is imminent. A complete history of the negotiations on the subject of the friars' lands is given, including a summary of the voluminous report of Mgr. Chapelle, the former papal delegate in the Philippines, and the full text of the notes exchanged between Governor Taft and the vatican. These are supplemented by precise instructions regarding which secrecy is maintained, though Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, expresses the hope that the instructions are so framed as to enable the delegate to fulfill the pope's promise to Governor Taft, namely, to reach a solution satisfactory to both parties.

SY PATHY FOR THE FRIARS

EXPRESSED BY CLERGY OF FORT WAYNE DIOCESE.

Resolutions Set Forth Views on Philippine Situation—Synod Here

Next Year.

Notre Dame, Ind., Aug. 23.—Catholic clergy of the Fort Wayne diocese, assembled here in annual retreat, passed resolutions yesterday setting forth their views upon the ecclesiastical and school situation in the Philippines. The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, The minds of the Catholics of northern Indiana have been seriously and justly perturbed by reliable reports concerning the state of ecclesiastical affairs in the Philippine islands, and,

"Whereas, They are solicitous that the religious and civil rights and interests of their fellow Catholics, as guaranteed by treaty, laws and constitution, be upheld and protected against undue interference, and,

"Whereas, We have full confidence in the prudence, justice and good will of his excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, who has entered upon peaceful negotiations with the vatican and has promised a just and amicable settlement of pending difficulties;

"1. Be it Resolved, That we, the undersigned bishop and clergy of the diocese of Fort Wayne, Ind., assembled at the University of Notre Dame, and representing 100,000 Catholics of northern Indiana, desire to give expressions of our sympathy with the friars of the Philippine islands who have arduously and successfully labored for centuries in the cause of religion and Christian civilization, and who are now the victims of widespread slander and abuse; who are disturbed in the peaceful possession of their legitimately acquired property and in the continuance of their missionary labors among their flock—the great mass of whom, notwithstanding the objections of certain revolutionary parties, give evidence of a sincere desire to retain them; and,

"2. Be it Resolved, That since the system of Christian, parochial school education has been for centuries in vogue among the Philippine Catholics, and since they gratefully recognize it as one of the main factors in their development as a Christian nation from the lowest state of barbarism, and since they now justly claim for their children this Christian system of education as based upon their natural parental right—the selection of this parochial school system should be left to the free choice of their parishes, without any partisan or sectarian interference, and,

"3. Be it Resolved, That we appreciate the action of our illustrious president in having entered into friendly negotiations with the vatican concerning ecclesiastical affairs in the Philippine islands, and that we firmly trust that these negotiations will be continued until such an agreement shall have been reached, as will fully satisfy the claims of justice and religious rights and liberty for the friars and the Catholic people of the Philippine islands, and,

"4. Be it Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be respectfully forwarded to his excellency, the president of the United States, and to the press."

The resolutions are signed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Alerding and ninety-one priests of the diocese of Fort Wayne.

SOME PASTORAL CHANGES.

Bishop Alerding, after a council of the diocesan consultants, has made a number of changes in the assignment of priests. Rev. William F. Hogan has been appointed pastor at Goshen, succeeding Rev. J. M. Guendling, who was recently chosen for Peru to succeed the late Rev. Father Meissner. Dunkirk and its missions, recently in charge of Father Hogan, has been placed under the direction of Rev. Charles Dhe, of Hartford City, and Rev. Edward Houlihan has been temporarily assigned as assistant to Father Dhe.

Very Rev. John R. Dinnen was appointed diocesan councillor, to succeed Rev. Henry Meissner, deceased. Rev. Francis Koerdit, Rev. T. J. Mulcahy and Rev. A. J. Kroeger were named as synodical examiners in place of Rev. Fathers Walters, Campion and Meissner, deceased.

SYNOD IN FORT WAYNE.

In September, 1903, a synod for the diocese will be held in Fort Wayne, and Rev. J. H. Oechtering, Rev. F. Koerdit and Rev. J. E. Bathe were named as a committee to arrange for the gathering. The annual council of junior clergy will take place December 10, when the synod council meets at Fort Wayne. The junior clergy of the diocese of Fort Wayne are the members who have been ordained within the last five years.

UNIVERSALISTS WILL MEET.

Rev. M. A. ... Indian ...

at 10:45 a. m. and 4 p. m. The Interstate Universalist assembly will open Tuesday evening, August 26, and will continue until the evening of September 5. This assembly includes the four states of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan. Able representatives of the Universalist denomination will be present and participate in the meetings.

CARS TO RUN LATER.

During the carnival week the last car westward on the Fort Wayne and Southwestern interurban line will leave the depot at Pearl and Harrison streets at 11 o'clock each evening.

NO CONTEST OVER FAIR WILL

MRS. NELSON IS REGARDED AS THE SOLE HEIR.

The Mother of Mrs. Fair Will Ask for Letters of Administration in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, has arrived here from her home in Newmarket, N. J. She is accompanied by her son, A. G. Nelson, of Plainfield, N. J. Mrs. Nelson, who is 70 years of age, was greatly fatigued by her journey across the continent.

Charles J. Smith, of Boulder Creek, Cal., a brother of the late Mrs. Fair, and Fred Fowler, a nephew of Mrs. Fair by marriage, with his wife, are also here. Mrs. Nelson declined to talk for publication, but to Joseph Harvey, a life-long friend of Charles Fair, she said: "I don't care much what becomes of my share of the estate, but I do want to see my children get all they are entitled to."

A. G. Nelson said: "There will be no contest between my mother and Mr. Smith, of Colorado. He is my half-brother. Of course, my mother will go into court, but the legal matters rest with her counsel altogether. She will ask for letters of administration on the estate and for that reason we intend to take up our residence in San Francisco."

"My mother," he continued, "we regard as the sole heir, so there will be no contest so far as we are concerned."

"There will be no contest at all," remarked Joseph Harvey. "The whole matter will be settled out of court, and, anyhow, nothing definite has yet been decided on."

The Call says:

"It is not generally known that the Fairs will authorize Herman Oelrichs to inform the relatives of Mrs. Fair that they can take possession of certain properties of her estate. To this estate will also probably be added a sum of money. What the amount will be has not yet been settled upon. The details of the compromise have not yet been discussed."

GIRL FILES A SUIT.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 23.—A ready more than a nine days' wonder, the Stoneburner robbery case continues to present sensational chapters. Late yesterday afternoon Miss Kittie Harte filed suit in the Porter circuit court for $5,000 damages against Mrs.

Rose Stoneburner and Arthur Thibault, legal representative of Dr. A. A. Stoneburner. She alleges malicious prosecution. Miss Harte is the pretty servant girl who claims she was bound, gagged and severely hurt by the 'daylight robbers' who secured $7,000 in money and valuables from the Stoneburner residence. The police were unable to find any clew to the robbers and finally arrested Miss Harte for the burglary. She was placed in jail, but after a hearing which lasted less than five minutes, was set free by Judge Dille.

Mid-summer Sacrifice Sale of PIANOS.

BUY NOW AND SAVE MONEY.

George Jacobs wishes to inform the public that he has placed his order with the factories for a new stock of Pianos, which will be here ready to place in the store early in September. The present stock must go and to make them move Mr. Jacobs will grease the way so they will slide right out without any trouble. How? Why, sell them at a sacrifice price, of course.

The Pianos that go in this sale are such fine instruments as Kranich & Bach, Haines & Co., Marshall & Mendall, the Schaefer, and a number of other well known makes. Some of these have never been out of the store, although a little shop-worn; others have been rented a short time.

ALL ARE IN FIRST-CLASS CONDITION, AS GOOD AS NEW.

As an evidence of the faith placed in this store by the public,

Mrs. Hook expect to make their future home at Van Wert, O.
Miss Mary Moffat, who has a fine position in the congressional library at Washington, will arrive in the city soon for a visit with friends. Dr.
and Mrs. Moffat will return from Madison early in September.
The Misses Alice and Lilo McIntosh, of Omaha, are visiting their parents, east of the city, and before returning west Miss Alice McIntosh and her sister, Miss Duell, will visit Niagara, Montreal and Quebec.
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tribolet and daughters, the Misses Margaret and Charlotte Tribolet, stopped over night in the city, en route to their home in Bluffton. They have been in Wequetonsing since the early part of July.
Miss Lillian Jeffries was pleasantly surprised at her home, 373 Baker street, Thursday evening by a large company of her young friends. Games and music were greatly enjoyed, and refreshments were served at a late hour. Miss Lillian received a number of beautiful presents.
Thursday evening, Miss Marguerite
Swift was hostess for a delightful company at her home, north of the city. The young people enjoyed pedro and dancing, and at the close of the games elaborate refreshments were served. In the games Miss Walters and Lou Kirkhofs won first prizes.
Mrs. Mary Kelly, of Olean, N. Y., Mrs. Kate Hamer, of Buffalo, and the Misses Nellie and Minnie Baynes, of Rome, N. Y., all relatives of Justice
Tancey, who have been visiting Mr.
and Mrs. Tancey for several weeks,
left for their respective homes
Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Tancey and Miss Mary O'Dowd accompanied the ladies as far as Findlay where they were the guests of Alderman J. W.
Kelly, who was

KIDNAPED BY A LUNATIC.
Macon, Ga., Aug. 23.—With a
drawn pistol in his hand, James I.
Tindall, said to be an escaped lunatic
from the state sanitarium at Mil-lidgeville, entered the home of L. A.
Roach, in Wilkinson county, and carried off Agnes Roach, a 15-year-old girl. The kidnapping was accomplished while the other members of the family were away from home.
At last accounts Tindall had not returned. He went in the direction of Macon.

WIRELESS LINE IS OPENED.
Denver, Col. Aug. 23.—A dispatch received yesterday at the headquarters of the Pacific Wireless Telegraph company, in this city, announces that the office at White's Point, Cal., will be opened tomorrow morning for commercial business. The Pacific company's wireless system between Catalina Island and White's Point, thirty-six miles, is reported to be working perfectly, messages being sent as rapidly as over a wire.

MAYOR ISSUES ORDERS.
Mayor Berghoff last evening sent to the superintendent of police two orders; one calling attention to the violation of the ordinance regulating
the speed of automobiles in the city
and the other referring to a rumor that the town was to be "wide open" during festival week, commencing next Monday. It has been stated that next week was to be an "open"
week and that police regulations
would be enforced only catch-as-catch-can and that gambling and slot
machines would be given an inning, while "saloons" would be supposed to run without "front door keys" until Saturday night. The mayor, in order to remove all doubts on this question, accordingly issued the following peremptory instructions:
"August 22, 1902. To the Superintendent of Police: In order to avoid any misunderstanding, you will please take notice that during the fall festival no change will be made
in my former orders, and that no
gambling or the use of money slot machines will be tolerated. As large crowds are expected to visit the city, due care should be taken that perfect order is maintained."
"HENRY C. BERGHOFF, Mayor."

The other order referring to the speed of automobiles in the city, concerning which there has been much complaint, was as follows:
"Please call attention of the officers to section 523 and 524 of the revised ordinances which provide that no automobile shall run through the streets of the city at a speed over eight miles an hour and shall turn corners at a speed not over four miles, and see that this ordinance is enforced."
"HENRY C. BERGHOFF, Mayor."

SUMMER COMPLAINT.
Proper Food Will Prevent It

When the bowels go wrong in adults or children, quit all food but Grape-Nuts and a little cream or milk. The experience of one woman will be read with interest by many mothers who pass anxious days over little ones and become alarmed because the food does not agree with baby and he daily wastes away.
Mrs. W. H. Mennens, of Little Falls, Minn., writes: "I want to tell you the good Grape-Nuts Food has done for my baby boy. When he was 10 months old he was taken with summer complaint and I could not find any prepared food that agreed with him. I was giving him doctor's medicine all the time but he continued to lose in weight until he only weighed 15 pounds, having weighed 22 pounds before he was taken sick. Finally the doctor told me that unless I could get some real nourishing food for him he would not live many days and he advised me to get Grape-Nuts Food, which I did, and in five days he gained 4 ounces and in five weeks he weighed just 20 pounds.

If any mother reading this letter wants to write to me personally I will gladly answer and tell her the full particulars regarding baby's summer complaint and the good Grape-Nuts Food.

Out Lot.
I now offer the 120 acres on Walton avenue immediately south of the Lutheran college land, price $24,000
for the entire tract, $400 per acre, which will retail out at $400 per acre. Good opportunity to double your money. Terms easy, small payment down, long time on remainder. When we cleared off the very heavy timber on this rich land,
many years ago, 900 thirty young shade trees were left for outlet purposes, all of which are still there and growing. The population of Fort Wayne is steadily increasing and it's still more rapid growth is now about
to develop.

FALL FESTIVAL TO BEGIN ON MONDAY.

VARIED PROGRAM ARRANGED

SIX DAYS OF FESTIVITY AND PLEASURE.

A FEATURE FOR EVERY DAY

INDUSTRIAL PARADE TO IN-AUGURATE EVENT.

With flags gaily fluttering in the breeze, with the persistent hawking of the street fakir as he noisily tells of his wares, with the bands playing, a crowd arrayed in holiday garb out to see the grand opening of the fall festival, the great event will be launched Monday morning to continue throughout the week.

Since the inception of the fall festival all of the committees have worked hard and have met with a number of the most discouraging rebuffs from people who are always ready to cry down any amusement enterprise, but in spite of this opposition the members of these committees have persevered and at the final meeting it was fully assured that the event will be successful far in excess of the expectations of the most sanguine.

In the selection of amusements the most discriminating taste has been shown and the predominant idea from the start has been to give the people value received for every dollar invested. The Gaskill-Munday company has assured the management that there shall be no attempt at faking and with this in view the association determined to make public just what the people may expect.

MANY FREE SHOWS.
An admission of 10 cents will be charged at the entrance to the show grounds and this entitles each person admitted to witness eight big free acts that will be given daily.
These embrace an imitation of Kilpatrick's famous ride down the steps of the capitol at Washington, Archie Phillips' ascent of a spiral tower on a globe and a trip from the top of the spiral several feet on a horizontal tubular extension, the high diving act of Splash and Spiny, a monkey balloon ascension and parachute leap and a number of other equally as worthy.

There will be a number of shows on the ground, all of a good class, but they will not be free. Admission will be charged to each, but there is every assurance that all are first class and will be worth the price to be charged.

NO GAMBLING ALLOWED.
An edict has gone out against gambling in any form and the city authorities will be assisted by the festival management in suppressing any attempt to operate a game of chance during the week. It will be the object of the association to give a good, clean show.

The opening feature will be the industrial parade, which will form immediately after noon Monday and move not later than 2 o'clock. This action was decided upon for the reason that a great many housewives can not on account of their duties come out in the morning, and it is desired to give all an opportunity to see the attractive feats that are promised.

The ball park in which all of the shows will be located will not be opened until 7 o'clock in the evening, in order to give the people a chance to rest after the fatigue of watching the industrial parade. This program will conclude the first day of the celebration.

The great event of the second day will be the admitting of children to the grounds free of charge and giving them an opportunity to visit the attractions at half the usual price.

FARMERS' DAY.
The farmers, who form an important element in the success of any amusement enterprise, will be the guests of the association on Wednesday. To make the day attractive a prize of a ten-dollar gold piece will be awarded to the farmer who will bring to the show grounds the tallest stalk of corn. Cereals are commanding good prices, but an opportunity to obtain such a big prize for a small amount of corn is not often afforded.

Thursday will be the big day for the Fort Wayne people and a special program of unusual interest has been prepared for that occasion.
Friday will be Indiana day and the management will endeavor to secure the attendance of a number of the state officials for the occasion.

Saturday throughout the summer months is, as a rule, a half-holiday for the working people and for this reason the closing day will be labor day. All of the labor organizations in the city have been notified and a big attendance has been promised for the occasion.

Merchants have taken an unusual interest during the closing week of preparation and there is every reason to believe that the support of the best business people of the city will be forthcoming for the aid of the organization.

All little girls who wish to go in the parade will meet at the high school building at 1 o'clock.

THE INDUSTRIAL PARADE.
The industrial parade will form on Barr street at 1 o'clock in the following order:

Platoon of Police.

Fort Wayne City Band.

First division will form on Barr street, facing north, between Columbia and Barr.

Wolfs' Raub Band.

Second division will form on Berry street, right resting on Barr.

State Institute Band.

Third division will form on Barr, right resting on Berry street.

EMILE MISTLER EXPIRES SUD-DENLY LAST NIGHT.

Had Retired in Usual Health at an Early Hour—Other Deaths and Funerals.

Emile Mistler, formerly a machinist in the Wabash shops, but later in the saloon business at 1708 Hoagland avenue, was found dead in his bed at 11 o'clock Friday night by his son, Emile, Jr.

Mr. Mistler, with two sons, resided in apartments above the saloon, and after closing the place last night, he, son, as was his custom, went to his father's room to place the cash receipts beneath the pillow. It was then he made the discovery that death had ensued, and Deputy Coroner Van Buskirk was called. The father had last been seen alive at 7 o'clock, and was apparently in his usual health. He had retired early, and nothing had been heard from his room to indicate that anything was wrong.

The deceased was 47 years of age and came to the city about three years ago from Moberly, Mo., to accept a position as a machinist in the Wabash shops. He was unable to stand the hard work, however, and about a year ago resigned to engage in the saloon business. His wife died some years ago. There are two sons surviving—Emile, Jr., and Philip. Mr. Mistler was a member of Friendship lodge, International Association of Machinists, and was popular among his acquaintances.

The remains were removed to the Wellman undertaking establishment, where this afternoon Dr. W. F.
Schrader conducted a post mortem examination under the direction of Deputy Coroner Van Buskirk. Dr.
Van Buskirk finds that death was due to inflammation of the stomach and bowels, complicated with tuberculosis and chronic inflammation of the liver.

The funeral will probably be held from the undertaking rooms tomorrow afternoon under the direction of the machinists' union.

KLOEPFER.

Theodore Kloepfer, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kloepfer, of 1312 Stopple street, died at 5 o'clock this morning at the age of five months and eight days. Death was due to cholera infantum.

Funeral services will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Wambs-gans.

FUNERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Vonderau—Funeral services of Mrs. Peter Vonderau will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 215 East Main street, and at 2:30 from Trinity English Lutheran church. Rev. Swinkelhart will officiate and the interment will occur at Lindenwood.

Bensman—Funeral services of Mrs.
Elizabeth Bensman will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 434 Madison street, and at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Menefee—Funeral services of Edna
E. Menefee will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1301 Fisher street, Rev. Lake officiating.

JOSEPH LAUFERTY DEAD.

Friends in this city today were advised by telegraph of the death of Joseph Lauferty, which occurred at his home in New York. Mr. Lauf-erty was a brother of Samuel Lauf-erty, of this city, and was 76 years of age. Forty years ago Mr. Lauf-erty was in business at Goshen, and frequently visited Fort Wayne. He will be remembered by many of the older citizens of Fort Wayne.

BUYS DISPATCH OUTFIT.

I. G. Stafford, the wholesale paper dealer and printer, has purchased the Dispatch printing outfit from J.

L. Sievert. It is not Mr. Stafford's intention to continue the publication of the paper, but he was desirous of getting possession of the type and material to add to his printing department.

BASE BALL.

Just to get even for losing a game the other day, Pittsburgh won two yesterday. Onebro was on the slab for the Pittsburghers and let Brooklyn down with four hits and one run. In the other two games played there were no unusual features and the attendance at three cities was 8,400. In the American league Chicago again jumped from fourth into second place, but still 32 points back of the coveted position held by Philadelphia. Mullin pitched for Detroit in the game against Baltimore and gave the Orioles but 4 hits, the game going handily to Detroit by a score of 10 to 2; at that he handed out three passes and a wild pitch. The attendance at four cities was 19,057. In the American association Columbus wrestled for fourteen innings when Columbus handed one to the Mudhens that landed right in the bull's eye of the plexus and won by a run. Kansas City and St. Paul made 7 hits apiece and an error apiece, but there the similarity in the scores ended because St. Paul got a run and Kansas City didn't. There was no game at Louisville on account of wet grounds. The attendance at three cities was 3,713. The scores are given below:

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Although there was still some tension in grain trade at the opening today, the feeling was much more healthy. It was generally understood that most of the heavy short accounts have been covered and as a result the market needed some support. Naturally conditions seemed to be more to operate on September wheat, which opened $\frac{3}{8}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ down at 71c to 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c in lower cables and a weather map, that aside from a few showers was favorable. There was some demand in both December and September on the poor grading. September sold at 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and stood near 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Local receipts were 320 cars, none of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 166 cars, making a total for the three points of 486 cars, against 511 last week and 742 a year ago.

A good cash demand, strength in corn and seaboard clearances equaling 1,037,000 bushels started good buying in wheat and September mounted to 72 $\frac{3}{4}$ c. Longs let go of fair quantities and prices dropped back. September closed $\frac{1}{2}$ up, somewhat firm, at 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c.

Corn cables were steady, grading was light and the cash demand was fairly good. There was free offerings at the opening; but no pressure and prices rallied somewhat. September was rather nervous, opening unchanged to $\frac{1}{2}$ down at 57c to 56 $\frac{1}{2}$ c, selling at 57 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and dipping to 57 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Receipts were only 41 cars, 5 of contract grade.

Fears of frosts and more short covering put strength into the tone of corn. September sold to 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and closed strong, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ c higher, at 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Oats fell off a trifle with the early easy feeling in other grains. Receipts, however, were still very light in contract grades, only 16 cars out of 249 received today, and the dips did not go far. September opened $\frac{1}{2}$ lower to unchanged at 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and stood near 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ c.

Provisions had good support early. Hogs were easier, but did not prevent fair early advances. September pork started 5c up at \$16.70; September lard 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ c higher at \$10.85 and sold at \$10.82 $\frac{1}{2}$; and September ribs 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ c to 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ c higher at \$10.10 to \$10.15 and sold back to \$10.07 $\frac{1}{2}$.

THE CLOSURE.

Prices at the close were as follows: Wheat—Aug., 72c; Sept., 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 67 $\frac{1}{2}$ c@67 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; May, 69 $\frac{1}{2}$ c@69 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Corn—Sept., 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; May, 40 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Oats—Aug., 27c; new, 34 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Sept., 27c; new, 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 26 $\frac{1}{2}$ c@26 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; new, 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; May, 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Pork—Aug., \$16.75; Sept., \$16.80; Oct., \$16.92 $\frac{1}{2}$; Jan., \$14.80; May, \$14.10.

Lard—Aug., \$10.75; Sept., \$10.85; Oct., \$8.75; Dec., \$8.85; Jan., \$8.32 $\frac{1}{2}$; @8.35; May, \$8.00. Ribs—Aug., \$10.05; Sept., \$10.10; Oct., \$9.82 $\frac{1}{2}$; Jan., \$7.80. THE TOLEDO MARKETS.

Toledo, O., Aug. 23.—Wheat—Market dull, firm; cash, 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Sept., 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; May, 73c. Corn—Market dull, strong; cash, 61 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Sept., 59 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 42c asked. Oats—Market dull, easy; Sept., 33c; Dec., 31 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Cloverseed—Market active, firm and higher; Oct., \$5.90; Jan., \$5.07 $\frac{1}{2}$ nominal. Rye—32c. Oil—North Lima, 89c; South Lima and Indiana, 84c.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 23.—There were some dealings in a few of the stocks recently prominent in the speculation, but the price changes were in all cases small and very equally divided.

Pacific carried it up a point to 76 $\frac{1}{2}$ and there was also active buying of Norfolk and Western, which lifted it 1 $\frac{1}{2}$. Price movements in other important stocks were narrow, but the trend was upward. Colorado Fuel rose to 78 $\frac{1}{2}$ with one block of 6,100 shares changing hands. Erie second preferred, Pressed Steel Car and Fort Worth and Denver City Stamped advanced a point each. Southern Railway stocks were heavy because of the failure to declare a dividend on the preferred stock. The latter dropped 1 to 97. The market was easier all around at 11 o'clock.

The loan contraction by the banks was regarded favorably. But the effect upon the market was not wide. Before the bank statement appeared Colorado Fuel reacted 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ and there were declines of 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in Louisville, Cleveland, C. & St. Louis, St. Paul preferred and Anaconda. St. Louis and San Francisco first preferred lost 3. Southern Pacific was forced up to 77 $\frac{1}{2}$ after the bank statement and Pennsylvania rose a point. Other gains were Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ with a reaction of 1 $\frac{1}{2}$; Fort Worth and Denver City Stamped 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, and Erie first and second preferred, Pittsburgh, C. & St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie preferred and Fuller Construction preferred 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$. The slight advances in the general market met realizing and the closing was irregular.

THE MONEY MARKET.

New York, Aug. 23.—Prime mercantile paper, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ @5 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent; sterling exchange barely steady with actual business in bankers' bills at 487@487.125 for demand and at 484.25@484.375 for 60-day bills; posted rates, 488@488.5 and 488; commercial bills, 483 $\frac{1}{2}$ @484 $\frac{1}{2}$; bar silver, 52 $\frac{1}{2}$; Mexican dollars, 41 $\frac{1}{2}$. Government bonds steady; state bonds inactive; railroad bonds steady.

WEEKLY BANK STATEMENT.

New York, Aug. 23.—The weekly statement of averages of the associated banks shows: Loans, $918,687,900; decrease, $10,460,100. Deposits, $948,269,800; decrease, $11,978,200. Circulation, $32,414,900; increase, $909,800. Legal tenders, $75,248,600; decrease, $1,101,500. Specie, $171,562,200; increase, $724,200. Reserve, $248,810,800; decrease, $377,300. Reserves required, $237,067,450; decrease, $2,994,050. Surplus, $9,743,350; increase, $2,616,750.

There are real and great evils in our social and economic life, and these evils stand out with ugly boldness during good times, for the wicked who prosper have never a pleasant sight. There is every need of striving in all possible ways, individually and collectively, by combinations among ourselves in private life and through the recognized organs of government, for the cutting out of these evils. Only let us be sure that we do not use the knife with an ignorant zeal which would make it more dangerous to the patient than to the disease.

GROWTH OF TRUSTS.

"One of the features of the tremendous industrial growth of the last generation has been the very great increase in large private and especially in large corporate fortunes.

"We may like this or not; just as we please, but it is a fact, nevertheless, and as far as we can see it is an inevitable result of the working of various causes, proper among which has been the immense importance of steam and electricity have assumed in modern life. Urban population has grown in this country, as in all civilized countries, much faster than the population as a whole during the last century; and where men are gathered together in great masses it inevitably results that they must work far more largely by means of combinations among themselves than when they live isolated from one another. Now, I suppose that most of us prefer on many accounts the old conditions of life, under which the average man lived more to himself and, by himself, when the average community was more self-dependent, and where even though the standard of comfort was lower on the average, yet there was less of the glaring inequality in worldly conditions which we now see in our great cities.

MAD ANTHONY'S TWO GRAVES

BONES OF FAMOUS SOLDIER FOR WHOM FORT WAYNE IS NAMED REST AT RADNOR; HIS FLESH AT ERIE.

Fort Wayne's history is indissolubly linked with the memory of the famous revolutionary hero from whom the city took its name. The cycle of years that have elapsed since General Mad Anthony Wayne in his dashing campaign against the Indians reached the junction of the St. Mary's and the St. Joe rivers, building a fort at the point which commanded the waterway in three directions have brightened rather than dimmed the halo of his glory, and the story of his activity is perpetuated in the splendid city which has risen to mark the spot where the fearless fighter planted his banner more than a century ago.

Every Fort Wayne citizen is familiar with the location of the old fort, yet hundreds of visitors each year go to the eastern terminus of Main street, where a pretty little plot, triangular in shape, enclosed by iron paling and blossoming with flowers marks the precise spot where the old blockhouse stood. It was easily the central figure of old Fort Wayne, and around it cluster treasured memory and anecdote of the pioneer days. "Old Fort park" it is called, though the last fragment of the fort disappeared many years ago. There are still citizens living who remember well the outlines of the old building surrounded by a stockade, and there is yet in Fort Wayne one citizen, at least—the venerable Louis Peltier—who was born within the walls of the frontier fort.

Many older families of the city, also have canes, chairs and other trinkets made from timbers secured years ago when the old fort was dismantled, and these keepsakes are valued highly. No trace of the old structure remains on the site today, but rising above its center is a staff flying the stars and stripes. An old piece of artillery from the civil war also occupies a place there, and toward the eastern point of the triangle is mounted on massive masonry a defense gun from the old Spanish batteries at Santiago.

REBTS IN TWO GRAVES.
Turning from the center of General Wayne's activities here, passing by the perpetuation of his name in city, in street and in countless manufacturing concerns who find the name "Wayne" an attractive prefix, a curious bit of circumstance is presented, as one seeks to learn of his resting place. For among the many distinctions accorded to the deeds of Major General Wayne, and whose memory is commemorated in the new Stony Point park, in New York, there is the singular one that his mortal remains occupy in part two separate graves in different parts of Pennsylvania, each of which is known by suitable inscription as "the grave of General Wayne." No other public man can claim this unique distinction.

"Mad Anthony," after the close of the revolution, was appointed commissioner of the American government to treat with the northwestern Indians and to receive the surrender of the military posts given up by the British at the cessation of hostilities. He had completed the task assigned to him and in November, 1795, was on his way across Lake Erie from Detroit to Fort Presque Isle now Erie, Pa., where he was attacked with gout, and on Dec. 15, of that year, (1795), died in the blockhouse which he had himself erected at that place.

There was a high bluff, known as Garrison Hill, in the neighborhood of the blockhouse, on which a flagstaff had been set up, and at his expressed wish he was buried on the spot where the flagstaff then stood. The coffin, covered with cloth, on which was his name in brass nails, was placed in a brick vault, and there the remains of the brave and chivalrous Wayne lay for thirteen years without notice or recognition.

FINDING THE COFFIN.
In 1809 some memory of the patriotic warrior was aroused in the breast of his family and his son, Col. Isaac Wayne, accompanied by a friend of his father, an old army surgeon, went to Presque Isle in a two-wheeled vehicle to search for the grave and remove the remains. The flagstaff in the meanwhile had disappeared and no clear apparently remained to guide them. Singularly enough, when they and a number of citizens were about to give up the search the chance meeting with a boy who was tending cattle on the hill supplied the information and they were thus by accident enabled to locate the grave.

The body of the old general was found in a state of almost perfect preservation, so much so that even his military clothing, boots, etc., were not in the least affected by decay, and were given to an old soldier, who donned them with pride and wore them for a long time in honor of his old command.

A new difficulty, however, presented itself. The old general's remains were found in a brick vault, and it was necessary to remove them to a more permanent resting place.

being found insufficient to carry the remains intact to the place destined for them. After consultation the only means feasible was to remove the flesh from the bones. This was done by boiling, the flesh so removed being placed in the coffin and reburied in the vault.

The bones were then taken by Col. Wayne to St. David's church, Radnor, Newton township, Pennsylvania, where they were buried, and over which in the same year the Pennsylvania Society of Cincinnati erected a marble monument eight feet in height at a cost of $500, duly inscribed to the memory of the gallant dead and dedicated with imposing civic and military ceremonies.

The original grave at Fort Presque Isle, containing the flesh removed from the bones as already described, was in the meantime forgotten for sixty-seven years, and was only discovered in January, 1876, by accident. Fort Presque Isle became Erie (the blockhouse had been burned some thirty years before), and in 1872 a small hospital was erected on Garrison hill by the city authorities.

THE ORIGINAL GRAVE.

In 1876 the physician in charge of the hospital was partial to horseback exercise, and in going to and returning from the hospital rode a spirited horse. In going over the ground at a lively rate his attention was drawn to a spot which sounded hollow under the horse's hoof, and, having investigated the cause, the original grave of General Wayne was again discovered, the coffin lid studded with brass nails being once more in evidence.

Removing the lid, the dried flesh and the knives with which it had been removed from the bones were found. Near the grave also was found the footpiece of the old flagstaff, made of two chestnut logs in the form of a cross. The finding of the grave at the beginning of the centennial year caused a great deal of satisfaction, and on Memorial day a large body of veterans visited the grave and steps were taken for the purpose of erecting a monument on the spot.

Three years later—1879—the state of Pennsylvania appropriated $1,500 and a committee was appointed to carry out the design. A new stone was placed over the grave, with a suitable inscription, while the old coffin lid, with its inscription in brass-headed nails, is preserved in a frame covered with glass.

The design of the Erie monument is that of the original blockhouse erected there in 1797 by General Wayne. It is built of squared oak logs, well notched together at the corners. The first story is sixteen feet square and ten high, and the upper story is octagonal in shape and made to project several feet over the lower floor, from which a flight of winding steps leads to the upper floor. The roof is octagonal and is finished to a point in the center from which waves the flag of the country, the old warrior served so well. Four Parrott guns sent by the war department are placed outside, and the building is in charge of a custodian.

Thus a peculiar train of circumstances has combined to give Major General Wayne the distinction of having his memory honored by two graves, one at Radnor, Pa., where rests his bones, and the other at Erie, Pa., where is deposited all that remains of the flesh which once covered his mortal frame.

FEEL FOR THE CHAPERON.

The chaperon is not so much of an institution in the breezy west as she is in the east, and in some quarters there are rather hazy ideas as to her duties, and responsibilities. One western girl, the freedom of whose life had made her exceptionally independent and self-reliant, gave an excellent illustration of this at an eastern summer resort. She was under the protecting wing of an eastern matron with very strict ideas of propriety. The matron found her charge one day sitting on the hotel veranda with a strange man, and naturally she was perturbed. She took a chair reasonably near them, to give the girl a chance to present the young man, but the girl ignored her. Finally, in desperation, the matron tried to instruct the girl by signals what to do, but the latter only smiled and shook her head.

"Oh, he's from Denver," answered the girl.

"It is a chaperon's duty to decide who are proper acquaintances for a young girl," explained the matron.

"You should have presented him to me."

"I suppose so," answered the girl, nonchalantly, "but, you see, he hasn't a very good reputation, and so I thought it better you should meet him."

ought it her duty to protect the chaperon, was present when an international marriage was under discussion.

"Well," she announced decisively, "I'd never buy a husband, anyway."

"Oh, this wasn't that kind of a marriage," explained one of the other girls. "Of course, she's rich, but she didn't have to settle any part of her fortune on him. He is merely to have so much a year."

"Perhaps that's safer," admitted the westerner, without any effort to conceal her contempt, "but buying them on the installment plan always seems to me unsatisfactory and cheap."—Boston Journal.

PEN NAMES OF AUTHORS

Hundreds of people have indulged in fruitless speculation as to the reason for the choice of pen names by so many of the authors of the past and present day. Why, it has been asked, should the late Charles Kingsley's talented daughter choose to be known as Lucas Malet? According to her own confession her modesty was the motive which induced her to conceal her identity, so that any failure on her part should not dim the luster of her father's fame. For this reason she combined the names of two clever women in her family, one of whom was Miss Mary Lucas, the maiden name of her father's mother, and the other Alice Malet, her grandmother's aunt, both of which names she has thus rescued from oblivion.

With lady writers the fear of family criticism seems to have been responsible for many assumed names. Mrs. Alexander, for instance, the author of "The Woeing Out" and other delightful novels, adopted the Christian name of her husband, Alexander Hector, and under this mask won her fame before she was even aware that she had written a line, and Mme. Sarah Grand, knowing that her husband, Surgeon McCall, did not approve of her views, concealed her identity under the name now so widely known and which she chose on account of its plainness.

It is curious, by the way, how many lady authors have selected unattractive and even ugly pen names. Olive Schreiner won her laurels under the almost repellent name of Ralph Iron; Mrs. Craigie chose to be known as John Oliver Hobbes, deliberately selecting the least attractive name she could think of, so that it might not be recognized as a woman's choice and that it might warn her against yielding to womanly sentimentality in her writing, and for similar reasons Mrs. Anthony Stannard presented herself to the public as John Strange Winter, as unattractive a name as one could easily conceive.

Many writers have reduced the mystery of their names to plume to the utmost simplicity by simply using their Christian names, as: Mrs. Thomas Anstey Guthrie, who chose to be known as F. Anstey; Forbes Phillips, as Athol Forbes; Anthony Hope Hawkins, as Anthony Hope, and A. E. Hope-Moncrieff, as Ascott R. Hope.

It is curious to observe how almost invariably the pen names of lady writers are either avowedly masculine or without indication of sex, as George Eliot, Mrs. William Gray and G. M. Hutton (Mrs. Maud Caird).

Miss Ada Ellen Bayly arrived at the name Edna Lyall, now so familiar to us, by the simple process of transposing some of the letters of her own name, and Miss De La Ramer, as is known, adopted her public appellation "Ouida," which was the nearest approach a very youthful sister could make to the pronunciation of her Christian name, Louisa.

Some pen names have a distinctly humorous origin, as Luke Sharp, which suggests the obvious meaning that occurred to its owner, Robert Barr. Mostyn T. Piggot preserves his initials in the amusing form of Medium Tom Phun.

The name Mark Twain was, as is pretty generally known, suggested to Mr. Clemens by the cry of a leadman on a Mississippi boat when the lead indicated that the boat was in shallow water; Rev. John Watson arrived at Ian Maclaren by using the Gaelic form of John and adding his mother's name of Maclaren, and Max O'Reilly made a combination of his grandfather's Christian name, Maxine, and his grandmother's patronymic, O'Reilly, abbreviating Maxine O'Reilly to the familiar Max O'Reilly.

DRUGS AS AID TO CRIME

Knockout Drops Used by the Low and Cowardly Criminal—Some Other Drugs Used.

Many mysterious crimes in a great city and many puzzling circumstances are directly attributed to what is popularly known as "knockout drops." Every few days the police are called upon to look up cases of robbery in which the circumstances point either to the fact that the victim has been a consummate idiot or that drugs or drinks have robbed him temporarily of every vestige of sense.

Time after time the police are called upon to unravel mysterious robberies. The man usually turns up at the station the morning after an "ill night of it" and reports that he has been robbed of such and such a sum. Inquiries into the case show that he had gone out the night before with such and such persons and after a certain time he lost all consciousness. When he awoke in the morning he had a very bad taste in his mouth and his pockets were empty.

In many instances these cases are simply drunks. The complainants have wasted their substance in riotous living and when they have recovered their senses feel sure that they have been robbed, when in reality they have spent their money foolishly while under the influence of liquor.

Much devilry, however, is carried on under cover of "knockout drops." Drugs that have a soporific effect are carried by both men and women of the tough class and many a man has been relieved of a fine fat wad of money through the influence of a drug that has been administered in his beer or other drink. The police are continually running up against cases of this sort.

CALL ON DRUGGIST FOR AID.

The most unscrupulous and the most cowardly criminal is the one who calls upon the druggist to aid him in his nefarious business. There are many drug stores, especially in the "leaves" district, where there is frequent call for morphine and for chloral hydrate. The former is easily soluble in any liquid and is very powerful and quick in its action. The only trouble with morphine is that it is dangerous. An overdose is fatal and it is an easy matter to administer too much. Fatal results are not sought by this species of cowardly criminal. Death results in rigid investigation and the penitentiary awaits the detected criminal.

Chloral hydrate, on the other hand, is easily administered in beer or whiskey, and while it is not so powerful nor so rapid in its effects still it is effective in many cases. This drug has a pungent taste and a rather pronounced odor. It is usually obtained in a saturated solution and not used until the victim is pretty well intoxicated, so the taste will not be perceptible.

Its effect is soporific. The person who has been drugged by it usually feels a dizziness come over him. A few minutes later it is all up with him and a person could rob him with impunity. Said one druggist:

"I have calls for chloral hydrate every little while, but I will not sell it. I know what it is to be used for. I think a druggist who sells it to any but physicians should have his license revoked."

"I have known where a big price was offered for a bottle of the drug. In fact, not long ago a man came to my store and offered me $10 for a small amount of the drug. He wanted, so I ascertained, to use it on a party of men in his room. They were playing poker and he wanted to skin the whole gang. I refused to sell it and ordered him out of the store."

MISCREANTS USE DRUGS.

Lecherous brutes put knockout drops to the most dastardly use. Many a young girl, giddy, but not wicked, can trace her ruin to the use of one of the other drugs used by the criminal class to aid them in their crimes.

A favorite method is that of placing the stuff in candy. If the girl may be induced to drink wine the drug is administered in that manner. Helpless, under the soporific influence of the medicines, the girl falls an easy prey to the cowardly brute who would take so mean an advantage, and many a career of shame has been begun through the administration of one or the other of these criminal drugs.

Not long since two women on the northside robbed a man of considerable money through the use of some drug. They, however, gave him an overdose and he died from the effects. The women became frightened after they found he did not revive and fled, leaving him sitting in an unconscious condition.

Elderly men from the rural districts, who come to town with a little roll of bills and want to see the seamy side of the great city are often the victims of the knockout users. The bewhiskered victims fall an easy prey to pretty women and the rest is easy. A few cold bottles and a few hot bags and a little of the drug and the older men are left in a state of unconsciousness.

The police aver that there is not nearly as much of this sort of business going on as is reported. They say people have an idea that it is an easy matter to work that sort of game, when in reality it takes some dexterity and some nerve to carry out such a scheme.

In the first place, the criminal must take care that his victim does not taste the drug or suspect what is being done or a scene is likely to follow and arrests be made. There is also the danger of death resulting and this deters many from trying the risky game.

Gamblers resent the imputation that drugs are used about the card table, yet druggists aver they know gamblers often use drugs to help in their games. The fact that habitual gamblers call for these things is evidence conclusive in the druggist's mind that they use them to help in skinning their victims.

THE PRESIDENT'S YACHT

No president of the United States has ever enjoyed such luxury as falls to the lot of Mr. Roosevelt. For his summer's outing he has one of the most luxurious yachts in the world—a vessel which cost its original owner, Ogden Goelet, of New York, a round $800,000. Mr. Goelet's widow sold it to Uncle Sam for $450,000 when the war with Spain broke out, and that is how the ship happens to be at the disposal of the chief executive at the present time. Mr. Roosevelt has always been well-to-do—he inherited about $50,000 and his wife had some money of her own—but never up to now has he been able to live as rich folks do. A steam yacht must have been beyond his wildest dreams. Nevertheless, thanks to one of Dame Fortune's most surprising upsets, he finds himself provided this summer with one of the handsomest pleasure crafts in existence. Not even the royal yachts of the king of England and the emperor of Germany are more elegantly and completely equipped.

Fifty thousand dollars have been spent recently on the Mayflower, and everything about her is of the latest and up-to-date pattern. Having been built for a multimillionaire, she is a miracle of luxurious convenience. Aft, on the main deck, is the spacious dining room of the president extending clear across the ship, and adjoining it is a reception room.

Immediately beneath, on the deck below, is a superb suite of staterooms, the two largest of which are occupied respectively by Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and by Miss Alice Roosevelt. There are four smaller rooms, allotted to the children when the family is on board, and two bathrooms, with silver-plated pipes and fittings. In each bathroom is a tub cut out of a single block of white marble and long enough to lie down in.

In short, the Mayflower, which has been newly adopted as the president's yacht par excellence, is literally a floating palace. The very walls of the dining room and the reception room are paneled with exquisite flowered silk, while the little corridor connecting these two apartments is adorned with panels of costly lace, which is painted in a curious fashion with silver paint, so as to convert it seemingly into so much delicate metal work.

There is also a library on the main deck next to the reception room, and in the forward part of the ship is a refrigerating room, with a wine room attached. Nothing imaginable that could contribute to comfort has been omitted. Withal, the vessel is of convenient size, being 321 feet long, with a displacement of 2,090 tons. She is driven by triple expansion engines and is armed with six-pounder and one-pounder guns.

ACCEPTED FRIEND'S OFFER.

School teachers are credited with greater absent-mindedness than almost any other class. Some of the stories related of their failings in this respect are doubtless true; others are of doubtful authenticity. This one, however, is vouched for as strictly adhering to the facts:

A professor in one of the Swedish universities, having finished his labors for the day, was about to start home when a fellow professor called his attention to the violent storm raging outside, and said: "Why go home? Better remain at the college tonight."

He walked over to the window and surveyed the situation. "Yes, I think I will," he replied, nonchalantly, an all-absorbing topic of the classroom yet in mind.

Soon afterward he was missing, and it was supposed that he had changed his mind and gone home, but later he reappeared with a bundle under his arm and showing evidences of having been exposed to the storm. Something was said regarding his errand.

"Why," he replied, "I've been home after my nightshirt."

MAN-EATERS

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)

There was one spot within the boundaries of the United States, and only one, of which we have authentic account, where man-eating people dwelt, and that dark spot was found within the geographical limits of what is now the states of Indiana and Illinois, where, prior to the beginning of the last century, was found a society of savages belonging to the Tawitwies (Miami), known as the "man-eaters"—those who feasted upon the remains of prisoners of war that were burned at the stake.

Sixty years ago the writer was a resident of Fort Wayne, Ind., near which place the remnant of the Miami tribe of Indians were living upon their reservation. Fort Wayne was the principal trading point, and had been the seat of government, so to speak, of the Miami from time immemorial. Here also lived many Canadians, retired French traders and aged voyagers, from whom the writer obtained a fund of information regarding that powerful and influential confederation of Indians. One of the most interesting facts that I had investigated was the change that prior to the beginning of the last century there existed a society of savages among the Miami known as the man-eaters—those that feasted upon the bodies of prisoners of war burned at the stake.

During the time that I resided in Fort Wayne I had seen frequently a very old, shriveled up squaw, a repulsive looking creature, who, it was said, was descended from the family of man-eaters.

I remember one Sabbath afternoon in the month of September, 1836, of taking a stroll with my aged friend, Jean Baptiste Bruno, the old Indian trader, who was, then in his eightieth year, hale and active. We had reached a beautiful spot—a small grove that skirted the bank of the St. Joseph river, about a mile above the town. Seated upon a log on the elevated bank of the stream, the gave me a thrilling description of the terrible defeat of Gen. Harmar at this very spot in 1791. He was an eyewitness of that engagement, so sanguinary and disastrous in its results. While talking a canoe with several Indians in it was passing down the stream. On discovering Bruno the boat was headed for the shore and landed at our feet. I recognized at once that same disgusting old hag of a squaw as one of the party. After a short talk with Bruno the boat turned into the stream again and passed on to the town.

I told my companion of the oft-repeated story I had heard regarding this woman. He said that it was true; that he had known her for forty years; that she was the only daughter of "White Skin," the last head of the family of man-eaters. "I knew her father," continued Bruno, "when I first came to this part of the country to trade with the Indians in 1770. White Skin at that time was said to be 100 years old, and no doubt it was true; yet he was an active, industrious man, possessed of a very retentive memory. The family, during the time I knew them, consisted of the old man, an aged son and this daughter. They resided on Red River, a few miles west of the Turtle village, the home of the great war chief of the Miami, Little Turtle, and about thirty-five miles northwest of Fort Wayne. They were known far and near as the man-eating family. They had no friends that I knew of, with one exception, and that was Father Badden, a French missionary. He frequently visited them and helped them when they were in want. They lived very secluded lives. The Indians seemed to shun them.

"The old man and his family manufactured buckskins—were tanners or dressers of deerskins. They excelled in that business. For a number of years I traded with them, purchasing their skins for the Detroit market, where I found a ready sale for them. It was in this way that I became intimately acquainted with the family. I generally went to their camp to make my purchases, and often had to remain over night at their hut, but I never partook of my meals with them, for they were too filthy in their manner of living and were too fond of dog meat to suit me, although I had often from necessity eaten dog meat; but it was prepared in a different manner from the way they served it.

"I found the old man had no reluctance to talk with me about the man-eating charge. I had gained his entire confidence. Having heard so much about this terrible organization when a boy living in Montreal, Canada, I remembered that I dreamed to have my father leave home to go among the Miami. He was a trader at this point before I was born. I took his place.

PASSED STATE BANK BILL
YOUNG MAN HELD UNDER BOND FOR SWINDLING.

A Valueless Ten-Dollar Note Given at a Saloon—General News of the Police.

Usford Allen, a young man born and raised in this city, was bound over to the circuit court this morning by Judge Dreihelms in the sum of $500 on the serious charge of larceny and obtaining money under false pretense.

Several weeks ago young Allen went into the saloon of Mrs. T. E. Fricke, on Chicago street, and bought three bottles of beer, and paid for which he offered a ten dollar bill. The bill was an old state bank issue and was upon the bank of New Brunswick, New Jersey, and was issued in 1864. Mrs. Fricke regarded the bill suspiciously, but was assured by her customer that it was all right; that he was an employee on the sewer and had just received it in payment. Thereupon she gave him $0.75 in change and the man, the change and the three bottles of beer went out through the front door. Some days later her son informed her that the bill was worthless and the matter was reported to the police, who kept the affair under cover until they could identify the man who passed the bill, he being unknown personally, to the landlady. Last evening he was pointed out to Detective Colling and the arrest of the young man followed. Last evening the young man's father appeared at the police court and represented that the passage of the bill was a mistake and offered to make restitution if the boy was discharged. He was informed that the matter was then in the hands of the authorities and that nothing in the way of release was doing. This morning young Allen pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was conclusive and he was bound over in the sum of $500. Today his father and Attorney A. H. Ridinger are trying to arrange a bond.

GOT A STIFF SENTENCE.
Gottlieb Weber, a young fellow dressed in a blue jumper and overalls, was arraigned on a charge of burgling stolen goods into the state. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, to which was added a jail sentence of 120 days. Weber was arrested yesterday at Woodburn by Special Deputy Sheriff Miller, to whom he had sold a set of harness for $1. Weber admits the theft but says he does not know from whom he stole the harness. He says he worked for a man in Ohio, just across the line from Woodburn for several days, but never knew the name of the man. Night before last the farmer paid him off and the next morning he got up early and started for Woodburn, stopping first at the barn and appropriating the harness. The reason the owner is not known is probably because he has not yet discovered that his harness is missing.

POLICE NOTES.
The patrol wagon was called last evening to take B. F. Ault, of 425 Fairmont place, to St. Joseph's hospital. He is seriously ill, probably from typhoid fever.

A. W. Scott, of 1620 East Wayne street, reported to the police that a sneak thief had entered the house last Thursday evening and stolen a pocketbook containing $5. The family was in the back yard enjoying the evening breeze and the purse had been left lying on the dining room table. The front door was open and entrance was easy. The police have no clue to the thief.

Ed Kline, the high and chief up-skillion of the Moochers and the principal solum of the Temple stage, had an exciting experience last night. He lives at the corner of Murray and Clinton street, and about 8 o'clock thought he discovered a burglar in his house. He was afraid the man might lose something and gave chase, but the fellow got away in the darkness and escaped across the railroad tracks. Mr. Kline says he knew the burglar couldn't find anything and had ought to have known better than to waste his time trying to burglarize his house.

Street car No. 316 ran into a Rock and truck last evening at the corner of Wayne and Calhoun streets. One of the horses was knocked down, but no serious damage was done.

Russell Quantance, a lad of 13, ran away from his home at Bucyrus, Ohio, yesterday and his father, thinks he will show up in Fort Wayne. The police department has been furnished with a description and is requested to detain the boy if found.

COL. HOGELAND HERE.
Col. Alexander Hogeland, boy and girl reformer, the newboys' friend and father of the curfew, who is touring the leading cities of the country establishing the curfew and urging the adoption of other municipal regulations in behalf of youth, came to the city last evening from Terre Haute, and will address the newboys and oldies at Clinton and Berry streets at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow.

Colonel Hogeland is an authority on methods for non-building, child-saving and crime-reducing. Colonel Hogeland has appeared in Fort Wayne on previous occasions, and is a most entertaining and instructive speaker. He will in all probability speak in some of the churches tomorrow.

WILL MEET IN TERRE HAUTE
CATHOLIC KNIGHTS TO HOLD CONVENTION.
Fort Wayne Delegates Leave Tomorrow—Patrick Ryan, of This City, State President.

Tomorrow evening the delegates to the bi-annual conference of the Catholic Knights of America, from this city and adjacent portions of the Fort Wayne diocese, will leave for Terre Haute, where the regular business session will be opened on Tuesday morning.

On Monday, the committee on laws will hold an important meeting and it is for the purpose of getting the views of the delegates generally on some important matters to come before that committee that most of the delegates will be in Terre Haute a day or two before the date of the session.

Patrick Ryan, of this city, the old veteran in about everything that pertains to the army, the navy, Catholicism, Hibernian orders and things in general, a man respected by all who know him and loved by all who know him better, is the state president of the state organization and will leave tomorrow evening, via the Wabash.

Mr. Ryan has been a member of the C. K. of A. for nearly 30 years and has never missed a state convention. Besides the state president, Mr. Ryan, the following named delegates from the various branches in this city will leave tomorrow night: Joseph V. Fox, John H. Welch, John K. Woulfe, J. J. Bonamy, John F. James J. Lauer, all delegates from Branch 103, representing the cathedral congregation; Joseph J. Freiburger, representing Branch 737, of St. Peter's congregation; Henry Aulger, representing Branch 595, of St. Mary's congregation; Mr. Schmitt, representing Branch 827, of the Church of the Precious Blood and H. H. Schaeffer, representing the church at New Haven. E. L. Gallagher, of Columbus City, who by the way is the sheriff of Whitely county, will join the Fort Wayne delegates here as representative of the congregation and order of his city and Henry J. T. Lers, of Avilla, E. J. Sefer, of Ganett, and a delegate from Kendallville, whose name President Ryan did not recall, will also be here to join the Fort Wayne party. Leaders have been sent to the branches along the line between the city and Danville, noting the time of the arrival of the train at the several cities, and inviting the delegates to join the others on the train and go into Terre Haute in a body.

Among the most important occurrences that will be presented to the convention and which will first be a subject of consideration for the committee on laws, will be a proposition to reduce the sessions of the state conference from two to four years, and the other will be an amendment to the constitution and by-laws, which will provide that members who have been in good standing for ten consecutive years shall not lose their rights from non-payment of dues and assessments, when such failure to pay is caused by sickness, distress or lack of employment; the proposition is to get a permit from the supreme council to allow each branch to take care of its own indigent members in any way that it sees fit. City Comptroller Fox is a member of the committee on laws and with him are associated Judge Edward D. Beardon, of Anderson, who is chairman; Henry Schaefer, of Vincennes; John B. Murphy, of Jeffersonville, and Sheriff Ed L. Gallagher, of Columbus City. State President Ryan says that the committee on laws is the most representative committee ever seen in the organization.

We got ready and returned with the messenger. On reaching the village I found the old woman very sick in her wigwam, unable to take part in the exercises, and I had to do it all myself. The prisoner was a young white man, and I was glad of it, for I disliked to eat the flesh of my own race, but had no objection to eating our then greatest enemy—the white man. There were not many Indians in attendance; they were on their big hunt. Everything passed off with much satisfaction. About the usual number of invited guests participated in the feast with us. At the request of the old woman I took her a piece of the cooked flesh, which she ate with an apparent relish. She died the next day. This left me the only representative of the great order of man-eaters. But never since that day has there been a sacrifice of life at which human flesh was eaten, conducted by the society of man-eaters.

"The place where these Ojibwa festivals were held," said Mr. Bruno, "was where is now located the town of Chicago and not a great way from the place where the bloody massacre of Fort Dearborn occurred in 1812, where my friend and neighbor, the brave Captain Wells, was killed by the treacherous Pottawatomies, the meanest and most detestable tribe of Indians in the northwest."

Louis Hennepin, a French missionary, one of the first to visit the region of the Illinois and Wabash rivers, in a letter to a friend, a Catholic priest residing in Montreal, dated November, 1684, says:

"When on my way, in the month of June last, to the Ouabache (Wabash) river I came upon a large assembly of savages (Twightwees) engaged in burning a prisoner at the stake—an Indian belonging to a tribe with whom they were at war. When I arrived on the scene the fierce flames were already wrapped about the victim, then in the throes of death. The savages danced around the fire, and in a state of frenzy brandished their war clubs, accompanied with demoniacal shouts and contortions. In sorrow and disgust I withdrew a short distance to wait until the excitement should subside, that I might expostulate with the savages against the horrible custom. On returning to the place of execution my senses were appalled upon beholding a number of the savages—men, women and children—seated in a circle around the smouldering fire, engaged in devouring the remains of the dead savage. While this horrid feast was going on a perfect silence prevailed—the savages seemed awe-stricken. I turned from the sickening sight, and on my knees besought our Heavenly Father to assist me to open the eyes of these poor, benighted creatures to the enormity of the heinous crime, that it might never again be repeated."

The missionary Brebeuf, belonging to a mission on the shores of Lake Huron, was sent to the Ojibwa village, at the head of the Miami (Maumee) river, and by the performance of kindly offices secured the confidence and affection of the Indians of that locality. From a report of his missionary work performed in this section, filed in the church archives of Montreal, Canada, the following statement is taken:

"The Twightwees are very cruel in the treatment of their prisoners of war. They generally burn them at the stake, and frequently feast on the cooked flesh of the unfortunate victims. Those who engage in eating human flesh belong to a select number of the tribe, known as the man-eaters. So fond do they become of human flesh that no doubt they secretly commit murder to satisfy this dreadful desire."

Maj. Thomas Forsyth, who lived for a quarter of a century among the Sauks and Fox Indians, in 1820, in a written account of these two tribes, published for the first time in "Drake's Life of Black Hawk," wrote that "these Indians, the Twightwees (Miami) are said to have been very cruel to their prisoners, often burning them. I have heard of a certain family among the Miami who were called man-eaters, as they were accustomed to make a feast of human flesh when a prisoner was killed. For these enormities the Sauks and Foxes, when they took any of the Twightwees prisoners, gave them to their women to be buffeted to death."

And we have the following statements from Gen. Lewis Cass regarding this matter. He was, no doubt, more conversant with the history and traditions of the Indian tribes of the northwest than any person living in his time. In the great oration delivered by him at Fort Wayne, Ind., July 4, 1843, on the occasion of the opening to traffic of the Wabash and Erie canal, he said:

"For many years during the frontier history of this place and region the line of your canal was a bloody warpath, which has seen many a deed of horror. And this peaceful town has had its Moloch, and the records of human depravity furnished no more terrible examples of cruelty than were offered at this shrine. The Miami Indians, our predecessors in the occupation of this district, had a terrible institution, whose origin and object have been lost in the darkness of aboriginal history, but whose orgies were held upon the very spot where we are gathered. It was the duty of its associates to eat such prisoners as were preserved and delivered to them for that purpose. The members of this society belonged to a particular family, and the dreadful inheritance descended to all the children, male and female. The duties imposed could not be avoided, and the sanction of religion was added to the obligations of immemorial usage. The feast was a solemn ceremony, at which the whole tribe was collected as actors or spectators. The miserable victim was bound at a stake and burned at a slow fire, with all the refinements of cruelty which savage ingenuity could invent.

"Here, where we are now assembled in peace and security, celebrating the triumph of art and industry, within the memory of the present generation our countrymen have thus been tortured and murdered and devoured. But, thank God, that council fire is extinguished. The infamous feast is over; the war dance is ended; the war song is unsung; the war drum is silent, and the Indian has departed to find, I hope, in the distant west, a comfortable residence; and, I hope also, to find, under the protection and, if need be, under the power of the United States, a radical change in the institutions and general improvement in his morals and condition."

PLAY SYSTEMS AT CARDS.

In gambling one thing is certain, and that is the very large percentage is in favor of the bank or the game. Caprice is the only law of chance. And the results are as fanciful as they are unanticipated. One summer—the last of John Morrissey's life—a party from Washington were making merry in the wine-room of the club house in Saratoga, among whom was a youthful attaché of the French embassy. Without remark this attaché suddenly rose, entered the playroom, and going to a roulette table tossed a $100 bill on ten, black. The dealer politely informed him that he had exceeded the limit. The attaché was insistent. Morrissey, sauntering up, nodded to the dealer to let it go. It won. Refusing to accept odds, the attaché gathered in his winnings and rejoined his friends. Half an hour later he did the same thing and was again successful. At frequent intervals he repeated his trips, invariably winning, never once losing until he had won $17,500, when his friends carried him off. As he left Morrissey remarked to a friend: "I never take the limit off that the bank doesn't lose." Nevertheless there was a profit on the night's play for the bank.

Only last summer a theorist watched for several successive nights the roulette game at Saratoga and conceived a system.

Seeking the proprietor he preferred his request.

"Got a system?" asked the proprietor with a smile.

"All right, then, I'll take the limit off for you."

Now, this great system consisted of playing red or black, no numbers, and doubling every loss and repeating the winning bet. Thus, if he chose red to play, he bet $1. Losing he bet $2; losing this he bet $4. If red then came up he would win $4, being one ahead, and repeating his $4 bet if red followed he would be $5 ahead. This successive turn up of the color he bet on he had calculated, based on his observations, would occur fifty times in 100 and make his winnings, for he would change his color every time he went back to his initial bet. On the night of his experiment he chose red to begin on and black won. More than that, black turned up seventeen consecutive times. On his tenth play he weakened, for two things broke on his mind: First, that if he did win that bet his profit would be only $1, and that if the run continued he would need the capital of a bank to play. He was out as it was $1,023. Fortunately for him he was a man of wealth.

If he had continued to double to the seventeenth bet he would have been $131,071 out. On the eighteenth turn red came up and his bet would necessarily have been $131,072 when his net winning would have been a single dollar. The next turn was black. So out of nineteen turns eighteen were black. His system had gone to pieces on the first application. Yet after he stopped the run of color was about as he had counted on for an hour. "It has cost me $1,023 to realize that there is nothing but caprice at the bottom of chance," was his comment.

"The system players," said a well known gambler, "are a great source of revenue to the games. A lucky win by one of them sends in others in greater number. The player who knows nothing about the theories but gambles purely on chance placings more often wins the big money. But even there the bank wins 97 times out of 100." The dope-book sends get their money on the wrong horse 99 times out of 100.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Phenomenal Frequency of Mysterious Disappearances—Some Recent Instances.

(Baltimore Sun.)

The discovery of Charles H. Newhouse, of Culpeper, Va., in South Africa, is not an uncommon sequel to mysterious "disappearances." Young Mr. Newhouse, who is a son of a member of the Virginia legislature and a man of political and social prominence in his county, came to Baltimore on the 23d of last December to sell two car loads of cattle. He sold his cattle the next afternoon, took dinner at a restaurant with some friends and then went to the theater. After the play Mr. Newhouse left his companions at the corner of Baltimore and Howard streets, telling them that he was going back to the Howard house, where he was staying. This was 12:15 o'clock Christmas morning. He did not return to the hotel, and that parting at the street corner was the last anyone saw of him or heard of him until his mother received a letter from him the other day telling her he was in Cape Town.

The failure of the young man to return to his home when he was expected caused uneasiness to his parents and inquiries were sent to this city. The people at the hotel knew nothing about him and it was believed that he had no intention of leaving the city, as his baggage was left in his room.

SEARCH WAS UNAVAILING.

The father came on a number of times, the police made a most careful search, large rewards were offered and pictures of the lost man were distributed far and wide. But nothing could be heard of him. If he had dissolved into thin air his disappearance could not have been more sudden and complete. It was known that he had a large sum of money on his person and was a man of regular habits. His father and friends finally concluded that he had been murdered and his body destroyed or effectively concealed, and he was given up for dead. Now comes the happy explanation of young Newhouse's disappearance. He had gone to South Africa without announcing his intention to do so.

The headline "Mysterious Disappearance" is not an unusual one in the daily newspapers. As a rule there is nothing mysterious about it, and in nine cases out of ten the so-called mystery is cleared up in a day or two by the reappearance of the lost man with some commonplace explanation of his absence. He may have been called away suddenly on business without having had time to communicate with his family and his family may have become unreasonably alarmed. In many instances the mysterious disappearance is due to a somewhat prolonged and seclusive drunk. In some cases the unexplained absence is prolonged and is due to a careless and selfish disregard for the feelings of others. Men upon a sudden impulse leave their homes without notifying their friends and finally reappear as if nothing had happened. Sometimes there is a crime to explain the disappearance. But now and then there are disappearances caused by mysteries which no man can fathom, the strange operations of the human mind and the mysterious maladies to which it is sometimes subject.

ROMANCE OF CHARLES.

On the 17th of last May a man died in a sanitarium in Los Angeles, Cal., having in his possession the great sum of $142,000 in cash. Nothing was known about the man except that he gave his name as Charles Hill. An administrator of the estate was appointed and he set to work to find out who Charles Hill was, where he came from and who he was entitled to his money. It seems that the man had disappeared from among his friends. No one knew anything about him and no claimants for the money came forward. This week the mystery has been cleared up and by an accident. The administrator found among the effects of the dead man an old Bible and on the flyleaf there was what appeared to be an illegible inscription. Under the magnifying glass the word "Charles" and "Brim," Mass., appeared. The administrator went to Brimfield, Mass., and there found that the man's name was Salem Charles, that he was a native of that town and that in it he had numerous relatives who are entitled to the estate. No reason for the change of name or for the disappearance has been discovered.

In the first week of January, this year, a man walking one day down a street in Victoria, B. C., suddenly stopped as if he had received a shock. He put his hand to his forehead, and, feeling dizzy, went into a doctor's office. After receiving restoratives he told the doctor that his name was Franklin Strong, of Aberdeen, Mass. "I am a lawyer," he said, "and yesterday was trying a case in court there, defending an old lady who had been unjustly accused of stealing money. As I was leaving the court house I felt badly, but where am I now, and how in the world did I get here? I can remember home from the court house." Being asked the date of the trial he answered, "Aug. 26, 1898."

SPECIES OF MENTAL DISORDER.

He said he had a wife and two children in Aberdeen, from whom he had mysteriously disappeared three and a half years before. Those three and a half years had been blotted absolutely from his mind and memory and he knew of nothing that had occurred since Aug. 26, 1898.

The more usual form of this mental disorder is that described in Charles Reade's novel, "Haid Cash," and cases of that kind are not unusual. A man suddenly loses his recollection of all past events. Not long ago a stranger appeared in a New England town. He was perfectly sane and rational, but he could not tell his name nor where he came from. As to all events which occurred before he found himself in the streets of that town his mind was a blank and of them he had no recollection. He assumed a name and went into business, at which he was successful. Later on some incident recalled his past and he was restored to his family, from whom he had mysteriously disappeared. There are now and then cases like this, and one or two have occurred in this city. Sometimes those who disappear have been murdered, but the dead body is, as a rule, speedily recovered. It seems to be as difficult now to successfully dispose of a dead body as Eugene Aram found it in his dream or as Dr. Webster found it in reality.

"I had diabetes in its worst form," writes Marion Lee, of Dunreath, Ind. "I tried eight physicians without relief. Only three bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure made me a well man." Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Fellens & Polster.

DEATH LURKS IN THE KISS.

Since the kiss of Judas there have been many instances where that token of affection has resulted in death. Perhaps the most fatal kiss ever known was that given by a young Spanish sailor to his fiancée nine years ago, for it brought about the decimation of a town. A Spanish vessel put into the little seaport of Candelo, on the coast of Florida, flying the yellow flag, and was accordingly ordered to remain in quarantine, for more than one member of the crew exhibited symptoms of bubonic plague.

But the sailor disobeyed orders and put off in a boat for the shore one evening, where, having sought out his fiancée, whom he had not seen for some years, he kissed her. A few days later the effects of the kiss became painfully evident, though the culprit returned to his ship by stealth the same night. The girl succumbed to the plague, which spread through the town so rapidly that more than 200 persons died out of a total population of 1,500.

Kisses once cost the lives of many brave soldiers in the British army. The beautiful duchess of Gordon in 1794 raised the famous Gordon Highlanders by giving 1,000 recruits a kiss and a golden guinea apiece. The regiment was raised to its full strength in a few days.

The men were then sent out against the French and in the very first battle in which they took part more than 250 fell, either killed or wounded.

Previous to this, in 1715, a war was brought about by a thoughtless kiss on the part of a young Bavarian prince of somewhat reckless character, named Ferdinand. During a visit to a neighboring state he inadvertently kissed a beautiful member of the royal household, Princess Thyra, ignorant of the fact that she was already affianced. Her betrothed happened to be standing near and witnessed the incident.

High words ensued, followed by blows, and a duel was arranged which led to the discontinuance of diplomatic relations between the two nations. A war broke out ultimately and resulted in thousands of deaths before there was a declaration of peace.

Before a burglar could tunnel into the money vaults of the Philadelphia mint he would have to pierce a solid rock so full of veins of water that the smallest opening is immediately flooded. The gold vaults are of steel seven inches thick, and the silver is protected by one inch of steel.

IT NEEDS A TONIC.

There are times when your liver needs a tonic. Don't give purgatives that gripe and weaken. DeWitt's Little Early Risers expel all poison from the system and act as tonic to the liver. W. Scott, 531 Highland ave., Milton, Pa., says: "I have carried DeWitt's Little Early Risers with me for several years and would not be without them." Small and easy to take. Purely vegetable. Timely Gossip of Three Popular Pastimes

As in the game of golf, so in polo, the boys are in the ascendancy, and soon the veterans must give place to the proficient youngsters. The young Goulds are rapidly becoming such experts that Foxhall Keene will have to look to his plus, mark handicap or he will find he is being outclassed. The Gould boys are 13 and 14 years old. It is said that their mother recently, in watching their reckless yet brilliant work on the polo field, shuddered to think of the consequences of a fall or collision, and subsequently urged the lads to eschew such rough and dangerous sport. But when Mr. Gould and his sons and Mr. Nicoll attracted a great throng at Van Cortlandt park in the match with the crack Squadron A soldier team, and won a hard fought game from the soldiers, the old American love of outdoor sports and dashing recklessness overcame her motherly instinct to shield her boys from possible dangers. She withdrew her expostulations, and the lads play the game every evening with their father, who, like that other disciple of the strenuous, President Roosevelt, loves to have a troop of the "young 'un" following after him as the ponies go dashing across the sward.

It was recently while Kreigh⁶ Collins, the former western tennis champion, who seemed almost as invincible in his class as was Bob Wren before the latter became a rough rider and got the fever in Cuba, was being

NOVELTIES IN GOLF CLUBS

"These aluminium clubs began to get their vogue in the west when the young college players, who had learned to use them while in the east, brought home their bags full of golf paraphernalia," remarked an old golfer. "I was rather dubious about their use, and thought they were a 'fad' until the national championship came, when I saw so many of the players using aluminium. Alec Smith, a promising candidate for the championship (open), which he threw away last year after having Willie Anderson beaten for the premier trophy, swears by the aluminium, and showed by his score of 75 the first time he went around the Glenview golf course that he knew how to use the spoon for approaching. He was deadly with the aluminium clubs, and says that with a hard blow he can elevate a ball from a poortle enough to clear the biggest tree on his course, even if he is very close up to the tree. If looks as if the day of the polished creak, the bright mid-iron, the pretty hand-forged mashie and the grained putter had passed and the time for aluminium had arrived."

AN AMERICAN CIRCUS IN BORDEAUX

When Barnum & Bailey's circus pitched its tents in Bordeaux, France, recently, the canvas was erected in the Place des Quinconces, in the very heart of the city and the principal public square and show place of Bordeaux. That a private enterprise of this kind should be given the use of a public park is surprising to Americans, who relegate such shows to vacant lots. A circus in Madison Square park, New York, or on Boston Common would almost be cause for a riot.

REFUSED TO GRANT A LOAN

A well known business man was standing at an F street corner talking with a friend the other afternoon, when a seedy looking chap, with a blotched countenance and a whining voice, approached and tackled the business man for the loan of a dollar. The business man gruffly declined the shabby chap's appeal and told him to be on his way in a canter.

This rather puzzled the companion of the business man, who knew the latter was of an extremely charitable and open-handed disposition—a man who rarely resisted the appeal of the commonest street beggar and who made it a point never to turn down an appeal for financial aid from unfortunate friends of former days.

"You no doubt think it odd that I sent that fellow, whom you could scarcely know me by my first name, on his way with such suddenness and asperity. So I might as well put you right in the matter. That fellow is the only man in the world that I actually hate and despise and I marvel at his gall for bracing me up for as much as a whoestraining. And I'll tell you why I despise him. We two are of exactly the same age and we were brought up together in this town in the same neighborhood. He was the model of the neighborhood. I was the hoodlum of the neighborhood. And that boy was thrown up on me morning, noon and night. I never did anything absolutely vicious or wrong, but I was simply a tough kid, at the head of all the boyish devilry going on and never out of mischief.

"That fellow was a marvel of all that was goody-goody in a boy. He never got into mischief. He never got in trouble with his folks. He was the 'whole thing' as to tidiness, punctuality at school, lesson-learning and all that sort of thing. So, of course, he was thrown at my head constantly. My mother and all of my sisters every time I got into some sort of a scrape that required a whaling would wind it all 'up by asking me why I couldn't be like little So-and-So, naming that fellow." "Naturally I grew to hate him. I couldn't help hating him. I longed to kick the daylights out of him, but I was solemnly assured that if I ever did so I would be put in a reform school and that scared me. But I worked up and went to bed hating that mode-

"Well, now he's a booze bum and he braces me on the public street for a dollar. Time is a pretty hot old boy, isn't he? But I'd rather give all the money I have on earth to build a mormon church, than ever hand that ex-model boy one cent."—Washington Post.

FIRST TRUST IN HISTORY

The trust is not as new a thing as most people imagine. They have existed ever since the necessities of man created commerce. The earliest form of trust that ever existed was undoubtedly the cornering of foodstuffs by monarchs and their agents. Accounts of such transactions are to be found in Assyrian records dating back 7,000 or 8,000 years, and the Bible describes a very large operation of this kind carried out by Joseph, when out of the wealth of the seven fat years he provided for the poverty of the seven lean ones.

The Romans did the same thing through their tax farmers, who laid embargoes on the food supplies of the provinces against arrears of taxes; and the probability is that similar operations were also conducted with regard to manufactures.

Another form of monopolies, known as trade-guilds, has existed from the very early times, and these in the middle ages amounted practically to the cornering of certain arts and industries, as well as means of distribution. The greatest of them was the famous league of the Hansa towns.

So close a "combine" was this that it possessed its own fleets of armed merchantmen and even armies of mercenaries in order to guard its monopoly—a length to which not even American capitalists have yet ventured to proceed.

HAD A CHOICE OF WORDS

A few weeks ago a resident of Chicago, being on a visit to Columbus, Ohio, called upon an old friend, the chief physician of the insane asylum

there, and was shown through the institution by the physician and the superintendent, who told him many interesting anecdotes about the various inmates. One, an Irishman from Steuvenville, that state, had been brought to the asylum at a time when it was filled almost to its capacity, and the superintendent, turning to one of the physicians, had asked:

"Doctor, what ward would we better put this new man into?"

MARVELOUS DEVELOPME

A Century's Wonderful Evolution in Fruits and Flowers—What Has Been Done.

(David Fairley St. Clair in Success.)
If the farmers and gardeners among the 80 million people who now inhabit this country should plant this year only seed of the quality that their great-grandfathers planted a century ago, the United States would not export grain, cotton, beef or fruit; but, instead, there would be a famine in the land.

A century ago most of the seeds used by American farmers were brought here from Europe, but by themselves they would not grow here with results equal to those attained in their native soil. Crossed with our indigenous plants, fruits and grains, in the infancy of their cultivation, our apples held on to the bitterness of the wild crab, our grapes continued sour, our pears were juiceless and our peaches retained their pungent acidity.

Our native maize, being little removed from the wild state, and having no possible cross from abroad, yielded little grain and much cob, and our cotton ran to stalk and seed without a desirable staple. The wild strawberries and blackberries whose lucidly cultivated progeny now satisfies the universal palate were then the forgotten children of the fields and hedges. Many of the flowers of field and wood whose lovely children and granddaughters thrive in the hot noxious of metropolitan forests, lifted their pale hues to the unheeding glances of the retreating red men and sent feeble fragrances into the unconscious nostrils of the man hunter.

Apples, grapes, Indian corn and many cultivated fruits and vegetables were found here, either in the wild state or grown by the red men and we have some slight knowledge of what these wild plants were like. We know what the wild crab apple, one of the parents of many of our best apples now, was and is, the product of a tree overgrown in wood and as much at home in the forest or hedge as in the orchard. The fruit was always small, ill formed, bitter and warm eaten, but the frontiersman encouraged this wild tree to grow in his yard and soon it began to show the result of his care. Near it stood a tree brought from Europe.

The imported tree was feeble; its fruit failed to ripen, and was faulty. It was not acclimated. It needed as much the vigor of the wild crab apple as did the latter the European form and pulp and sugar in its fruit and a riddance of its burden of seeds.

The native and imported fruits were crossed, and by long and tedious care in selection and crossing with thousands of varieties, we now grow the finest apples in the world. The Rhode Island Greening, with its many modifications, has long been a favorite for its pleasant acidity and its excellent keeping qualities. For a century, too, the Baldwin and the Newtown pippin, both chance results, have added glory to the apple crop of New England. In the flesh and blood of these magnificent fruits are doubtless the vigor, tenacity and endurance of their ancestor, the wild crab, which graced the yards of the Pilgrim Fathers. These famous apples, no less than the man and ance and health, was the chance discovery in 1840, of Ephraim Balch near Concord, Mass. It certainly has been in the vigor of the New England climate and the keeping quality of New England granite. Where did this granite come from? If all this hard, scrubby vines growing in New England hedges a century ago could speak, some of them would doubtless claim this marvelous offspring as grown with some fine European granite.

It was not until the beginning of the Nineteenth century that scientific efforts were made to increase the values of fruits, flowers, vegetables, cereals and fibrous plants, in this country, but quite all the families of these plants have been improved in quality and varieties have been increased. Indeed, in some cases, the quality has been improved a hundred-fold and the variety multiplied a score of times.

There is an apple, a peach, a pear, a grape and a melon for every soil in this country that can possibly grow them, and for many localities there are scores of fine varieties. In no other sphere of cultivated plant life has increase in value been so marked as in floriculture. Where a layman visits a great flower market in a city, he is astounded at the endless varieties of roses, chrysanthemums and carnations. He wonders how on earth so many forms and colors were produced in these flowers. Let him not forget that a flower, more than any other thing that springs from the soil, is the language of the soul. ESTABLISHED 1833.

FORT WAYNE, IND.: SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, 1902.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

BANK'S CASH GONE

INSTITUTION AT ELMORA IS WRECKED.

BANKER AND WIFE MISSING

DEPOSITS TO AMOUNT OF $10,000
ARE GONE.

INDIANA RAILROAD SEIZED

A WHOLE FAMILY IN INDIANA
POISONED BY COOKIES.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 23.—The Elmore bank, a private unincorporated institution, at Elmore, twenty miles north, has failed and the proprietor, Pleasant Durham and his wife, have fled. Deposits to the amount of $8,000 or $10,000 are believed to have been lost. The town is in a wild state of excitement.

HAS SEIZED A RAILROAD.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 23.—Acting on published reports that the Chicago and Southeastern railway, known as the Midland, has been sold by President Harry Crawford to the Big Four, Benj. Simpson, receiver, has seized the road and run it today. The general offices were seized last night by the receiver, C. T. Phillips of Carbon, a petty creditor. The receiver in a statement issued this afternoon says he will operate the road for the creditors. The general offices here have made no fight today to regain possession.

FAMILY IS POISONED.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 23.—The family of Mrs. Mary Goller of this city, and two boarders, fourteen persons, were mysteriously poisoned last night by eating cookies. They were prostrated by what the attending physician diagnosed as arsenic poisoning. Among the number are seven children, aged from sixteen months to twenty-one years. Nine of the victims are still in bed in a serious condition.

NEEDS OF SCHOOLS DISCUSSED.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 23.—Much of the business transacted yesterday by the Evangelical Lutheran joint synod of Ohio and other states related to educational institutions. The attendance at the Theological Seminary in Columbus, Ohio, was reported decreasing and the synod authorized pastors, professors and teachers to act as agents and to use their best endeavors to gain young men for the institution. A resolution forbidding theological students from permanently filling vacancies without the consent of the district president was approved. Professor M. Loy, D. D., dean of the seminary for forty-six years, was retired as professor emeritus, with full pay. The synod made overtures for a closer relation with Lima college at Lima, Ohio, an independent Lutheran institution.

MARRIED AT NOON.

Today at noon, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Krick, 1224 Walton avenue, Rev. M. C. Cooper performed the ceremony that united Mr. Al Stemen and Miss Bertha May Swygart in wedlock. The bride couple had no attendants and the ceremony was performed in the presence of about twenty-five invited guests, relatives and immediate friends of the couple. After the ceremony the guests partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner. The bride received numerous very handsome and valuable wedding gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Stemen will leave the first of the week on a wedding tour in Ohio and the east and will be for a time at home at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Krick, upon their return. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Bella Liby, of Decatur, and is a young lady of many graces and accomplishments. The groom is a well known flagman in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad.

PRETTY CARNIVAL WINDOW.

Thousands of people today have paused in admiration before a display window of the Burdette Dry Goods company, incidental to the coming fall festival. The window is the work of Fred Wahrenberg, the window trimmer at the Rutledge store, and is one of the most effective conceptions seen here in many days. A huge lion is shown in a cage, with his trainer close beside him, while upon the outside are spectators. The lion opens and closes his mouth in realistic fashion, and the general effect is enhanced by many incandescent lights.

BIG MARKET TODAY.

The market this morning was decidedly the largest of the year. The regular marketers and hucksters occupied the entire market space as thickly as they could be placed and extended around on the Berry street front of the city building and all along the east side of Barr street as far as Columbia street. There were some wagons even south of Washington street and a few stood on Wayne street west of the market place.

JOHN MACKENZIE RESIGNS.

John MacKenzie, who has held the office of superintendent of motive power of the Nickel Plate ever since 1893, has resigned, the same to become effective at once. He is succeeded by J. L. Gilmore, formerly of the Lake Shore, who had his headquarters in Elkhart.

LACK OF IRON CAUSES DELAY

ANNOYING SUSPENSION OF
WORK AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Contractors Cannot Get Structural
Longer—Trustees Meet Monday.

The board of school trustees will meet next Monday evening when the contract for the plumbing and electric lighting and wiring of the new high school building will in all probability be let. The bids were opened several weeks ago and were taken under advisement. Treasurer Rockhill, of the board, says that the delay in the construction of the building is due wholly to the failure of the iron contractors to furnish the material necessary for the frame work of the first story. It is now five weeks since work on the building was stopped and the best advice is that two weeks more will elapse before work can be resumed. Mr. Roney, the contractor, is much annoyed at the failure of the iron mills to deliver the structural work promptly, and notwithstanding the fact that he has a strong "stand in" with the iron operators, he has been unable to get his work delivered. The iron for the first story has been delivered at Toledo, where the drilling and riveting is being done, and it is almost a certainty that shipments will be commenced within two weeks. At that time there will have been a delay of nearly two months and the trustees are chagrined to know that the work will have progressed only to the stage at which it will be found when cold weather will necessitate the suspensions of further operations.

STATE CHAIRMAN GOODRICH IN
THE CITY TODAY.

With Candidates and Committeemen
a Meeting is Held in Arcade
This Afternoon.

Allen county republicans are holding a conference at the headquarters in the Arcade this afternoon, and State Chairman J. P. Goodrich, who arrived from Winchester this morning, is giving the local organization some advice concerning the conduct of the active campaign which is soon to open. Others present included Hon. N. U. Hill, of Bloomington, candidate for state treasurer; Hon. C. W. Miller, of Goshen, republican nominee for attorney general; District Chairman Leonard, County Chairman Harris, a fairly complete representation of the county central committee and the county nominees.

Addresses were delivered by Mr. Goodrich, Mr. Hill, Mr. Miller and others. C. C. Gilhams, the congressional nominee, is attending a soldiers' reunion at Mt. Pisgah, Langrange county, and wired Chairman Harris that he could not reach Fort Wayne today.

EN ROUTE TO INDIA.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin R. Detweiler, of Topeka, Ind., who have been the guests of Mrs. Detweiler's cousins, Mrs. W. T. Warcup, of Cass street, and Mrs. H. J. Schmidt, of Walnut street, left today for the east. They will sail September 6 from New York on the steamship Eurymedea for Liverpool, and from thence go to Dharmat, India, to engage in mission work.

IN LITTLE RHODY

TINUES HIS TOUR.

WARM GREETING FROM CROWD

PRESIDENT VOICES HIS WELL KNOWN VIEWS.

Willimantic, Conn., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt, after spending the night at the home of John T. Robinson at Hartford today resumed his journey through New England. His train left that city promptly at 8 o'clock, but the early hour set for his departure did not deter the people from turning out in force and giving him a hearty send-off. As he drove up to the station in an open carriage accompanied by Senator Platt, the crowd cheered and the president responded by raising his hat. The floral horseshoe presented to the president by the workmen of Hartford yesterday was by his request placed on the engine. All along the line the small towns turned out their entire population, each apparently anxious to share in the welcome which Connecticut is extending.

When Willimantic was reached the president was driven to the public square, where he delivered an address from his carriage.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Following are the president's remarks: "Mr. Mayor, and you my fellow citizens: I thank you for the greeting you have given me and for the chance of seeing you this morning. I have greatly enjoyed passing through your beautiful state. I welcome the opportunity of meeting you and your representatives. I think that it is an advantage to all of us who are trying to put your purpose and wishes into effect in the national legislature and administration when we can come into touch with you personally. I have taken the chance to try, now that congress is not in session, now that there is a holiday at the national capital, of going through the country to see you, my fellow citizens. I am obliged to you for coming out here. Last night in Hartford I spoke of two or three of the questions which we now have before our people. I shall not try to make any address to you today. This nation has great problems to face, problems in its external policy, problems even more important in the administration of its internal affairs. We can solve them only if with serious purpose we set ourselves to the task alike in the national and state governments and in the local municipality and county organizations.

GREAT PROBLEMS AHEAD.

"We have great problems ahead of us as a nation. They will task our intelligence but they will task still more what ranks ahead of intelligence—character. (Applause and cries of "good.") "It is a good thing for a nation to demand in its representatives intellect, but it is a better thing to demand in them that sum of qualities which we talk of as character. (Prolonged applause.)

"All of you know that that is true in private life. If you are dealing with a man in a business way, whether as employer or employee, or in commerce with a storekeeper or with any one, you want him to be a smart man, but it is a mighty hard thing if he is only smart. (Laughter.)

"Isn't that so (Cries of "yes, yes, that's right.") "Exactly. Now what you want in a private man with whom you deal is what you want in your public representatives. If you are going to get good results from your association with a man in the business world, in the working world, it will be because that man has got the right stuff in him, because he has got common sense, honesty, decency and courage. And you have got to have the same qualities shown in public life if we are to make this country what we will make it—an example to all the nations of mankind." (Applause.)

GREETED BY MILL WORKERS.

Plainfield, Conn., Aug. 23.—On the run of President Roosevelt's train to Providence a brief stop was made at Ballis, where about 500 people had gathered, mostly employees of a cotton mill. They cheered the president as he came out on the rear platform and in response to their appeals he delivered a brief address in which he referred to the prosperity of the country as compared with the conditions of affairs existing in war times. A basket of roses was handed to the president by the superintendent of the mill.

BIG CROWD AT PROVIDENCE.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 23.—Not since the visit here of President Hayes, fifteen years ago, has a chief executive been accorded so brilliant and thoroughly genuine reception as that tendered today to President Roosevelt on the occasion of his tour through this state. People came from every part of the state and gathered 1,500 strong about the platform at city hall, from which the president delivered an address. An ovation which lasted five minutes was the president's greeting when he rose to speak.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

President Roosevelt spoke here as follows: "We are passing through a period of great material prosperity and such a period is as sure as adversity itself to bring murtherings of discontent. At a time when most men prosper somewhat it always happens that a few men prosper greatly and it is as true now as it was when the Tower of Babel fell upon all who were under it, that good fortune does not come only to the just, nor bad fortune only to the unjust. When the weather is good for crops it is also good for weeds. Moreover, not only do the wicked flourish when times are such that most men flourish, but what is worse, the spirit of envy and jealousy and hatred springs up in the breasts of those, who, though they may be doing fairly well themselves, yet see others who are no more deserving doing far better.

WHAT LAWS CAN DO.

"Wise laws and fearless and upright administration of the laws can give the opportunity for such prosperity as that we see about us. But this is all that they can do. When the conditions have been created which make prosperity possible, then each individual man must achieve it for himself, by his own thrift, intelligence, energy, industry and resolute purpose. If when people wax fat they kick, as they have been prone to do since the days of Jeroboam, they will speedily destroy their own prosperity. If they go into wild speculation and lose their heads, they have lost that which no legislation can supply, and the business world will suffer in consequence. If in a spirit of sullen envy they insist upon pulling down those who have profited most by the years of fatness, they will bury themselves in the crash of the common disaster. It is difficult to make our material condition better by the best laws, but it is easy enough by bad laws to throw the whole nation into an abyss of misery.

PRUDENCE IS NECESSARY.

"Now, the upshot of all this is that it is peculiarly incumbent upon us in a time of such material well-being, both collectively as a nation and individually, each on his own account, to show that we possess the qualities of prudence, self-knowledge and self-restraint. In our government we need above all things stability, fixity of economic policy, while remembering that this fixity must not be fossilization, that there must not be inability to shape our course anew to meet the shifting needs of the people as these needs (Continued on Sixth Page.)

$4,000 IN LOSSES IN A WEEK

BAD SEVEN DAYS FOR ALLEN
COUNTY FARMERS.

Mutual Insurance Losses for Week
for Last Year.

During the past week the Allen County Farmers' Mutual Insurance company has suffered the severest seven days in its history, the losses aggregating over $4,000, but the company is in excellent condition, and all losses will be promptly met. Starting with the Decker fire in Maumee township last Sunday, where $1,800 of insurance was carried, including the Summers loss in Pleasant township, where there was a $1,300 risk, and concluding with a loss of $1,400 reported today, the company will be compelled to pay for a single week's fires a sum very close to the entire losses for the year 1901. The total amount is something over $4,000, and in very nearly every case the damage was caused by lightning.

The loss reported to Secretary Kelsey today was that of John S. Driver, in Springfield township, whose barn was struck by lightning and totally destroyed, together with its contents. Mr. Driver's loss will be $2,000, on which there is $1,400 insurance.

DEATH CONQUERS

HON. JAMES ENGLISH IS GONE

MADISON TOWNSHIP.

Hon. James English, pioneer farmer, widely known citizen and former representative from Allen county to the state legislature, died at 2 o'clock this morning at his home, 2535 South Lafayette street, at the age of 79 years.

Death was due to acute dysentery, and it came as the termination of an illness of little more than two weeks.

While enjoying a stay at Winona August 5, Mr. English was taken ill, and was brought to his home in this city on a cot. From that time he was never able to leave his bed, and despite the skilled ministrations of physicians and friends, the patient declined steadily. For some days it had been realized that the end was near, and for two days the patient's condition was such that death might have occurred at any moment. The venerable man was conscious until the last, though for nearly forty-eight hours he had been unable to speak. The end came peacefully early today.

HON. JAMES ENGLISH,
Pioneer Farmer and Former Representative, Who Died Today.

NATIVE OF IRELAND.

Mr. English was a native of Ireland, born in County Antrim, September 7, 1823. He was united in marriage in 1840 to Isabel McConnelly, an acquaintance of his boyhood in their native village, and together they came to America in 1847, landing in New York. For two years Mr. and Mrs. English resided in Philadelphia, and then removed to Muskegon county, Ohio, remaining five years until 1853, when they removed to Allen county, Indiana, which has since been Mr. English's home. Shortly after his arrival he purchased a farm half a mile north of Hoagland, and here he resided until 1899, when the family removed to Fort Wayne, living first on Jackson street, near Jefferson, and later occupying the pretty south side residence where his death occurred today.

Mrs. English died at Hoagland in March, 1890, and two years later, in April 1892, Mr. English was united in marriage to Electa S. Wadge, the ceremony being performed at Hobart, Lake county, once the home of the bride. Mr. English was the father of nine children, eight of whom, with the widow, survive him. One son, James, was drowned in the Maumee river in this city in 1880. The surviving children are Mrs. Margaret Greshley, of Hoagland; Rev. John W. English, of Sturgeon, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Hubler, of Fort Morgan, Col.; Mrs. Rose McIntosh, of Huntington; Dr. Calvin H. English, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Nettie Hubler, of Hoagland; Mrs. Kate Merriam, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Minnie Barkley, of Fort Morgan, Col.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS.

Politically Mr. English was identified with the republican party, and he was active in the political affairs of that party for many years. He served for some years as a justice of the peace in Madison township, and about twenty years ago represented Allen county in the legislature.

Mr. English was a splendid representative of the loftiest type of citizenship. For nearly half a century he was a resident of Allen county and throughout that time enjoyed the unbounded confidence, respect and esteem of all who knew him. He followed the avocation of a farmer until advancing age made it necessary to retire from active duties. Then he came to this city, and in peace and quietude passed the closing days of a life of industry, helpfulness and integrity. His death will be widely mourned, for few men in Allen county enjoyed a more extensive acquaintance.

HIS RELIGIOUS LIFE.

Since early in his boyhood Mr. English had led a devoted Christian life, consistently adhering to his religious convictions, and was one of the most steadfast supporters of the church. At 16 years of age, while yet in the land of his birth, he united with the Covenanters church, and on coming to America placed his membership with a United Presbyterian church at Philadelphia. Removing to Indiana he affiliated with the United Presbyterian church at Hoagland, and when that organization went out of existence some years ago his membership was placed with the Third Presbyterian church in this city. For many years he has been an elder in that church, and one of its most devoted supporters. His life was clean, pure, admirable and helpful. It has been a benediction to those with whom he came in contact.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence and at 2:30 from the Third Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. J. A. R. McGaw will officiate.

NOW NEARING CHURUBUSCO

SURVEYING GOSHEN - FORT
WAYNE INTERURBAN LINE.

Promoters Spend the Night in the
City—Are Driving Over the Proposed Route.

James F. Rothwell, James Lynch and Arthur S. Partridge, of St. Louis, promoters of the proposed Fort Wayne-Goshen electric line, accompanied by their attorneys, Wilbur L. Stonax and Arthur B. Stonax, of Goshen, were in the city last evening registered at the Randall hotel.

They had driven from Goshen to this city over the proposed line of the road, and after spending the night in Fort Wayne Mr. Partridge left for St. Louis, while the other gentlemen in the party returned to go back over the road to make further observations concerning the most desirable route to be taken.

They are most positive in their statements that the outlook for the line is excellent, and the surveying party that is working this way is moving as rapidly as possible. It is expected that the surveyors will reach Churubusco early in the coming week.

LOCAL LINES.

Ben H. Tower, of Toledo, is in the city greeting old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Van B. Farnine leave this evening for Clear Lake.

Mrs. G. H. Heine will leave tomorrow for a visit in Chicago.

HIS DEAD BODY IS FOUND

HAD BEEN STRANGLED AND ROBBED.

New York, Aug. 23.—Quoting the Francisco, the evening edition of the Matin, the Paris correspondent of the World, cables the following story: "Victor Evandale, an American about forty years old, declared at a cafe table that he had lived for ten years in the wildest regions of western United States and never carried a weapon and was never afraid. Several Frenchmen who were present told him that Paris was more dangerous.

"They asserted that he could not go from Grenelle to Montrouge, for example, after 10 o'clock at night without being killed unless he wore laborer's clothes.

"Evandale left the cafe after a time without reverting to the conversation about dangerous localities.

"Next morning his companions of the night before were horror-stricken to read of the discovery of Evandale's body in the Glacis of the fortifications near the Maison Blanche. It is supposed he must have actually attempted to walk from Grenelle to Montrouge immediately after leaving his friends.

"Evidently he was attacked from behind. Tight around his neck was found a thin leather thong which had been used to strangle him. His pockets were rifled, his shoes and coat removed."

Inquiry by the World correspondent tends to show that Evandale was an Englishman instead of an American, but had lived in Texas.

IRISH DAY CELEBRATION

OVER 3,000 PEOPLE ASSEMBLED AT NEW HAVEN PARK.

Scenes of Old Ireland Reproduced in the Various Games and Amusement Features.

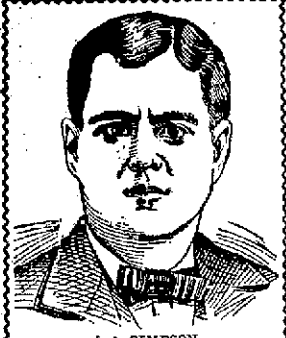

Irish day celebration is in progress this afternoon in the pretty grove south of New Haven and the crowd in attendance is fully a third greater than the crowd which attended a similar function last year, when the Washash company took down there 1,002 people. The Washash has a special train in service between this city and the grove, which is scheduled to make four round trips during the day and evening. The first trip was at 10 o'clock this morning, when about 100 people went down, included being the officers of the day, committeemen, those who will have charge of the refreshment and amusement stands and a few who wished to get as long a stay as possible at the cool and inviting grove. The second train left at 2 o'clock, and it carried 750 people, and the third train which left at 3 o'clock, had every one of its eleven cars filled to the guard-rails. The last train will leave at 7:30 o'clock this evening, and it is believed there will be over 1,000 people on it. Col. R. G. Thompson, of the Washash, said at 3 o'clock this afternoon that he believed the railway would carry over 2,800 people to New Haven on this occasion. The program as published in the Sentinel a few days ago is being carried out; the crowd is good natured and jolly and the event promises to be one of the most pleasant in the history of the Irish day celebrations in this country. There is also a big attendance from the village of New Haven and the rural districts and it is pretty safe to say that the aggregate attendance will reach 3,500. The train has a double crew and double engine. Conductors Robert Gage and C. B. McBride take up the tickets and Engineers J. Disler and C. W. Brooks preside at the throttle.

INJURED IN A FALL.

Mrs. A. Hoover, of 1428 Lillie street, suffered a severe fall at her home at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The physician who was called said that no bones were broken, but the lady is suffering severely from bruises.

Judge David Stedaker, of Decatur, is in the city.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

J. A. SIMPSON.
[Sec'y. Bd of Education, San Francisco.]

Hon. J. A. Simpson, Secretary of the Board of Education of San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I have found Peruna an ideal tonic. Some months ago I suffered with neurasthenia (systemic catarrh), caused by too close application to office work. My system seemed worn out and I felt far from well. I found Peruna benefited me very much. It built up the entire system and made me feel like a new man. I believe it is well worthy the high praise bestowed upon it."

J. A. SIMPSON.

Systemic catarrh always gives fair warning of its approach, and can be easily warded off by the proper treatment. Flushing brown specks before the eyes, mental confusion, fits of nervous headache, sleeplessness, flushes of heat, chilly sensations, palpitation, irritability, dependency; any of these symptoms or all of them should be promptly met by the use of Peruna.

Congressman R. V. Brookshire, from Indiana, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"From what my friends say, Peruna is a good tonic and a safe cathartic cure."

SYMPATHY FOR THE FRIARS

EXPRESSED BY CLERGY OF FORT WAYNE DIOCESE.

Resolutions Set Forth Views on Philippine Situation—Synod Here Next Year.

Notre Dame, Ind., Aug. 23.—Catholic clergy of the Fort Wayne diocese, assembled here in annual retreat, passed resolutions yesterday setting forth their views upon the ecclesiastical and school situation in the Philippines. The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, The minds of the Catholics of northern Indiana have been seriously and justly perturbed by reliable reports concerning the state of ecclesiastical affairs in the Philippine islands, and

"Whereas, They are solicitous that the religious and civil rights and interests of their fellow Catholics, as guaranteed by treaty, laws and constitution, be upheld and protected against undue interference, and

"Whereas, We have full confidence in the prudence, justice and good will of his excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, who has entered upon peaceful negotiations with the vatican and has promised a just and amicable settlement of pending difficulties;

"1. Be It Resolved, That we, the undersigned bishop and clergy of the diocese of Fort Wayne, Ind., assembled at the University of Notre Dame, and representing 100,000 Catholics of northern Indiana, desire to give expressions of our sympathy with the friars of the Philippine islands who have ardently and successfully labored for centuries in the cause of religion and Christian civilization, and who are now the victims of widespread slander and abuse; who are disturbed in the peaceful possession of their legitimately acquired property and in the continuance of their missionary labors among their flocks—the great mass of whom, notwithstanding the objections of certain revolutionary parties, give evidence of a sincere desire to retain them; and

"2. Be It Resolved, That since the system of Christian, parochial school education has been for centuries in vogue among the Philippine Catholics, and since they gratefully recognize it as one of the main factors in their development as a Christian nation from the lowest state of barbarism, and since they now justly claim for their children this Christian system of education as based upon their natural parental right—the selection of this parochial school system should be left to the free choice of their parishes, without any partisan or sectarian interference, and

"3. Be It Resolved, That we appreciate the action of our illustrious president in having entered into friendly negotiations with the vatican concerning ecclesiastical affairs in the Philippine islands, and that we firmly trust that these negotiations will be continued until such an agreement shall have been reached, as will fully satisfy the claims of justice and religious rights and liberty for the friars and the Catholic people of the Philippine islands, and

The resolutions are signed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Alving and ninety-one priests of the diocese of Fort Wayne.

SOME PASTORAL CHANGES.

Bishop Alving, after a council of the diocesan consultors, has made a number of changes in the assignment of priests. Rev. William F. Hogan has been appointed pastor at Goshen, succeeding Rev. J. H. Guendling, who was recently chosen for Peru to succeed the late Rev. Father Meissner. Dunkirk and its missions, recently in charge of Father Hogan, has been placed under the direction of Rev. Charles Dhe, of Hartford City, and Rev. Edward Houlihan has been temporarily assigned as assistant to Father Dhe.

Very Rev. John R. Dinnen was appointed diocesan councillor, to succeed Rev. Henry Meissner, deceased. Rev. Francis Koerdt, Rev. T. J. Mulcahy and Rev. A. J. Kroege were named as synodical examiners in place of Rev. Fathers Walters, Campion and Meissner, deceased.

SYNOD IN FORT WAYNE.

In September, 1903, a synod for the diocesan will be held in Fort Wayne, and Rev. J. H. Ochtering, Rev. F. Koerdt and Rev. J. H. Balke were named as a committee to arrange for the gathering. The annual council of junior clergy will take place December 10, when the synod council meets at Fort Wayne. The junior clergy of the diocese of Fort Wayne are the members who have been ordained within the last five years.

UNIVERSALISTS WILL MEET.

Rev. Marion Crossley, of Indianapolis, will hold Universalist services tomorrow, Sunday, August 24, in the pavilion at Island park, Rome City.

at 10:45 a. m., and 4 p. m. The Interstate Universalist assembly will open Tuesday evening, August 26, and will continue until the evening of September 5. This assembly includes the four states of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan. Able representatives of the Universalist denomination will be present and participate in the meetings.

CARS TO RUN LATER.

During the carnival week the last car westward on the Fort Wayne and Southwestern interurban line will leave the depot at Pearl and Harrison streets at 11 o'clock each evening.

LABOR'S PAGEANT PLANNED

FORMATION AND LINE OF MARCH IS ANNOUNCED.

Program of the Labor Day Observance—Henry Cohen and J. C. Workman to Deliver Addresses.

The Labor Day committee has perfected plans for the annual observance of the toilers' holiday. Monday, September 1, and it is to be supplied by the laboring people of Fort Wayne, without the solicitation of financial aid from the merchants.

There will be five divisions in the big parade, which will form at 10 o'clock, as follows: First division, form on Barr street, right resting on Wayne. Second division, form on Wayne, right resting on Barr. Third division, form on Wayne east of Barr, right resting on Barr. Fourth division, industrial parade, form on Barr, right resting on Barr.

The parade will move south on Barr street to Montgomery, west on Montgomery to Calhoun, north on Calhoun to Columbia, west on Columbia to Harrison, south on Harrison to Berry, west on Berry to Webster, south on Webster to Jefferson, west on Jefferson to Rockhill, north on Rockhill to Washington, west to Swinney park.

NO CONTEST OVER FAIR WILL

MRS. NELSON IS REGARDED AS THE SOLE HEIR.

The Mother of Mrs. Fair Will Ask for Letters of Administration in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, has arrived here from her home in Newmarket, N. J. She is accompanied by her son, A. G. Nelson, of Plainfield, N. J. Mrs. Nelson, who is 70 years of age, was greatly fatigued by her journey across the continent.

Charles J. Smith, of Boulder Creek, Cal., a brother of the late Mrs. Fair, and Fred Fowler, a nephew of Mrs. Fair by marriage, with his wife, are also here. Mrs. Nelson declined to talk for publication, but to Joseph Harvey, a life-long friend of Charles Fair, she said: "I don't care much what becomes of my share of the estate, but I do want to see my children get all they are entitled to."

A. G. Nelson said: "There will be no contest between my mother and Mr. Smith, of Colorado. He is my half-brother. Of course, my mother will go into court, but the legal matters rest with her counsel altogether. She will ask for letters of administration on the estate and for that reason we intend to take up our residence in San Francisco."

"My mother," he continued, "we regard as the sole heir, so there will be no contest so far as we are concerned."

"There will be no contest at all," remarked Joseph Harvey. "The whole matter will be settled out of court, and, anyhow, nothing definite has yet been decided on."

The call says: "It is not generally known that the Fairs will authorize Herman Oelrichs to inform the relatives of Mrs. Fair that they can take possession of certain properties of her estate. To this estate will also probably be added a sum of money. What the amount will be has not yet been settled upon. The details of the compromise have not yet been discussed."

GIRL FILES A SUIT.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 23.—A ready more than a nine days' wonder, the Stoneburner robbery case continues to present sensational chapters. Late yesterday afternoon Miss Kittie Harte filed suit in the Porter circuit court for $5,000 damages against Mrs.

Rose Stoneburner and Arthur Thibault, legal representative of Dr. A. A. Stoneburner. She alleges malicious prosecution. Miss Harte is the pretty servant girl who claims she was bound, gagged and severely hurt by the daylight robbers who secured $7,000 in money and valuables from the Stoneburner residence. The police were unable to find any clue to the robbers and finally arrested Miss Harte for the burglary. She was placed in jail, but after a hearing which lasted less than five minutes, was set free by Judge Dille.

Mid-summer Sacrifice Sale of PIANOS.

BUY NOW AND SAVE MONEY.

George Jacobs wishes to inform the public that he has placed his order with the factories for a new stock of Pianos, which will be here ready to place in the store early in September. The present stock must go and to make them move Mr. Jacobs will grease the way so they will slide right out without any trouble. How? Why, sell them at a sacrifice price, of course.

The Pianos that go in this sale are such fine instruments as Krueh & Bach, Haines & Co., Marshall & Mendall, the Schaefer, and a number of other well known makes. Some of these have never been out of the store, although a little shop-worn; others have been rented a short time.

ALL ARE IN FIRST-CLASS CONDITION, AS GOOD AS NEW.

As an evidence of the faith placed in this store by the public,

ROAD TO WINONA LAKE.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 23.—The directors of the Winona Assembly at Summer School yesterday voted to construct an electric railroad between Warsaw and Winona. An agreement was signed by the Winona officials and representatives of the Logansport, Rochester and Northern Traction company, in which the Winona management agrees to construct the road before July 1, 1903, and to turn it over to the Logansport, Rochester and Northern Traction company when its interurban line is completed.
The latter company has a five-year franchise in Warsaw, which will be used by the Winona line. A company for the construction of the road will be incorporated at once.

Out Lots

I now offer the 120 acres on Walton avenue immediately south of the Lutheran college land, price $24,000
for the entire tract, $400 per acre,
which will retail out at $400 per acre. Good opportunity to double your money. Terms easy, small payment down, long time on remainder. When we cleared off the
very heavy timber on this rich land,
many years ago, 900 thirty young
shade trees were left for outlet purposes, all of which are still there and growing. The population of Fort Wayne is steadily increasing and a still more rapid growth is now about
to develop.

HENRY M. WILLIAMS

KIDNAPED BY A LUNATIC.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 23.—With a
drawn pistol in his hand, James I.
Tindall, said to be an escaped lunatic
from the state sanitarium at Mil-lidgeville, entered the home of L. A.
Beach, in Wilkinson county, and carried off Agnes Beach, a 15-year-old girl. The kidnapping was accomplished while the other members of
the family were away from home.
At last accounts Tindall had not returned. He went in the direction of Macon.

Denver, Col. Aug. 23.—A dispatch
received yesterday at the headquarters of the Pacific Wireless Telegraph
company, in this city, announces that
the office at White's Point, Cal., will
be opened tomorrow morning for commercial business. The Pacific company's wireless system between Catalina Island and White's Point,
thirty-six miles, is reported to be working perfectly, messages being sent as rapidly as over a wire.

Mayor Berghoff last evening sent
to the superintendent of police two orders; one calling attention to the
violation of the ordinance regulating
the speed of automobiles in the city
and the other referring to a rumor
that the town was to be "wide open"
during the festival week, commencing
next Monday. It has been stated
that next week was to be an "open"
week and that police regulations
would be enforced only catch-as-
catch-can and that gambling and slot
machines would be given an inning,
while saloons would be supposed to
run without front door keys until Saturday night. The mayor, in order to remove all doubts on this question, accordingly issued the following peremptory instructions:

"August 23, 1902. To the Superintendent of Police: In order to avoid any misunderstanding, you will please take notice that during the
fall festival no change will be made
in my former orders, and that no
gambling or the use of money slot
machines will be tolerated. As large crowds are expected to visit the city,
due care should be taken that perfect order is maintained.

"HENRY C. BERGHOFF,
"Mayor."

SUMMER COMPLAINT.

Proper Food Will Prevent It.

When the bowels go wrong in adults or children, quit all food but Grape-Nuts and a little cream or milk. The experience of one woman
will be read with interest by many mothers who pass anxious days over
little ones and become alarmed because the food does not agree with baby and he daily wastes away.

Miss Lillian Jeffries was pleasantly surprised at her home, 373 Baker street, Thursday evening by a large company of her young friends. Games
and music were greatly enjoyed, and refreshments were served at a late hour. Miss Lillian received a number of beautiful presents.

Thursday evening Miss Marguerite
Swift was hostess for a delightful
company at her home, north of the city. The young people enjoyed pedro and dancing, and at the close of the games elaborate refreshments
were served. In the games Miss
prizes.

Mrs. Kate Hamer, of Buffalo, and Misses Nellie and Minnie Baynes, of
Rome, N. Y., all relatives of Justice
Tancey, who have been visiting Mr.
and Mrs. Tancey for several weeks,
left for their respective homes
Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Tancey and Miss Mary O'Dowd accompanied the ladies as far as Findlay where they were the guests of Alderman J. W.
Kelly, who is a brother-in-law to Mrs. Kelly of the party.

WIRELESS LINE IS OPENED.

Denver, Col. Aug. 23.—A dispatch
received yesterday at the headquarters of the Pacific Wireless Telegraph
company, in this city, announces that
the office at White's Point, Cal., will
be opened tomorrow morning for commercial business. The Pacific company's wireless system between Catalina Island and White's Point,
thirty-six miles, is reported to be working perfectly, messages being sent as rapidly as over a wire.

MAYOR ISSUES ORDERS.

Mayor Berghoff last evening sent to the superintendent of police two orders; one calling attention to the
violation of the ordinance regulating
the speed of automobiles in the city
and the other referring to a rumor
that the town was to be "wide open"
during the festival week, commencing
next Monday. It has been stated
that next week was to be an "open"
week and that police regulations
would be enforced only catch-as-
catch-can and that gambling and slot
machines would be given an inning,
while saloons would be supposed to
run without front door keys until Saturday night. The mayor, in order to remove all doubts on this question, accordingly issued the following peremptory instructions:

"August 23, 1902. To the Superintendent of Police: In order to avoid any misunderstanding, you will please take notice that during the
fall festival no change will be made
in my former orders, and that no
gambling or the use of money slot
machines will be tolerated. As large crowds are expected to visit the city,
due care should be taken that perfect order is maintained.

"HENRY C. BERGHOFF,
"Mayor."

It is to be order will not misarry. there have been very dis- eriods of lawlessness on ions, when saloons were when gambling was rampant and when, as one visitor to the city expressed it, "everything went but murder." Fort Wayne is enough worse than it ought to be when conditions are normal and if the carnival next week were to be made the pretext of a "wide open" season of gambling and carousing the condition would be pretty nearly intolerable to decency. It is well the mayor has issued his order to the police. We hope the thoroughly means it and will see to it that his instructions are absolutely enforced.

PREPARING FOR EMMANUEL

BERLIN IN GALA ATTIRE FOR ROYAL VISITOR.

Italian Monarch Will Next Week Make His First Visit to His Friend, the Kaiser.

Berlin, Aug. 23.—Gilded masts surmounted by evergreen crowns are being set up along Unter Den Linden, in preparation for the entry into Berlin of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, Thursday next. The Unter Den Linden midway is being bordered throughout its length by large rows of potted greenery. The program for the king's entertainment, which includes receptions, state dinners and a gala performance at the opera, ends on Saturday with the great fall parade of troops on the Tempelhof field.

The object of King Victor Emmanuel's visit, as explained at the Italian embassy, is that the young king is simply making his first call since his ascension upon his friend, the emperor, that such was the only purpose of his visit to Russia, and that it is quite probable that the king will visit France next year. Austria is not likely to be visited by King Victor Emmanuel for the reason that Emperor Francis Joseph never returned the late King Humbert's visit to Vienna because he wished to avoid offending the Vatican by seeing King Humbert in Rome.

As King Victor Emmanuel on his visit to Berlin will be attended by the Italian premier, Signor Zanardelli, the relations between Italy and Germany will, naturally, be discussed, but anything approaching negotiations with a definite object, growing out of the question of King Victor Emmanuel's disarmament proposals are for the emperor's personal ear and are not official, and the fruitlessness of making them is already well understood by the ministers here. As for the rest, the Berliners are looking forward to a brilliant show and officialdom anticipates a wearisome series of functions which it must attend.

FREE READING ROOMS.

In the establishing of free reading rooms, which are at the disposal of the general public from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day except Sunday, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, hopes this city has inaugurated a laudable enterprise. While the purpose of the reading room is entirely religious in its significance, and all Christian Science literature is daily on sale, the use of the rooms is by no means limited to the members of the church and their friends, but is open to all sects and denominations, and is a haven of rest for the way-faring ones in the world's great army of restless investigators.

The rooms are located in the Flick building, 209 West Berry street (one of the handsomest of Fort Wayne's new buildings) and are suitably and beautifully fitted up for the purpose for which they are intended. The floors are covered with heavy mottled velvet wilton, the windows neatly draped with fine white curtains, and the furniture, library and reading tables (rocker and arm chairs, etc.) is of golden oak, heavy pattern, suitable for public libraries, etc. The main reception room is amply large for its purpose (about 20x10) and taken altogether it is no doubt the largest and finest of its kind in the state.

Across the hall from the reading room, and on the same floor, is the large and beautiful Florist hall, the assembly room of the above mentioned church, and used by them for their two services—Sunday morning at 10:30 and Wednesday evening at 8. This new hall and reading rooms described above is owned by Flick Florist company and its location and furnishings entitle it to rank as one of the newest, handsomest and most convenient halls in the city.

The talk of the town. The great number of pianos sold by George Jacobs in the past week. A large number yet to go in the sacrifice sale. Come early and get your choice.

Columbia City Post: Miss Margaret Bechtold returned to Fort Wayne last evening after spending a week in this city with her parents. She was accompanied home by her father, George Bechtold, who will probably spend a week with different friends in the Summit City.

FALL FESTIVAL TO BEGIN ON MONDAY.

SIX DAYS OF FESTIVITY AND PLEASURE.

A FEATURE FOR EVERY DAY

INDUSTRIAL PARADE TO IN- AUGURATE EVENT.

With flags gaily fluttering in the breeze, with the persistent hawking of the street fakir as he noisily tells of his wares, with the bands playing, a crowd arrayed in holiday garb out to see the grand opening of the fall festival, the great event will be launched Monday morning to continue throughout the week.

Since the inception of the fall festival all of the committees have worked hard and have met with a number of the most discouraging rebuffs from people who are always ready to cry down any amusement enterprise, but in spite of this opposition the members of these committees have persevered and at the final meeting it was fully assured that the event will be successful far in excess of the expectations of the most sanguine.

In the selection of amusements the most discriminating taste has been shown and the predominant idea from the start has been to give the people value received for every dollar invested. The Gaskill-Munday company has assured the management that there shall be no attempt at faking and with this in view the association determined to make public just what the people may expect.

MANY FREE SHOWS.

An admission of 10 cents will be charged at the entrance to the show grounds and this entitles each person admitted to witness eight big free acts that will be given daily. These embrace an imitation of Killpatrick's famous ride down the steps of the capitol at Washington, Archie Phillips' ascent of a spiral tower on a globe and a trip from the top of the spiral several feet on a horizontal tubular extension, the high diving act of Splash and Spray, a monkey balloon ascension and parachute leap and a number of other equally as worthy.

There will be a number of shows on the ground, all of a good class, but they will not be free. Admission will be charged to each, but there is every assurance that all are first class and will be worth the price to be charged.

NO GAMBLING ALLOWED.

An edict has gone out against gambling in any form and the city authorities will be assisted by the festival management in suppressing any attempt to operate a game of chance during the week. It will be the object of the association to give a good, clean show.

The opening feature will be the industrial parade, which will form immediately after noon Monday and move not later than 2 o'clock. This action was decided upon for the reason that a great many housewives can not on account of their duties come out in the morning, and it is desired to give all an opportunity to see the attractive facts that are promised.

The ball park in which all of the shows will be located will not be opened until 7 o'clock in the evening, in order to give the people a chance to rest after the fatigue of watching the industrial parade. This program will conclude the first day of the celebration.

The great event of the second day will be the admitting of children to the grounds free of charge and giving them an opportunity to visit the attractions at half the usual price.

FARMERS' DAY.

The farmers, who form an important element in the success of any amusement enterprise, will be the guests of the association on Wednesday. To make the day attractive a prize of a ten-dollar gold piece will be awarded to the farmer who will bring to the show grounds the tallest stalk of corn. Cereals are commanding good prices, but an opportunity to obtain such a big prize for a small amount of corn is not often afforded.

Thursday will be the big day for the Fort Wayne people and a special program of unusual interest has been prepared for that occasion.

Friday will be Indiana day and the management will endeavor to secure the attendance of a number of the state officials for the occasion.

Saturday throughout the summer months is, as a rule, a half-holiday for the working people and for this reason the closing day will be labor day. All of the labor organizations in the city have been notified and a big attendance has been promised for the occasion.

Merchants have taken an unusual interest during the closing week of preparation and there is every reason to believe that the support of the business people of the city will be forthcoming for the aid of the organization. All little girls who wish to go in the parade will meet at the high school building at 1 o'clock. THE INDUSTRIAL PARADE. The industrial parade will form on Berry street at 1 o'clock in the following order:

Platoon of Police. Fort Wayne City Band. First division will form on Berry street, facing north, between Columbia and Barr.

Wolff's Reub Band. Second division will form on Berry street, right resting on Barr.

State Institute Band. Third division will form on Barr, right resting on Berry street.

Fourth Division—The Gaskill-Munday carnival attractions.

LINE OF MARCH. Barr to Columbia to Calhoun to Baker, Baker to Lavinia, Lavinia to Broadway, Broadway to Wayne, Wayne to Hanna, Hanna to Holman, Holman to Calhoun, north to court house and disperse.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

EMILE MISTLER EXPIRES SUD- DENLY LAST NIGHT.

Had Retired in Usual Health at an Early Hour—Other Deaths and Funerals.

Emile Mistler, formerly a machinist in the Wabash shops, but later in the saloon business at 1708 Hoagland avenue, was found dead in his bed at 11 o'clock Friday night by his son, Emile, Jr.

Mr. Mistler, with two sons, resided in apartments above the saloon, and after closing the place last night, the son, as was his custom, went to his father's room to place the cash receipts beneath the pillow. It was then he made the discovery that death had ensued, and Deputy Coroner Van Buskirk was called. The father had last been seen alive at 7 o'clock, and was apparently in his usual health. He had retired early, and nothing had been heard from his room to indicate that anything was wrong.

The deceased was 47 years of age, and came to the city about three years ago from Moberly, Mo., to accept a position as a machinist in the Wabash shops. He was unable to stand the hard work, however, and about a year ago resigned to engage in the saloon business. His wife died some years ago. There are two sons surviving—Emile, Jr., and Philip. Mr. Mistler was a member of Friendship lodge, International Association of Machinists, and was popular among his acquaintances.

The remains were removed to the Wellman undertaking establishment, where this afternoon Dr. W. F. Schwader conducted a post mortem examination under the direction of Deputy Coroner Van Buskirk. Dr. Van Buskirk finds that death was due to inflammation of the stomach and bowels, complicated with tuberculosis and chronic inflammation of the liver.

The funeral will probably be held from the undertaking rooms tomorrow afternoon under the direction of the machinists' union.

KLOEPPER.

Theodore Kloepfer, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kloepfer, of 1312 Stophlet street, died at 5 o'clock this morning at the age of five months and eight days. Death was due to cholera infantum.

Funeral services will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Wamb-gans.

FUNERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Vonderau.—Funeral services of Mrs. Peter Vonderau will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 215 East Main street, and at 2:30 from Trinity English Lutheran church. Rev. Swinehart will officiate and the interment will occur at Lindenwood.

Bensman.—Funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth Bensman will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 434 Madison street, and at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Menefee.—Funeral services of Edna E. Menefee will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1301 Fisher street, Rev. Lake officiating.

Andree.—The remains of Mrs. T. J. Andree, whose death at St. Joseph,

JOSEPH LAUFERTY DEAD.

Friends in this city today were advised by telegraph of the death of Joseph Lauferty, which occurred at his home in New York. Mr. Lauferty was a brother of Samuel Lauferty, of this city, and was 76 years of age. Forty years ago Mr. Lauferty was in business at Goshen, and frequently visited Fort Wayne. He will be remembered by many of the older citizens of Fort Wayne.

BUYS DISPATCH OUTFIT.

I. G. Stafford, the wholesale paper dealer and printer, has purchased the Dispatch printing outfit from J.

L. Sievert. It is not Mr. Stafford's intention to continue the publication of the paper, but he was desirous of getting possession of the type and material to add to his printing department.

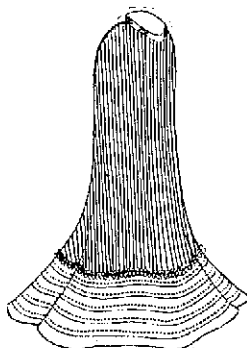

POSTOFFICE IS BLOWN.

Cincinnati, Aug. 23.—The postoffice at Adairville, Ky., was entered last night, the safe blown and all of the government funds stolen. At Louisville, Ind., robbers secured $800 worth of stamps and all the money.

BASE BALL

Just to get even for losing a game the other day Pittsburgh won two yesterday. Chesbro was on the slab for the Pittsburghers and let Brooklyn down with four hits and one run. In the other two games played there were no unusual features and the attendance at three cities was 8,400. In the American league Chicago again jumped from fourth into second place, but still 32 points back of the coveted position held by Philadelphia. Mullin pitched for Detroit in the game against Baltimore and gave the Orioles but 4 hits, the game going handsily to Detroit by a score of 10 to 2; at that he handed out three passes and a wild pitch. The attendance at four cities was 10,057. In the American association Columbus wrestled for fourteen innings when Columbus handed one to the Muckens that landed right in the bull's eye of the plexus and won by a run. Kansas City and St. Paul made 7 hits apiece and an error apiece, but there the similarity in the scores ended because St. Paul got a run and Kansas City didn't. There was no game at Louisville on account of wet grounds. The attendance at three cities was 8,718. The scores are given below:

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Although there was still some tension in grain trade at the opening today, the feeling was much more healthy. It was generally understood that most of the heavy short accounts have been covered and as a result the market needed some support. Naturally conditions seemed once more to operate on September wheat, which opened $\frac{3}{8}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ down at 71c to 71 $\frac{1}{4}$ c on lower cables and a weather map, that aside from a few showers was favorable. There was some demand in both December and September on the poor grading. September sold at 71 $\frac{1}{4}$ c and steadied near 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Local receipts were 320 cars, none of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 166 cars, making a total for the three points of 486 cars, against 511 last week and 742 a year ago.

A good cash demand, strength in corn and seaboard clearances equaling 1,037,000 bushels started good buying in wheat and September mounted to 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Longs let go of fair quantities and prices dropped back. September closed $\frac{1}{2}$ up, somewhat firm, at 71 $\frac{3}{4}$ c.

Corn cables were steady, grading was light and the cash demand was fairly good. There was free offerings at the opening, but no pressure and prices rallied somewhat. September was rather nervous, opening unchanged to $\frac{1}{2}$ down at 57c to 56 $\frac{1}{2}$ c, selling at 57 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and dipping to 57 $\frac{1}{4}$ c. Receipts were only 41 cars, 5 of contract grade.

Fears of frosts and more short covering put strength into the tone of corn. September sold to 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and closed strong, $\frac{1}{2}$ higher, at 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Oats fell off a trifle with the early easy feeling in other grains. Receipts, however, were still very light in central grades, only 16 cars out of 249 received today, and the dip did not go far. September opened $\frac{1}{2}$ lower to unchanged at 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ c and steadied near 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ c.

Provisions had good support early. Hogs were easier, but did not prevent fair early advances. September pork started 5c up at \$16.70; September lard 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ c higher at \$10.85 and sold at \$10.82 $\frac{1}{2}$; and September ribs 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ c to 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ c higher at \$10.10 to \$10.15 and sold back to \$10.07 $\frac{1}{2}$.

THE TOLEDO MARKETS.

Toledo, O., Aug. 23.—Wheat—Market dull, firm; cash, 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Sept., 72 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 71 $\frac{1}{2}$ c bid; May, 73c. Corn—Market dull, strong; cash, 61 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Sept., 59 $\frac{1}{2}$ c; Dec., 42c asked. Oats—Market dull, easy; Sept., 30c; Dec., 31 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Cloverseed—Market active, firm and higher; Oct., \$5.90; Jan., \$5.07 $\frac{1}{2}$; nominal. Rye—52c. Oil—North Lima, 89c; South Lima and Indiana, 84c.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 23.—There were some dealings in a few of the stocks recently prominent in the speculation, but the price changes were in all cases small and very evenly divided between gains and losses. A heavy accumulation of Southern Pacific carried it up a point to 76 $\frac{1}{2}$ and there was also active buying of Norfolk and Western, which lifted it 1 $\frac{1}{2}$. Price movements in other important stocks were narrow, but the trend was upward. Colorado Fuel rose to 78 $\frac{1}{2}$ with one block of 6,100 shares changing hands. Erie second preferred, Pressed Steel Car and Fort Worth and Denver City Stamped advanced a point each. Southern Railway stocks were heavy because of the failure to declare a dividend on the preferred stock. The latter dropped 1 to 97. The market was easier all around at 11 o'clock.

The loan contraction by the banks was regarded favorably, but the effect upon the market was not wide. Before the bank statement appeared Colorado Fuel reacted 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ and there were declines of 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in Louisville, Cleveland, C. & C. St. Louis, St. Paul preferred and Anaconda. St. Louis and San Francisco first preferred lost 3. Southern Pacific was forced up to 77 $\frac{1}{2}$ after the bank statement and Pennsylvania rose a point. Other gains were Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ with a reaction of 1 $\frac{1}{2}$; Fort Worth and Denver City Stamped 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, and Erie first and second preferred, Pittsburgh, C. & C. St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie preferred and Fuller Construction preferred 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$. The slight advances in the general market met realizing and the closing was irregular.

THE MONEY MARKET.

New York, Aug. 23.—Prime mercantile paper, 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ @5 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent; sterling exchange barely steady with actual business in bankers' bills at 487@487.125 for demand and at 484.25@484.375 for 60-day bills; posted rates, 485@485 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 485; commercial bills, 483 $\frac{1}{2}$ @484 $\frac{1}{2}$; bar silver, 52 $\frac{1}{2}$; Mexican dollars, 41 $\frac{1}{2}$. Government bonds steady; state bonds inactive; railroad bonds steady.

WEEKLY BANK STATEMENT.

New York, Aug. 23.—The weekly statement of averages of the associated banks shows: Loans, $918,087,900; decrease, $10,460,100. Deposits, $948,269,800; decrease, $11,978,200. Circulation, $32,414,900; increase, $809,800. Legal tenders, $75,243,600; decrease, $1,101,500. Specie, $171,562,200; increase, $794,200. Reserve, $246,810,800; decrease, $377,800. Reserve required, $237,067,450; decrease, $2,094,050. Surplus, $9,742,360; increase, $2,616,750.

arise. There are real and great evils in our social and economic life, and these evils stand out with ugly baldness during good times, for the wicked who prosper are never a pleasant sight. There is every need of striving in all possible ways, individually and collectively, by combinations among ourselves in private life and through the recognized organs of government, for the cutting out of these evils. Only let us be sure that we do not use the knife with an ignorant zeal which would make it more dangerous to the patient than to the disease.

GROWTH OF TRUSTS.

"One of the features of the tremendous industrial growth of the last generation has been the very great increase in large private and especially in large corporate fortunes.

"We may like this or not, just as we please, but it is a fact, nevertheless, and as far as we can see it is an inevitable result of the working of various causes, present among which has been the immense importance steam and electricity have assumed in modern life. Urban population has grown in this country, as in all civilized countries, much faster than the population as a whole during the last century, and where men are gathered together in great masses it inevitably results that they must work far more largely by means of combinations among themselves than when they live isolated from one another. Now, I suppose that most of us prefer on many accounts the old conditions of life, under which the average man lived more to himself and by himself, when the average community was more self-dependent, and where even though the standard of comfort was lower on the average, yet there was less of the glaring inequality in worldly conditions which we now see in our great cities.

THE POOR NOT POORER.

"It is not true that the poor have grown poorer, but some of the rich have grown so very much richer that where multitudes of men are herded together in a limited space the contrast strikes the on-looker as more violent than formerly. On the whole our people are more and live better than ever before, and the progress of which we are so proud could not have taken place had it not been for the great upbuilding of industrial centers, such as our commercial and manufacturing cities. But together with the good there has come a measure of evil. Life is not so simple as it was, and surely both for the individual and the community, the simple life is normally the healthy life. There is not in the cities the same sense of common underlying brotherhood which there is still in country localities and the lines of social cleavage are far more clearly marked.

NO COMPLETE REMEDY.

"For some of the evils which have attended upon the good of the changed conditions we can at present see no complete remedy. For others the remedy must come by the action of men themselves in their private capacity, whether merely as individuals or by combination one with another. For yet others some remedy can be found in legislative and executive action, national, state or municipal. Much of the complaint against combinations is entirely unwarranted. Under present day conditions it is as necessary to have corporations in the business world as it is to have organization among wage-workers. But we have a right to ask in each case that they shall do good and not harm. Exactly as labor organizations, when managed intelligently and in a spirit of justice and fair play, are of very great service not only to the wage-workers but to the whole community, as the history of many labor organizations has conclusively shown, so wealth, not merely individual but corporate, when used aright, is not merely a benefit to the community as a whole, but indispensable to the upbuilding of the country, under the conditions, which at present the country has grown not only to accept, but to demand as normal. This is so obvious that it seems trite even to state it, and yet if we are to judge from some of the arguments advanced against and attacks made upon wealth, as such, it is a fact worth keeping in mind.

WHEN WEALTH IS AN EVIL.

"A great fortune if not used aright makes its possessor in a peculiar sense a menace to the community as a whole, just as a great intellect does if it is uncompensated by developed conscience, by character. But obviously this no more affords grounds for condemning wealth than it does for condemning intellect. Every man of power by the very fact of that power is capable of doing damage to his neighbors, but we cannot afford to discourage the development of such men merely because it is possible they may use their power to wrong ends. If we did so, we should leave our history a blank, for we should have no great statesmen, soldiers or merchants, no great men of arts, of letters or of science. Doubtless on the average the most useful man to his fellow-citizens is apt to be he to whom has been given what the psalmist prayed for, neither poverty nor riches, but the great captain of industry, the man of wealth, who alone or in combination with his fellows, drives through our great business enterprises is a factor without which this country could not possibly maintain its present industrial position in the world. Good, not harm, normally comes from the piling up of wealth through business enterprises. Probably the most serious harm resulting to us, the people of moderate means, is when we harm ourselves by letting the dark and evil vices of envy and hatred towards our fellows eat into our natures.

HARM OF EVIDENT KIND.

"Still, there is other harm, of a more evident kind, and such harm it is our clear duty to try to eradicate if possible and in any event to minimize. The corporations and therefore these great corporations containing some tendency to monopoly, which we have grown to speak of rather loosely as trusts, are the creatures of the state, and the state not only has the right to control them, but is in duty bound to control them wherever the need for such control is shown. There is clearly a need of supervision—need to exercise the power of regulation on the part of the representatives of the public, wherever, as in our own country at the present time, business corporations become so very strong both for beneficent work and for work that is not always beneficent. It is idle to say there is no need for such supervision. A sufficient warrant for it is to be found over and over again in any of the various evils resulting from the present system, or rather lack of system.

CONTROL IS DIFFICULT.

"There is in our country a peculiar difficulty in the way of exercising such supervision and control because of the peculiar division of governmental power. When the industrial conditions were simple, very little control was needed, and no trouble was caused by the doubt as to where power was lodged under the constitution. Now the conditions are complicated and we find it difficult to frame national legislation which shall be adequate, while as a matter of practical experience state action has proved entirely insufficient, and in all human probability cannot or will not be made sufficient, to meet the needs of the case. Some of our states have excellent laws—laws which it would be well indeed to have enacted by the national legislature. But the wide difference in these laws, even between adjacent states and the uncertainty of the power of enforcement result practically in altogether insufficient control.

NATION MUST CONTROL.

"I believe that the nation must assume this power of control by legislation, and if it becomes evident that the constitution will not permit needed legislation, then by constitutional amendment. The immediate need in dealing with trusts is to place them under the real, not nominal, control of some sovereign to which, as its creature, the trusts shall owe allegiance, and in whose courts the sovereign's orders may with certainty be enforced. This is not the case, with the ordinary so-called 'trust' today, for the trust is a large state corporation, generally doing business in other states also, and often with a tendency to monopoly. Such a trust is an artificial creature not wholly responsible to or controllable by any legislature, nor wholly subject to the jurisdiction of any one court. Some governmental sovereign must be given full power over these artificial, and very powerful, corporate beings. In my judgment this sovereign must be the national government. When it has been given full power, then this full power can be used to control any evil influence, exactly as the government is now using the power conferred upon it under the Sherman anti-trust law. Even when the full power has been conferred it would be highly undesirable to attempt to much, or to begin by stringent legislation.

A DELICATE MECHANISM.

"The mechanism of modern business is as delicate and complicated as it is vast, and nothing would be more productive of evil to all of us and especially to those least well off in this world's goods, than ignorant meddling with this mechanism and above all, if the meddling was done in a spirit of class or sectional rancor. It is desirable that this power should be exercised with moderation and self-restraint. The first exercise of that power should be the securing of publicity among all great corporations doing an interstate business. The publicity, though non-inquisitorial, should be real and thorough as to all important facts with which the public has concern.

PUBLICITY NEEDED.

"The full light of day is a great discomfiter of evil. Such publicity would by itself tend to cure the evils of which there is just complaint, and where the alleged evils are imaginary it would tend to show that such was the case. When publicity is attained it would then be possible to see what further should be done in the way of regulation.

"Above all, it behooves us to remember not only that we ought to try to do what we can, but that our success in doing it depends very much upon our neither attempting nor expecting the impossible. Distrust the man who offers you a patent cure-all for the evils of the body politic, just as you would distrust him who tries to sell you a medicine to cure all the diseases of your corporal bodies. "Mankind has moved slowly upward through the ages, sometimes a little faster, sometimes a little slower, but rarely indeed by leaps and bounds. At times a great crisis in which a great people, perchance led by a great man, can at white heat strike some mighty blow for the right—make some long stride in advance along the path of orderly liberty and justice. But morally we must be content if each of us can do something, by no means all that we wish, but still something, for the advancement of these principles of righteousness which underlie all real national greatness, all real civilization.

BEGINNING CAN BE MADE.

"I see no promise of a complete solution for all the problems we group together when we speak of the trust question. But we can make a beginning in solving these problems, and a good beginning if only we approach the subject with a sufficiency of resolution, of honesty and of that hard common sense which is one of the most valuable and unfortunately not one of the most common, assets in the equipment of any people. I think the national administration has shown its firm intention to enforce the laws as they now stand on the statute-books without regard to persons, and I think that good has come from this enforcement. I think furthermore that additional legislation should be had, and can be had, which will enable us to accomplish much more than has been accomplished along these same lines. No one can promise you a perfect solution, at least in the immediate future, but something has already been done, and much more can be done if our people temperately and determinedly will that it shall be done.

A WORD IN CONCLUSION.

"In conclusion let me add one word. While we are not to be excused if we fail to do whatever is possible through the agency of government we must ever keep in mind that no action by the government, no action by any combination among ourselves can take the place of the individual qualities to which in the long run each man must owe his success. There never has been devised, and there never will be devised any law which will enable a man to succeed save by the exercise of those qualities which have always been the prerequisites of success—the qualities of hard work, of keen intelligence, of unflinching will. No action by the state in any form can do more than supplement the initiative of the individual, and ordinarily the action of the state can do no more than secure to each individual the chance to show, under as favorable conditions as possible, the stuff of which he is made."

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

Michael Stelmich, a well known and well-to-do farmer, living near Monroeville, reported to the sheriff last night that he had been robbed of a silver watch, a gold watch, a gold ring, a pocketbook, a suit of clothes, a bridge rein, a set of silver spoons and a revolver; he also authorized a reward of $25 for the recovery of the property or the arrest of the thief. The information was delivered to the officers by telephone last night about 9 o'clock, the robbery having been discovered about an hour before and to corroborate the story Mr. Stelmich came to town at noon today. The thief is known, but his name is not, but he is described as being an ordinary farm hand about 25 years old, with a large appetite. Mr. Stelmich has a tenant by the name of Minster who engaged the young man who got away with the goods to work for him about a week ago. The fellow was industrious enough and boarded with Minster who, however, did not have sleeping accommodations for him, and accordingly Mr. Stelmich allowed him to quarter himself in his house. What name of Mr. Stelmich's accommodation is told in the above story.

Carrie Weisenburg, who was sent to the Richmond asylum several months ago, was considered sufficiently cured a few weeks ago to induce the hospital authorities to allow her to come home on parole or probation, so to speak. She has been home with her parents, who live in Bloomington, for about a week, but today noon her father reported to the sheriff that she had disappeared from home at 8 o'clock this morning and had not since been seen.

Amos McOscar has been accepted by the Richmond hospital authorities for recommitment.

Today County Clerk Belot received the following rather unique note: Fort Wayne, Ind. June 26: Dear Sir, I wish to inform you, that if Mr. Jacob Wilhelm of Dunfee comes to apply for a license, please do not give him any, for he is 82 years old and sick in bed, and is not capable of doing and his housekeeper is coaxing him to marry her, just for his money. Yours truly,

The letter was not signed, neither did the writer explain how Mr. Wilhelm was expected to apply for a license in person as long

Nourish the Weak Nerves, Build Up Wasted Tissue and Purify the Stagnant Blood in August.

Paine's Celery Compound

Nature's Summer Medicine,
The One Great Health Builder.

Paine's Celery Compound supplies the needs of the weak, sickly, and diseased in a way that no other medicine can do. It never fails to brace and strengthen the weakened nerves; it forms new tissue, and quickly purifies the foul and stagnant blood, allowing it to course with freedom and life to every part of the body. Paine's Celery Compound is the great purifier of the blood, and the weak and rundown nervous system.

The use of a few bottles of Paine's Celery Compound produces results that are most astonishing and happy to the sick. The thin, emaciated body soon takes on solid flesh, the skin is clear, the eyes bright and sparkling, pain in the back is banished, the liver and kidneys work healthily, the digestive organs do duty with unfailing regularity, feelings of new energy and well being take the place of nervousness, despondency and melancholia.

Nourishing the nerves, the formation of fresh tissue, and cleansing of the blood by Paine's Celery Compound, means a new, vigorous, and happy life. There can be no failures when Paine's Celery Compound is used; it truly "makes sick people well."

The Use of a Few Dollars

For a week, or a month or a few months will cost you but a trifle.

KILLED IN TEXAS

WILLIAM SCHWARTZ VICTIM OF

BODY WAS BADLY MANGLED

COULD NOT BRING IT HERE FOR INTERMENT.

MORE NEW ENGINES COMING

PENNSYLVANIA ASSIGNS 25 TO WESTERN DIVISION.

William Schwartz was killed in a railway accident at El Paso, Texas, Thursday night. The only news of the terrible affair received here was in the shape of a telegram yesterday morning, sent by a daughter of the deceased to his sister, Mrs. Louis Traub, of 1002 West Jefferson street, which read as follows:

"Father was killed in an accident last night."

Another telegram received this morning was in response to an inquiry if they would bring the remains here for interment. It stated that, owing to the mangled condition of the body, it was necessary to bury it immediately and interment would take place at El Paso.

The deceased was about fifty-two years old, married and besides the widow, three sons and a daughter survive him. He also leaves three sisters and three brothers, all residing in this city, viz: Mrs. Louis Traub, Mrs. Henry Lapp, Mrs. Isaac Baker, Charles, Frederick and August Schwartz.

William Schwartz was a locomotive engineer and up to the time of the American Railway union strike he was employed on the Wabash road and resided in this city. His service on that road began April, 1874, when he became a fireman. March 29, 1880, he was promoted to engineer and continued steadily in service in that capacity until August 6, 1894, when he resigned. Shortly after the latter date, he moved to Texas and was immediately given employment on the Southern Pacific road, where he remained up to the time of the accident which cost him his life.

Edgar Schwartz, the oldest son of the deceased, was visiting his Fort Wayne relatives and left this city for his home last Wednesday, the day preceding the one on which his father was killed, and had not reached home when the accident occurred.

CALLED TO THE B. & O.

R. J. Schmoll, a carpenter, resigned his position at the Pittsburgh shops today and this evening he will go to Garrett to work in the Baltimore and Ohio shops. His brother, George A. Schmoll, has general supervision of shop work at that place pending the introduction of the piece work system, and it is presumed that Robert will be given a foremanship in due time.

GAVE A STAG PARTY.

L. G. Dailey, of the Pennsylvania shop clerk's office, entertained about a dozen of his fellow clerks at a stag party last evening. Cards, music and speeches served to make time fly rapidly until 11:30, when an appropriate and appetizing luncheon was spread before the guests. Mrs. Dailey is in Chicago, where she will be joined this evening by her husband.

ENTERTAINED BY AUXILIARY.

Mrs. R. S. Pettit was entertained by the Ladies' auxiliary of Friendship lodge, No. 70, International Association of Machinists, at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. S. Doriot, on Masterson avenue, yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Pettit will reside at Auburn in the future. He is a machinist and has taken a position with the Model Gas Engine company.

CAMPING AT FAREWELL LAKE.

Otto W. Crapser, passenger and ticket agent of the Lake Shore and Lake Erie and Western, and Arthur Crapser, fireman on the Nickel Plate, with their wives and children, are at Farewell Lake, Mich., where they will spend a week in camp. H. P. Ferree, night operator at the freight office, is looking after affairs at the ticket office during the absence of Mr. Crapser.

HAS A FACTORY NOW.

Fort Wayne people interested in railway work are in receipt of neatly printed and illustrated copies of a catalogue from the Bliss Electric Car Lighting company, of New York. This indicates that Mr. Bliss has organized a company and has engaged in the manufacture of his car lighting machine, work which was previously done at the Fort Wayne Electric works in this city. Mr. Bliss was here for that purpose several months. One of the Pennsylvania cars is equipped with his system and the Sentinel is informed that it is giving satisfaction. The Bliss lighting machine draws its power from the car axle.

PATTERNMAKERS SOAR.

For the first time in the history of Fort Wayne there is a very embarrassing shortage in the ranks of patternmakers. Some of the shops are so short on this kind of labor that work is badly handicapped in other departments through it. Supt. A. E. Barnes, of the Electric works, said this morning that some good patternmakers could find steady employment in that establishment.

NEW ENGINES COMING HERE.

Twenty-five new engines are to come to the western division of the Pennsylvania road within the next five months. Fifteen of these will be big freighters of H-6 A pattern and they will all be delivered before January 1, 1903. The other ten will be passenger engines of the E-2-A pattern, exactly like engine 7167, now in the service. These engines will not begin to arrive here until January. August ordinarily is not a very busy month with the company, but there is enough business at present to keep every engine moving, and at times there is a shortage in the power. When the grain movement sets in there will be a greater demand for power.

GONE TO THE SANTA FE.

T. H. Houck, who recently resigned the position of chief clerk in the freight department of the Lake Erie and Western at Findlay, has gone to Los Angeles, Cal., where he has secured a similar position in the offices of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe company. Mr. Houck is a brother to Robert and Jacob Houck, of this city, and formerly resided here.

THE ACCIDENTS.

Machinist S. C. Campbell had the big toe of his right foot injured this morning by a big clamp falling upon it. Boilermaker E. Klingman received an ugly cut on the left side of his nose from a punch flying up and hitting him this morning. George McCarthy, a laborer, had his left arm burned this morning by getting it in contact with a hot pipe. W. F. Simmons, a machinist apprentice, had the index finger of his right hand cut this morning, while at work about a machine. Alex. Gothe, a laborer in the shop yards, dropped a piston rod on his right foot, crushing the great toe and bruising the other toes. All of the foregoing are employees of the Wabash.

In making its exit from the Pittsburgh round house last evening, engine 539 left the rails just east of the building and tore up the track considerably.

Fred Schmidt, an employee of the Electric works, had an eye injured yesterday by a piece of brass striking it. No permanent injury will result.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

The "Six Hopkins" company went to Goshen this morning.

Harry W. Kover, a boilermaker, took a position at the Pittsburgh shops this morning.

Blacksmith Foreman Joseph Slater, of the Bass works, has returned from a business trip to Pittsburgh.

Anthony Rose, a machine operator at the Anthony Wayne works, is confined to his home by sickness.

Nickel Plate Conductor F. B. Maxwell is threatened with typhoid fever. He has been sick several days.

A. A. Hilton, manager of the Bass foundry in St. Louis, is in the city on business with the parent office.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hooking Valley road will be held in Columbus Oct. 7.

The Big Four has under consideration double-tracking its line from Cincinnati as far as Springfield.

J. C. Hahn was transferred from the lamp department to the laboratory of the Electric works this morning.

David Murray and Charles Hans, blacksmiths at the Wabash shops, are off duty today on account of sickness.

Machinist E. E. Tierney, who was sick a couple of days, resumed his duties in the Pittsburgh round house this morning.

Passenger brakeman John Leykauf, of the Pittsburgh, will go to Milwaukee tomorrow to spend a few days with friends.

Clerk H. A. Phillely, of the Pennsylvania road foreman's office, has gone to Marquette to spend a few days with relatives.

J. H. Granville, a machinist who took a position at the Wabash shops three months ago, has resigned to return to the west.

Louis C. Joly and A. F. Watson are new names on the Pittsburgh shops' pay rolls. They have been assigned to the round house.

Blacksmith Owen Barry, who had a hand severely injured some time ago, will resume his work in the Pittsburgh shops next Monday.

Mrs. O. M. Busby, wife of a Nickel Plate conductor, has gone to Cleveland to attend a picnic given by the O. R. C. and the auxiliary.

Foreman A. S. Durnell, of the east car shops' tin department, and his wife, left this morning for Chicago for a few days' visit with friends.

Robert Shellhammer, of the Bass boiler shop, is in Eaton, Ind., today arranging for the erection of two immense smoke stacks over a big steam plant.

William Harlin, machinist, and John Klemeyer and Homer Heona, blacksmith helpers, resigned their positions at the Wabash shops this morning.

The Bass company today shipped the low pressure side of a 28 and 54 by 60-inch engine to Pennsylvania, and will send the other portion of the engine in two weeks.

Nickel Plate Brakeman W. H. Clements, candidate for representation at the next meeting of the legislature, is taking a lay off to look after his political interests.

Calder F. A. Cole, of the Pittsburg, who is taking his vacation, left for Upper Sandusky this morning to spend a few days with relatives. He once resided in that place.

Tonight the American Express company terminates its agreement with the Cincinnati, Richmond and Muncie road and the latter will establish an express line of its own.

The Fort Wayne Electric company will put in a lighting plant at Waterloo, Ind., and this morning sent a car load of machinery and supplies up to that city. The dynamo is of 1,000 light capacity.

Charles Seils, employed at the Pennsylvania east yards, painfully injured one of his legs last evening while brazing an engine. He will be off duty for several days on account of the mishap.

A car load of young goats, which stood in the Wabash yards several hours yesterday, attracted considerable attention, especially from boys. The animals were consigned to parties in Defiance, Ohio.

H. H. Matthews, of the Pittsburg planing mills, and his family have gone to Decatur for a week's stay with relatives. Henry Madison, of the planing mills, has also gone to Decatur to stay a week.

Pittsburg Shopmen S. Enckedocker, C. H. Tweedy, A. F. M. Dornie, C. E. Romy, Fred Lenz and William Wartenbe are sick and off duty. J. H. Beitzell, J. H. Cody and Charles Lucas are taking a lay off to look after private matters.

H. P. Shattuck, formerly trainmaster of the New York Central, recently appointed general yardmaster at Buffalo, was on Tuesday presented with a crisp $1,000 bill, the employees of all departments sharing in making up the purse.

The power on the interurban failed for a few minutes yesterday afternoon and car Indiana, with several passengers, stopped upon the Wabash tracks on Fairfield avenue. A freight train was flagged and delayed a short time by the accident.

The Royal Hunting and Fishing club of Pittsburgh, which had been in camp at Rome City two or three weeks, passed through the city last night en route home. The railway furnished a special sleeper and a special baggage car for the party.

The fact that Charles Kronmiller, of the Pittsburgh planing mills, has applied for transportation for himself and wife would indicate an intention on his part of getting married soon. The Sentinel reporter is unable to give the young lady's name.

Relatives in the city have received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kossington, stating that they are residing at 2804 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill. This couple was married some time ago and made the announcement last Tuesday, to the surprise of their friends.

The Illinois Central has acquired thirty-six lots in Memphis, where its new shops will be erected. The improvements contemplated are expected to cost $1,000,000. The machine and car shops will be the largest on the southern system and will give employment to 500 men.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Mason will leave on Pennsylvania train No. 24 this evening upon an eastern tour, which will embrace Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands and several points of interest in Canada, ending in a visit with their daughter, Mrs. E. Gillen, at Lorain, Ohio. Mr. Mason is a Pennsylvania engineer.

James Tryphall, of the Pittsburgh blacksmith shop, will leave next Monday for Salt Lake City, and his heater, M. H. Morrison, with his family, has gone to Kokomo. They expect to be absent from the city about two weeks. Blacksmith M. K. Griffith, of the same shop, has taken a lay off for the purpose of attending the festival.

Freight agents do not expect the shortage in cars coming fall that characterized former seasons. This very welcome condition will be due to several causes, chief among them being the adoption of the per diem rule for charging for cars that have been taken to foreign lines. Another cause is the great additions that have been made to the equipment of all the roads of the country.

A stock train with a load of 700 tons and hauled by engine 7167, covered the 148 miles between Chicago and Fort Wayne, on the Pittsburg road, in five hours yesterday afternoon, including one hour's stop at Hamlet to pick up another car and to await the passing of a passenger train. Engineer J. C. Pearson and Fireman J. Weeden were in the cab and Conductor D. Herman had charge of the train.

The progress of the Wabash show that one-half of the work of grading between Kings Junction and Pittsburg is complete, and twenty-one miles west of the Ohio river, about two-fifths of the total, is finished. The trans-Ohio work, which has been a little slow, will be pushed, large forces of men having been set at work this week.

W. Y. Cherry and Harry Hogan assisted the Columbia City ball club in the game with the Columbian Giants at Columbia City yesterday afternoon. The game was the best ever witnessed in that city, the score being 3 to 5 in favor of the Giants. Mr. Hogan pitched and Mr. Cherry played third base. They resumed their respective places in the Pittsburg machine shop this morning.

IN NORTHERN INDIANA.

The cornerstone of the new U. B. church at Geneva will be laid Sunday.

Veteran soldiers of DeKalb county held a reunion at Butler on Thursday. F. E. Weidman, long a citizen of Decatur, died Friday at the age of 75 years.

The automobile bus line between Auburn and Garrett was started Friday. The machine carried twelve passengers, and the sum of 25 cents is charged for the round trip of twelve miles.

J. M. Shelly, a prominent real estate man at Elkhart, has sued Dr. G. W. Spohn, of Elkhart, for $10,000 damages, alleging that he received permanent injuries from the X-rays as applied by the doctor.

Miss Mamie Robinson, 19 years of age, died Friday at her home south of Huntington, as the result of an accident ten months ago, when she ran against a clothesline with such force as to throw her to the ground.

Matt & Shurtliff, electrical contractors, have filed at Huntington a mechanic's lien against the property of the Fort Wayne and Northwestern company, demanding $2,780.01, which they say is due them. On the other hand, the company claims the electrical firm has not completed its contract, but that they are ready and willing to make settlement when this is done.

HILL'S HOPE IS IN HARMONY.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 23.—David Bennett Hill came to Saratoga last night to attend the meeting of the democratic state committee today. When he reached his rooms half a hundred democratic leaders from various parts of the state called on him and made glowing reports of democratic prospects. Mr. Hill told them that he thought the party had a good show to win.

"There is no reason," he said, "why we should not win at this election if we nominate suitable candidates and present a suitable platform. We must, and I believe we will, have complete harmony in every part of the state. All the reports received by me are gratifying."

"Have you anyone in mind for a gubernatorial candidate?" he was asked.

"No, and I do not believe anyone can tell whom the convention will nominate. It is too early to talk about that yet."

Bliss G. Galer's name was heard more than that of any other man for the gubernatorial nomination. Some of the up-state men like Norman E. Mack.

ABOUT THE CITY HALL.

The special committee to whom was referred the proposition of investigating the electric lighting plant, as related to a new contract with the Fort Wayne company and the suggestion of erecting a municipal plant, met last evening. John W. White, president of the Jenny company was present at the meeting upon invitation, and gave such information as he could in reply to questions. He said that the proposition which he had made some months ago involving the surrender of the lighting plant now in operation, to the city for a stipulated sum, had not been disposed of and he thought it was considered a dead issue. He said he had disposed of his stock in the lighting plant and had told the purchasers that there was an outstanding proposition; he did not know however how the new controllers of the plant felt now about disposing of it for municipal purposes. He said he would communicate with them and would be pleased to give the committee such information as he could glean. When Mr. White hears from the authorities of the new concern he will communicate the fact to Chairman Hendch of the committee, who will then call another meeting of the special committee to formulate a formal report for the council.

The committee on contracts and franchises will meet again tonight when it is expected, as well as hoped in certain quarters that the Fort

WEALTH-LADEN GYPSIES.

New York, Aug. 23.—Elias J. Ivanovich, with his wife and eight children, were held over night by the immigration authorities at Ellis island, and this in spite of the fact that he had with him $10,000 in gold coin and $10,000 in jewelry. When the family landed from the freight steamer Byron it was suspected they were gypsies, and until they could prove their good intent in coming to this country it was decided to lock them into their story. When it was seen that they were possessed of wealth that fairly took the breath from the examiners it was too late to do anything more in the matter, but it is probable they will be released. They are Servians and will live in this country.

Elias, the head of the family, is a man about fifty years old. He is more than six feet tall, with impressive bearing and was clothed in picturesque attire. Under his waist, beneath a Persian lamb coat, he wears a belt containing Spanish doubloons three deep. His watch chain is of massive silver, studded with turquoise and of large size. No less grandly attired was his oldest son, who likewise wore a belt of doubloons. His wife's ears held gold earrings nearly two inches long, and in the ears of his pretty daughter were large pearls.

CAR DASHES DOWN A HILL.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 23.—A cable car crowded with passengers got away from the gripman at the top of Ninth street incline at the Union station here last night, and sliding to the bottom at a terrific speed, crashed into a train that was stalled there. The passengers were hurled in every direction and the grip car on the runway train and the rear coach of the other train were reduced to a mass of twisted iron and splinters. W. E. Taylor, the gripman on the first train, was instantly killed, and at least twenty persons were injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 23.—One man was killed and five injured in a head-on collision between two Baltimore and Ohio freight trains in Clayville tunnel early today. A Ritzmour, fireman, was crushed to death in the wreck, and E. D. Reynolds, brakeman, was fatally injured. Four trainmen, names not reported, were hurt, though not seriously. Both engines and a number of cars were demolished and the tracks were blocked for several hours, trains using the Panhandle tracks to Pittsburg.

Mrs. D. W. Souder is slowly recovering from a serious illness and will soon be able to be about.

M. H. Wefel, of this city, socialist nominee for congress, delivered a political address at Auburn last evening.

Sam Wolf, of Wolf & Dessauer, has gone to New York city to purchase new goods for the fall and winter trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Budd Johnson, of Washington boulevard, will visit friends and relatives in Auburn for a few days.

There will be no services tomorrow at St. John's Lutheran church owing to the absence of Rev. Danneker from the city.

Dr. P. D. Hughes, of Kansas City, is the guest of his father-in-law, Dr. C. B. Stemen. Dr. Hughes is returning from a visit in New York.

Mrs. Leola Hutchinson, of West Main street, has returned from her former home at Benton, where she was called by the death of her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Budd Johnson, of West Washington street, entertained a few friends Thursday evening in honor of Miss Dora Jacobs, of Napoleon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. LeSage Ten Breck have returned from Macatawa Park, Mich.

Mr. TenBroeck, who was very seriously ill for some time, is now considerably improved.

Some one made an attempt yesterday to poison dogs owned by Dr. L. A. Worch and Fred H. Myers. The animals, which are valuable, were saved only after much effort.

The crack base ball team of East A. T. P. A., will go to Marion on Labor day to play two games with East N. The Fort Wayne team has lost but two games in three years.

David F. Ault, of Fairmont place, was taken to Hope hospital last evening to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Ault is an insurance man, and is under the care of Dr. M. E. Porter.

Miss J. C. Didier left yesterday for South Bend, where she will visit her daughter, Sister M. Coell, before departing Sunday for Salt Lake City, Utah. Sister Coell was formerly Miss Flora Didier.

Miss Clara Keller entertained a company of young ladies last evening in honor of Miss Bertha Ordstadt, of Kendallville, and Miss Carrie Krantzfield, of Terre Haute. The evening was spent in a most delightful manner with music and cards and at 11 o'clock refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Keegan gave a "stag" party at their home last evening in honor of Harvey Cunn, whose wedding occurs early in September, and a laughable feature provided by Mr. Keegan was a "sack shower," where contributions included every size of this garment known to the commercial world. An elaborate supper followed the card games and the evening was a most pleasant one.

PASSED STATE BANK BILL

A Valueless Ten-Dollar Note Given at a Saloon—General News of the Police.

Uxford Allen, a young man born and raised in this city, was bound over to the circuit court this morning by Judge Drebbelbis in the sum of $500 on the serious charge of larceny and obtaining money under false pretense. Several weeks ago young Allen went into the saloon of Mrs. T. E. Frick, on Chicago street, and bought three bottles of beer, in payment for which he offered a ten dollar bill. The bill was an old state bank issue and was upon the bank of New Brunswick, New Jersey, and was issued in 1864. Mrs. Frick regarded the bill suspiciously, but was assured by her customer that it was all right; that he was an employee on the sewer and had just received it in payment. Thereupon she gave him $0.75 in change and the man, the change and the three bottles of beer went out through the front door. Some days later her son informed her that the bill was worthless and the matter was reported to the police, who kept the affair under cover until they could identify the man who passed the bill, he being unknown, personally, to the landlady. Last evening he was pointed out to Detective Gelling and the arrest of the young man followed. Last evening the young man's father appeared at police court and represented that the passage of the bill was a mistake and offered to make restitution if the boy was discharged. He was informed that the matter was then in the hands of the authorities and that nothing in the way of release was doing. This morning young Allen pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was conclusive and he was bound over in the sum of $500. Today his father and Attorney A. H. Bittinger are trying to arrange a bond.

GOT A STIFF SENTENCE.

Stoffeb Weber, a young fellow dressed in blue jumper and overalls, was arraigned on a charge of bringing stolen goods into the state. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, to which was added a jail sentence of 120 days. Weber was arrested yesterday at Woodburn by Special Deputy Sheriff Miller, to whom he had sold a set of harness for $1. Weber admits the theft but says he does not know from whom he stole the harness. He says he worked for a man in Ohio, just across the line from Woodburn for several days, but never knew the name of the man. Night before last the farmer paid him off and the next morning he got up early and started for Woodburn, stopping first at the barn and appropriating the harness. The reason the owner is not known is probably because he has not yet discovered that his harness is missing.

POLICE NOTES.

The patrol wagon was called last evening to take B. E. Ault, of 125 Fairmont place, to St. Joseph's hospital. He is seriously ill, probably from typhoid fever.

A. W. Scott, of 1520 East Wayne street, reported to the police that a sneak thief had entered the house last Thursday evening and stolen a pocketbook containing $0. The family was in the back yard enjoying the evening breezes and the purse had been left lying on the dining room table. The front door was open and entrance was easy. The police have no clue to the thief.

Ed Kline, the high and chief up-stillion of the Moochers and the principal siddim of the Temple stage, had an exciting experience last night. He lives at the corner of Murray and Clinton street and about 8 o'clock thought he discovered a burglar in his house. He was afraid the man might lose something and gave chase, but the fellow got away in the darkness and escaped across the railroad tracks. Mr. Kline says he knew the burglar couldn't find anything and had ought to have known better than to waste his time trying to burglarize his house.

Street car No. 316 ran into a Pack and truck last evening at the corner of Wayne and Calhoun streets. One of the horses was knocked down, but no serious damage was done.

Russell Quintance, a lad of 13, ran away from his home at Bucyrus, Ohio, yesterday and his father thinks he will show up in Fort Wayne. The police department has been furnished with a description and is requested to detain the boy if found.

COL. HOGELAND HERE.

Col. Alexander Hogeland, boy and girl reformer, the newboys' friend and father of the curfew, who is touring the leading cities of the country establishing the curfew and urging the adoption of other municipal regulations in behalf of youth, came to this city last evening from Terre Haute, and will address the newboys and others at Clinton and Berry streets at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Colonel Hogeland is an authority on methods for home-building, child-saving and crime-reducing. Colonel Hogeland has appeared in Fort Wayne on previous occasions, and is a most entertaining and instructive speaker. He will in all probability speak in some of the churches tomorrow.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS TO HOLD CONVENTION.

Fort Wayne Delegates Leave Tomorrow—Patrick Ryan, of This City, State President.

Tomorrow evening the delegates to the bi-annual conference of the Catholic Knights of America, from this city and adjacent portions of the Fort Wayne diocese, will leave for Terre Haute, where the regular business session will be opened on Tuesday morning.

On Monday, the committee on laws will hold an important meeting and it is for the purpose of getting the views of the delegates generally on some important matters to come before that committee that most of the delegates will be in Terre Haute a day or two before the date of the session.

Patrick Ryan, of this city, the old veteran in about everything that pertains to the army, the navy, Catholicism, Hibernian orders and things in general, a man respected by all who know him and loved by all who know him better, is the state president of the state organization and will leave with the balance of the congregation tomorrow evening, via the Wabash.

Mr. Ryan has been a member of the C. K. of A. for nearly 30 years and has never missed a state convention. Besides the state president, Mr. Ryan, the following named delegates from the various branches in this city will leave tomorrow night: Joseph V. Fox, John H. Welch, John K. Woulfe, J. J. Romary, John Fry and James J. Lauer, all delegates from Branch 103, representing the cathedral congregation; Joseph J. Erbsberger, representing Branch 737, of St. Peter's congregation; Henry Allgeier, representing Branch 556, of St. Mary's congregation; Mr. Schmitt, representing Branch 827, of the Church of the Precious Blood and H. H. Schaefer, representing the church at New Haven. E. L. Gallagher, of Columbia City, who by the way is the sheriff of Whitley county, will join the Fort Wayne delegates here as representative of the congregation and order of his city and Henry J. Traders, of Avilla, E. J. Seccort, of Garrett, and a delegate from Kendallville, whose name President Ryan did not recall, will also be here to join the Fort Wayne party. Letters have been sent to the branches along the line between this city and Danville, noting the time of the arrival of the train at the several cities, and inviting the delegates to join the others on the train and go into Terre Haute in a body.

Among the most important measures that will be presented to the convention and which will first be a subject of consideration for the committee on laws, will be a proposition to reduce the sessions of the state conference from two to four years, and the other will be an amendment to the constitution and by-laws, which will provide that members who have been in good standing for ten consecutive years shall not lose their rights from non-payment of dues and assessments, when such failure to pay is occasioned by sickness, distress or lack of employment; the proposition is to get a permit from the supreme council to allow each branch to take care of its own indigent members in any way that it sees fit. City Comptroller Fox is a member of the committee on laws and with him are associated Judge Edward D. Beardon, of Anderson, who is chairman; Henry Scheerer, of Vincennes; John B. Murphy, of Jeffersonville, and Sheriff Ed L. Gallagher, of Columbia City. State President Ryan says that the committee on laws is the most representative committee ever seen in the organization.

LOCAL LINES.

Mrs. Harvey Brown and son, Ralph, have returned from Rome City.

Miss Mary Carroll has returned from a visit of two weeks with the family of ex-County Assessor Greer.

Mrs. M. S. Wilson, who was visiting her sons, Harry and Fred, in Grand Forks, N. D., arrived home last evening.

Huntington Herald: Mrs. William Trovinger, of Fort Wayne, is in the city spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McKitt.

The Misses Charlotte Vogler and Myrtle Schick have returned from a visit of six weeks spent with friends at Frankmunh and Saginaw, Mich.

Mrs. Isabelle Hartsuff Cherry, of Jackson, Mich., who for several years was a resident of Fort Wayne, is visiting Mrs. Ed Dillon, of 2037 Calhoun street.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Zeidler and son, Clayton, have returned to their home at Cleveland after a two weeks' visit with Mrs. Zeidler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Lepper.

The Fort Wayne lodge of Elks is arranging to vastly beautify its lodge rooms. New steel ceilings and decorations will be installed, and much elaborate furniture added.

Rev. C. B. Sweeney, of Upland, Ind., will preach at Trinity M. E. church tomorrow morning, and Rev. Sherman Powell, of Redkey, Ind., will fill the pulpit in the evening.

Miss Sophie Nagel, of East Jefferson street, is a patient at Hope hospital, where she submitted to an operation for appendicitis. Miss Nagel is under the professional care of Dr. H. A. Duemling.

Fay Updyke has entered the employ of I. G. Stafford as a press-feeder. The young man is a son of J. V. Updyke, the well known evangelist who conducted services at the West Jefferson Street Church of Christ some years ago. Fay has worked at the printing business in Cincinnati for some time past.

Rev. Ed McCluskey, who will occupy the pulpit of the Third Presbyterian church tomorrow, began the study for the ministry while he was employed as a compositor in The Sentinel office. He is well known to the printing craft here and many of the printers will doubtless attend his meetings. During his stay in the city Rev. McCluskey will be the guest of Mrs. Dikenderfer. He is now living in South Chicago, where he has charge of a very prosperous congregation.

A NEW VOCAL

And Elocution Teacher for Fort Wayne.

R. Capoul-Cuttriss Ward, of Chicago, who will be in this city once each week after Sept. 10th, brings the most favorable notices. He was the leading baritone of the Carl Rosa Opera company, and has met with great success in his oratorio singing in England. He is a pupil of Lamperli, whose method he uses, and he brings recommendations from Madame Patti, Sig. Ardit, and many others of the noted musicians of England and Italy. He claims for his method, immunity from throat troubles, through the economy of vital energy, natural breath control, elasticity and repose of all the muscles used in voice production. Mr. Ward is considered by the operatic managers of the country to be a leading exponent of operatic roles, and is regarded as one of the first vocal teachers of the country.

MAD ANTHONY'S TWO GRAVES

BONES OF FAMOUS SOLDIER FOR WHOM FORT WAYNE IS NAMED REST AT RADNOR; HIS FLESH AT ERIE.

Fort Wayne's history is indissolubly linked with the memory of the famous revolutionary hero from whom the city took its name. The cycle of years that have elapsed since General Mad Anthony Wayne in his dashing campaign against the Indians reached the junction of the St. Mary's and the St. Joe rivers, built a fort at the point which commanded the waterway in three directions have brightened rather than dimmed the tale of his glory, and the story of his activity is perpetuated in the splendid city which has risen to mark the spot where the fearless fighter planted his banner more than a century ago.

Every Fort Wayne citizen is familiar with the location of the old fort, yet hundreds of visitors each year go to the eastern terminus of Main street, where a pretty little plot, triangular in shape, enclosed by iron railing and blossoming with flowers marks the precise spot where the old blackhouse stood. It was easily the central figure of old Fort Wayne, and around it cluster treasured memory and anecdote of the pioneer days. "Old Fort park" it is called, though the last fragment of the fort disappeared many years ago. There are still citizens living who remember well the outlines of the old building surrounded by a stockade, and there is yet in Fort Wayne one citizen, at least—the venerable Louis Feltier—who was born within the walls of the frontier fort.

Many older families of the city, also have canes, chairs and other trinkets made from timbers secured years ago when the old fort was dismantled, and these keepsakes are valued highly. No trace of the old structure remains on the site today, but rising above its center is a staff flying the stars and stripes. An old piece of artillery from the civil war also occupies a place there, and toward the eastern point of the triangle is mounted on massive masonry a defense gun from the old Spanish batteries at Santiago.

RESTS IN TWO GRAVES.
Turning from the center of General Wayne's activities here, passing by the perpetuation of his name in city, in street and in countless manufacturing concerns who find the name "Wayne" an attractive prefix, a curious bit of circumstance is presented as one seeks to learn of his resting place. For among the many distinctions accorded to the deeds of Major General Wayne, and whose memory is commemorated in the new Stony Point park, in New York, there is the singular one that his mortal remains occupy in part two separate graves in different parts of Pennsylvania, each of which is known by suitable inscription as "the grave of General Wayne." No other public man can claim this unique distinction.

"Mad Anthony," after the close of the revolution, was appointed commissioner of the American government to treat with the northwestern Indians and to receive the surrender of the military posts given up by the British at the cessation of hostilities. He had completed the task assigned to him and in November, 1790, was on his way across Lake Erie from Detroit to Fort Presque Isle near Erie, Pa., when he was attacked with gout, and on Dec. 15, of that year, (1790), died in the blackhouse which he had himself erected at that place.

There was a high bluff, known as Garrison hill, in the neighborhood of the blackhouse, on which a flagstaff had been set up, and at his expressed wish he was buried on the spot where the flagstaff then stood. The coffin, covered with cloth, on which was his name in brass nails, was placed in a brick vault, and there the remains of the brave and chivalrous Wayne lay for thirteen years without notice or recognition.

FINDING THE COFFIN.

In 1809 some memory of the patriotic warrior was aroused in the breast of his family and his son, Col. Isaac Wayne, accompanied by a friend of his father, an old army surgeon, went to Presque Isle in a two-wheeled vehicle to search for the grave and remove the remains. The flagstaff in the meanwhile had disappeared and no clue apparently remained to guide them. Singularly enough, when they and a number of citizens were about to give up the search the chance meeting with a boy who was tending cattle on the hill supplied the information and they were thus by accident enabled to locate the grave.

The body of the old general was found in a state of almost perfect preservation, so much so that even his military clothing, boots, etc., were not in the least affected by decay, and were given to an old soldier, who donated them with pride and wore them for a long time in honor of his old commander.

A new difficulty, however, presented itself at this juncture to Colonel Wayne, the two-wheeled conveyance

being found insufficient to carry the remains intact to the place destined for them. After consultation the only means feasible was to remove the flesh from the bones. This was done by boiling, the flesh so removed being placed in the coffin and reburied in the vault.

The bones were then taken by Col. Wayne to St. David's church, Radnor, Newton township, Pennsylvania, where they were buried, and over which in the same year the Pennsylvania Society of Cincinnati erected a marble monument eight feet in height at a cost of $500, duly inscribed to the memory of the gallant dead and dedicated with imposing civic and military ceremonies.

The original grave at Fort Presque Isle, containing the flesh removed from the bones as already described, was in the meantime forgotten for sixty-seven years, and was only discovered in January, 1876, by accident. Fort Presque Isle became Erie (the blackhouse had been burned some thirty years before), and in 1872 a smallpox hospital was erected on Garrison hill by the city authorities.

THE ORIGINAL GRAVE.

In 1876 the physician in charge of the hospital was partial to horseback exercise, and in going to and returning from the hospital rode a spirited horse. In going over the ground at a lively rate his attention was drawn to a spot which sounded hollow under the horse's hoof, and, having investigated the cause, the original grave of General Wayne was again discovered, the coffin lid studded with brass nails being once more in evidence.

Removing the lid, the dried flesh and the knives with which it had been removed from the bones were found. Near the grave also was found the footpiece of the old flagstaff, made of two chestnut logs in the form of a cross. The finding of the grave at the beginning of the centennial year caused a great deal of satisfaction, and on Memorial day a large body of veterans visited the grave and steps were taken for the purpose of erecting a monument on the spot.

Three years later—1879—the state of Pennsylvania appropriated $1,500, and a committee was appointed to carry out the design. A new stone was placed over the grave, with a suitable inscription, while the old coffin lid, with its inscription in brass-headed nails, is preserved in a frame covered with glass.

The design of the Erie monument is that of the original blackhouse erected there in 1797 by General Wayne. It is built of squared oak logs, well notched together at the corners. The first story is sixteen feet square and ten high, and the upper story is octagonal in shape and made to project several feet over the lower floor, from which a flight of winding steps leads to the upper floor. The roof is octagonal and is finished to a point in the center from which waves the flag of the country the old warrior served so well. Four Parrott guns sent by the war department are placed outside, and the building is in charge of a custodian.

Thus a peculiar train of circumstances has combined to give Major General Wayne the distinction of having his memory honored by two graves, one at Radnor, Pa., where rests his bones, and the other at Erie, Pa., where is deposited all that remains of the flesh which once covered his mortal frame.

EBEL FOR THE CHAPERON.

The chaperon is not so much of an institution in the breezy west as she is in the east, and in some quarters there are rather lax ideas as to her duties and responsibilities. One western girl, the freedom of whose life had made her exceptionally independent and self-reliant, gave an excellent illustration of this at an eastern summer resort. She was under the protecting wing of an eastern matron with very strict ideas of propriety. The matron found her charge one day sitting on the hotel veranda with a strange man, and naturally she was perturbed. She took a chair reasonably near them, to give the girl a chance to present the young man, but the girl ignored her. Finally, in desperation, the matron tried to instruct the girl by signals what to do, but the latter only smiled and shook her head.

When the young man left the matron asked who he was.

"Oh, he's from Denver," answered the girl.

"It is a chaperon's duty to decide who are proper acquaintances for a young girl," explained the matron. "You should have presented him to me."

"I suppose so," answered the girl, nonchalantly. "But, you see, he wasn't a very good reputation, and so I thought it better you shouldn't meet him."

On another occasion this girl, who thought it her duty to protect the chaperon, was present when an international marriage was under discussion.

"Well," she announced decisively, "I'd never buy a husband, anyway." "Oh, this wasn't that kind of a marriage," explained one of the other girls. "Of course, she's rich, but she didn't have to settle any part of her fortune on him. He is merely to have so much a year." "Perhaps that's safer," admitted the westerner, without any effort to conceal her contempt, "but buying them on the installment plan always seems to me unsatisfactory and cheap."—Boston Journal.

Machines for blowing glass by compressed air are being tried experimentally by the window glass trust. If they do all that they promise they will displace the present process of glass blowing by hand—or rather by mouth—which is slow, costly and very wearing on the health of the men.

PEN NAMES OF AUTHORS

Hundreds of people have indulged in fruitless speculation as to the reason for the choice of pen names by so many of the authors of the past and present day. Why, it has been asked, should the late Charles Kingsley's talented daughter choose to be known as Lucretia Mallet? According to her own confession her modesty was the motive which induced her to conceal her identity, so that any failure on her part should not dim the luster of her father's fame. For this reason she combined the names of two clever women in her family, one of whom was Miss Mary Lucas, the maiden name of her father's mother, and the other Alice Mallet, her grandmother's name, both of which names she has thus rescued from oblivion.

With lady writers the fear of family criticism seems to have been responsible for many assumed names. Mrs. Alexander, for instance, the author of "The Wives of Men" and other delightful novels, adopted the Christian name of her husband, Alexander Mester, and under this name won her fame before she was even aware that she had written a line, and Miss Sarah Grand, knowing that her husband, Surgeon McCall, did not approve of her views, concealed her identity under the name now so widely known and which she chose on account of its plainness.

It is curious, by the way, how many lady authors have selected unattractive and even ugly pen names. Olive Schreiner won her laurels under the almost repellent name of Ralph Iron; Mrs. Craigie chose to be known as John Oliver Hobbes, deliberately selecting the least attractive name she could think of, so that it might not be recognized as a woman's choice and that it might warn her against yielding to womanly sentimentality in her writing, and for similar reasons Mrs. Arthur Stannard presented herself to the public as John Strange Winbar, as unbecomingly a name as one could easily conceive.

Many writers have reduced the mystery of their names de plume to the utmost simplicity by simply using their Christian names, as Mrs. Thomas Anstey Guthrie, who chose to be known as E. Anstey; Forbes Phillips, as Athol Forbes; Anthony Hope Hawkins, as Anthony Hope, and A. R. Hope-Moncrieff, as Ascel R. Hope.

It is curious to observe how almost invariably the pen names of lady writers are either avowedly masculine or without indication of sex, as George Eliot, Maxwell Gray and G. M. Hutton (Mrs. Mona Caird).

Miss Ada Ellen Bayly arrived at the name Edna Lyall, now so familiar to us, by the simple process of transposing some of the letters of her own name, and Mlle. De La Ramer, as is known, adopted her public appellation "Ouida," which was the nearest approach a very youthful sister could make to the pronunciation of her Christian name, Louisa.

Some pen names have a distinctly humorous origin, as Luke Sharp, which suggests the obvious meaning that occurred to its owner, Robert Barr. Mostyn T. Pigott preserves his initials in the amusing form of Medium Tom Pinn.

The name Mark Twain was, as is pretty generally known, suggested to Mr. Clemens by the cry of a leadsmen on a Mississippi boat when the lead indicated that the boat was in shallow water; Rev. John Watson arrived at Ian Macdorm by using the Gaelic form of John and adding his mother's name of Macdorm, and Max O'Rah made a combination of his grandfather's Christian name, Maxine, and his grandmother's patronymic, O'Reilly, to the familiar Max O'Rah.

The cyanide process briefly is the dissolving of fine gold in the crushed ore by a dilute solution of cyanide of potassium and the subsequent precipitation of the gold from the solution of cyanide with fine zinc shavings. The ordinary plant is inexpensive and simple in operation. The cost of the process is small.

DRUGS AS AID TO CRIME

Knockout Drops Used by the Low and Cowardly Criminal—Some Other Drugs Used.

Many mysterious crimes in a great city and many puzzling circumstances are directly attributed to what is popularly known as "knockout drops." Every few days the police are called upon to look up cases of robbery in which the circumstances point either to the fact that the victim has been a consummate idiot or that drugs or drinks have robbed him temporarily of every vestige of sense.

Time after time the police are called upon to unravel mysterious robberies. The man usually turns up at the station the morning after an "all night of it" and reports that he has been robbed of such and such a sum. Inquiries into the case show that he had gone out the night before with such and such persons and after a certain time he lost all consciousness. When he awoke in the morning he had a very bad taste in his mouth and his pockets were empty.

In many instances these cases are simply drunks. The complainants have wasted their substance in riotous living and when they have recovered their senses feel sure that they have been robbed, when in reality they have spent their money foolishly while under the influence of liquor.

Much devilry, however, is carried on under cover of "knockout drops." Drugs that have a soporific effect are carried by both men and women of the tough class and many a man has been relieved of a fine fat wad of money through the influence of a drug that has been administered in his beer or other drink. The police are continually running up against cases of this sort.

CALL ON DRUGGIST FOR AID.

The most unscrupulous and the most cowardly criminal is the one who calls upon the druggist to aid him in his nefarious business. There are many drug stores, especially in the "levee" district, where there is frequent call for morphine and for chloral hydrate. The former is easily soluble in any liquid and is very powerful and quick in its action. The only trouble with morphine is that it is dangerous. An overdose is fatal and it is an easy matter to administer too much. Fatal results are not sought by this species of cowardly criminal. Death results in rigid investigation and the penitentiary awaits the detected criminal.

Chloral hydrate, on the other hand, is easily administered in beer or whisky, and while it is not so powerful nor so rapid in its effects still it is effective in many cases. This drug has a pungent taste and a rather pronounced odor. It is usually obtained in a saturated solution and not used until the victim is pretty well intoxicated, so the taste will not be perceptible.

Its effect is soporific. The person who has been drugged by it usually feels a dizziness come over him. A few minutes later it is all up with him and a person could rob him with impunity. Said one druggist:

"I have calls for chloral hydrate every little while, but I will not sell it. I know what it is to be used for. I think a druggist who sells it to any but physicians should have his license revoked."

"I have known where a big price was offered for a bottle of the drug. In fact, not long ago a man came to my store and offered me $10 for a small amount of the drug. He wanted, so I ascertained, to use it on a party of men in his room. They were playing poker and he wanted to skin the whole gang. I refused to sell it and ordered him out of the store."

MISCREANTS USE DRUGS.

Lecherous brutes put knockout drops to the most dastardly use. Many a young girl, giddy, but not wicked, can trace her ruin to the use of one or the other of the drugs used by the criminal class to aid them in their crimes.

A favorite method is that of placing the stuff in candy. If the girl may be induced to drink wine the drug is administered in that manner. Helpless, under the soporific influence of the medicines, the girl falls an easy prey to the cowardly brute who would take so mean an advantage, and many a career of shame has been begun through the administration of one or the other of these criminal drugs.

Not long since two women on the north side robbed a man of considerable money through the use of some drug. They, however, gave him an overdose and he died from the effects. The women became frightened after they found he did not revive and fled, leaving him sitting in an unconscious condition.

Elderly men from the rural districts who come to town with a nice little roll of bills and want to see the victims of the great city are often the victims of the knockout users. The bewhiskered victims fall an easy prey to pretty women and the rest is easy. A few cold bottles and a few hot baths and a little of the drug and the elderly gentlemen with the sportive proclivities has been separated from his hard-earned coin.

The police aver that there is not nearly as much of this sort of business going on as is reported. They say people have an idea that it is an easy matter to work that sort of game, when in reality it takes some dexterity and some nerve to carry out such a scheme.

In the first place, the criminal must take care that his victim does not taste the drug or suspect what is being done or a scene is likely to follow and arrests be made. There is also the danger of death resulting and this deters many from trying the risky game.

Gamblers resent the imputation that drugs are used about the card table, yet druggists aver they know gamblers often use drugs to help in their games. The fact that habitual gamblers call for these things is evidence conclusive in the druggist's mind that they use them to help in slaying their victims.

THE PRESIDENT'S YACHT

No president of the United States has ever enjoyed such luxury as falls to the lot of Mr. Roosevelt. For his summer's outing he has one of the most luxurious yachts in the world—a vessel which cost its original owner, Ogden Godet, of New York, a round $800,000. Mr. Godet's widow sold it to Uncle Sam for $450,000 when the war with Spain broke out, and that is how the ship happens to be at the disposal of the chief executive at the present time.

Mr. Roosevelt has always been well-to-do—he inherited about $50,000 and his wife had some money of her own—but never up to now has he been able to live as rich folks do. A steam yacht must have been beyond his wildest dreams. Nevertheless, thanks to one of Dame Fortune's most surprising upsets, he finds himself provided this summer with one of the handsomest pleasure crafts in existence. Not even the royal yachts of the king of England and the emperor of Germany are more elegantly and completely equipped.

Fifty thousand dollars have been spent recently on the Mayflower, and everything about her is of the latest and up-to-date pattern. Having been built for a multimillionaire, she is a miracle of luxurious convenience. Aft, on the main deck, is the spacious dining room of the president extending clear across the ship, and adjoining it is a reception room.

Immediately beneath, on the deck below, is a superb suite of state rooms, the two largest of which are occupied respectively by Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and by Miss Alice Roosevelt. There are four smaller rooms, allotted to the children when the family is on board, and two bathrooms, with silver-plated pipes and fittings. In each bathroom is a tub cut out of a single block of white marble and long enough to lie down in.

In short, the Mayflower, which has been newly adopted as the president's yacht par excellence, is literally a floating palace. The very walls of the dining room and the reception room are paneled with exquisite flowered silk, while the little corridor connecting these two apartments is adorned with panels of costly lace, which is painted in a curious fashion with silver paint, so as to convert it seemingly into so much delicate metal work.

There is also a library on the main deck next to the reception room, and in the forward part of the ship is a refrigerating room, with a wine room attached. Nothing imaginable that could contribute to comfort has been omitted. Within, the vessel is of convenient size, being 321 feet long, with a displacement of 3,000 tons. She is driven by triple expansion engines and is armed with six-pounder and one-pounder guns.

ACCEPTED FRIEND'S OFFER.

School teachers are credited with greater absent-mindedness than almost any other class. Some of the stories related of their failings in this respect are doubtless true; others are of doubtful authenticity. This one, however, is vouched for as strictly adhering to the facts:

A professor in one of the Swedish universities, having finished his labors for the day, was about to start home when a fellow professor called his attention to the violent storm raging outside, and said: "Why go home? Better remain at the college tonight."

He walked over to the window and surveyed the situation. "Yes, I think I will," he replied, nonchalantly, on all-absorbing topic of the classroom yet in mind.

Soon afterward he was missing, and it was supposed that he had changed his mind and gone home, but later he reappeared with a bundle under his arm and showing evidences of having been exposed to the storm. Something was said regarding his errand.

"Why," he replied, "I've been home after my nightshirt."

MAN-EATERS AMONG MIAMIS

HORRIBLE CEREMONIES FORMERLY PRACTICED IN THE VICINITY OF FORT WAYNE.

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)

There was one spot within the boundaries of the United States, and only one, of which we have authentic account, where man-eating people dwelt, and that dark spot was found within the geographical limits of what is now the states of Indiana and Illinois, where, prior to the beginning of the last century, was found a society of savages belonging to the Twightwees (Miami), known as the "man-eaters"—those who feasted upon the remains of prisoners of war that were burned at the stake.

Sixty years ago the writer was a resident of Fort Wayne, Ind., near which place the remnant of the Miami tribe of Indians were living upon their reservation. Fort Wayne was the principal trading point, and had been the seat of government, so to speak, of the Miami from time immemorial. Here also lived many Canadians, retired French traders and aged voyagers, from whom the writer obtained a fund of information regarding that powerful and influential confederation of Indians. One of the most interesting facts that I had investigated was the charge that prior to the beginning of the last century there existed a society of savages among the Miami known as the man-eaters—those that feasted upon the bodies of prisoners of war burned at the stake.

During the time that I resided in Fort Wayne I had seen frequently a very old, shriveled up squaw, a repulsive looking creature, who, it was said, was descended from the family of man-eaters.

I remember one Sabbath afternoon in the month of September, 1836, of taking a stroll with my aged friend, Jean Baptiste Bruno, the old Indian trader, who was then in his eighty-sixth year, hale and active. We had reached a beautiful spot—a small grove that skirted the bank of the St. Joseph river, about a mile above the town. Seated upon a log on the elevated bank of the stream, the gave me a thrilling description of the terrible deed of Gen. Harmar at this very spot in 1791. He was an eyewitness of that engagement, so sanguinary and disastrous in its results. While talking a canoe with several Indians in it was passing down the stream. On discovering Bruno the boat was headed for the shore and landed at our feet. I recognized at once that same disgusting old hag of a squaw as one of the party. After a short talk with Bruno the boat turned into the stream again and passed on to the town.

I told my companion of the oft-repeated story I had heard regarding this woman. He said that it was true; that he had known her for forty years; that she was the only daughter of "White Skin," the last head of the family of man-eaters. "I knew her father," continued Bruno, "when I first came to this part of the country to trade with the Indians in 1770. White Skin at that time was said to be 100 years old, and no doubt it was true; yet he was an active, industrious man, possessed of a very retentive memory. The family, during the time I knew them, consisted of the old man, an aged son and this daughter. They resided on Eel River, a few miles west of the Turtle village, the home of the great war chief of the Miami, Little Turtle, and about thirty-five miles northwest of Fort Wayne. They were known far and near as the man-eating family. They had no friends that I knew of, with one exception, and that was Father Badden, a French missionary. He frequently visited them and helped them when they were in want. They lived very secluded lives. The Indians seemed to shun them.

"The old man and his family manufactured buckskins—were tanners or dressers of deerskins. They excelled in that business. For a number of years I traded with them, purchasing their skins for the Detroit market, where I found a ready sale for them. It was in this way that I became intimately acquainted with the family. I generally went to their camp to make my purchases, and often had to remain over night at their hut, but I never partook of any meals with them, for they were too filthy in their manner of living and were too fond of dog meat to suit me, although I had often from necessity eaten dog meat; but it was prepared in a different manner from the way they served it.

"I found the old man had no reluctance to talk with me about the man-eating charge. I had gained his entire confidence. Having heard so much about this terrible organization when a boy living in Montreal, Canada, I remember that I dreaded to have my father leave home to go among the Miami. He was a trader at this point before I was born. When he died I took his place and continued right along until a few years ago.

"My good friend Pierre Beaubien, of Detroit, had requested me, at the first opportunity I would have, to obtain from White Skin a history of the man-eating order, and I did so.

"One night—a beautiful moonlight night—while seated on the grass in front of the bark hut, smoking our kinikinnic, the old man gave me the entire history of that portion of his life connected with the order of man eaters. And this story I have written and told so often that I know it by heart, as the school boys say. I have had to repeat it to many of the great men of the land. Among the number was Gen. Lewis Cass, Gen. (or Governor) Harrison, also the French avant and traveler, Count Volney, when he visited Vincennes. "White Skin said: 'To eat human flesh was a religious right conferred upon my forefathers many, many generations ago, when the Twightwees (Miami) included most all of the Indians living on this side of the big river (the Mississippi), and by hereditary descent passed from family to family. On the death of my grandfather my father and his only brother became the sole representatives of this order, each having the right to perform the ceremonies at the human sacrifices.'

"I asked him how often he had eaten human flesh, and did he assist in killing those to be devoured.

"No," said he, "the victims were always prisoners of war, and generally Indians from hostile tribes, and now and then a paleface. In my younger days I participated in a great many of these feasts. We all liked the taste of human flesh. It is much sweeter than the flesh of wild animals. We never ate it solely for the purpose of food, to satisfy hunger. We partook of it as a religious rite, although some of the Indians, when invited to partake with us, would eat more than others. My brother and sister liked it so well that they would eat until they were full. As time passed the custom gradually declined. The Catholic missionaries did much to stop these sacrifices. It has been over twenty years since I last tasted human flesh."

"White Skin prided himself upon the fact that he represented a family that had such great distinction conferred upon it. 'When I was about twenty years old,' said he, 'I attended a great feast of the order, held on the east bank of the St. Joseph river, near Kankakee (Fort Wayne). Bruno pointed to a plateau of ten or fifteen acres, just east of where we were seated, as the spot where these human sacrifices took place. 'We were notified the day before to be at the place of sacrifice by the following afternoon. We reached the grounds about noon. The faces of the entire family were painted black—even the papoose on its mother's back. A crowd of several hundred Indians already had assembled, anxiously waiting for the ceremonies to begin.

"The prisoner, a Sauk Indian, who was perfectly naked, fastened to a stake, was chanting his death song. He was brave. When the sun was yet about two hours high a squaw approached with a flambeau in her hand to ignite the fagots. The doomed man snatched the flambeau from her hand and set fire to his own funeral pyre. At this act of bravery the vast crowd sent up a shout of admiration. Then the dead body was laid upon the burning coals until it was well cooked. After a prolonged ceremony, my father cut off a piece of the flesh for each member of the family, presenting it to us on a sharpened stick, while we sat in a circle around the smouldering embers. After the family was all helped my father, in a loud voice, asked if there was any person present who wished to participate in the feast. Several men and squaws came forward and seated themselves in the circle. They were then told to help themselves. While the feasting was going on a deep silence prevailed, and just as the sun went down behind the tree tops it was announced that the ceremonies were ended, when a yell went up that shook the earth, and the carcass was left for the dogs to eat."

"On again filling our pipes, White Skin stated that his father and brother were both murdered while asleep in their camp on their return from one of these human sacrifices held near the mouth of the Wabash river. Then he became the head of the order.

"Did you ever conduct one of these ceremonies?"

"Yes, once only—and that was over twenty years ago, and then was the last time I ever tasted human flesh. My father's brother, a very old man, who was also a head of the order, living on the Calumet river, died the same summer my father was killed. His blanket fell upon the shoulders of his only child, a daughter, an old, decrepit woman. Soon after his death a prisoner was to be sacrificed; she sent a messenger to invite me and my family to come and assist her with the ceremonies.

YOUNG WOMEN

Take your Meals at the Y. W. C. A., 51 West Berry Street.

Strangers in the city referred to good boarding places. Meals served on the European plan at reasonable prices. Dinner, 11:30 to 1:30. Supper, 5:30 to 8:40.

We got ready and returned with the messenger. On reaching the village I found the old woman very sick in her wigwam, unable to take part in the exercises, and I had to do it all myself. The prisoner was a young white man, and I was glad of it, for I disliked to see the flesh of my own race, but had no objection to eating our then greatest enemy—the white man. There were not many Indians in attendance; they were on their big hunt. Everything passed off with much satisfaction. About the usual number of invited guests participated in the feast with us. At the request of the old woman I took her a piece of the cooked flesh, which she ate with an apparent relish. She died the next day. This left me the only representative of the great order of man-eaters. But never since that day has there been a sacrifice of life at which human flesh was eaten, conducted by the society of man-eaters.

"The place where these Calumet festivals were held," said Mr. Bruno, "was where is now located the town of Chicago and not a great way from the place where the bloody massacre of Fort Dearborn occurred in 1812, where my friend and neighbor, the brave Captain Wells, was killed by the treacherous Pottawatomies, the meanest and most detestable tribe of Indians in the northwest."

Louis Rameau, a French missionary, one of the first to visit the region of the Illinois and Wabash rivers, in a letter to a friend, a Catholic priest residing in Montreal, dated November, 1684, says:

"When on my way, in the month of June last, to the Ojibwa (Wabash) river I came upon a large assembly of savages (Twightwees) engaged in burning a prisoner at the stake—an Indian belonging to a tribe with whom they were at war. When I arrived on the scene the fierce flames were already wrapped about the victim, then in the throes of death. The savages danced around the fire, and in a state of frenzy brandished their war clubs, accompanied with demoniacal shouts and contortions. In sorrow and disgust I withdrew a short distance to wait until the excitement should subside, that I might expostulate with the savages against the horrible custom. On returning to the place of execution my senses were appalled upon beholding a number of the savages—men, women and children—seated in a circle around the smouldering fire, engaged in devouring the remains of the dead savage. While this horrid feast was going on a perfect silence prevailed—the savages seemed awe-stricken. I turned from the sickening sight, and on my knees besought our Heavenly Father to assist me to open the eyes of these poor, benighted creatures to the enormity of the heinous crime, that it might never again be repeated."

The missionary Brochu, belonging to a mission on the shores of Lake Huron, was sent to the Ojibwa village, at the head of the Miami (Manne) river, and by the performance of kindly offices secured the confidence and affection of the Indians of that locality. From a report of his missionary work performed in this section, filed in the church archives of Montreal, Canada, the following statement is taken:

"The Twightwees are very cruel in the treatment of their prisoners of war. They generally burn them at the stake, and frequently feast on the cooked flesh of the unfortunate victims. Those who engage in eating human flesh belong to a select number of the tribe, known as the man-eaters. So fond do they become of human flesh that no doubt they secretly commit murder to satisfy this dreadful desire."

Maj. Thomas Forsyth, who lived for a quarter of a century among the Sauks and Fox Indians, in 1826, in a written account of these two tribes, published for the first time in "Drake's Life of Black Hawk," wrote that "these Indians, the Twightwees (Miami) are said to have been very cruel to their prisoners, often burning them. I have heard of a certain family among the Miami who were called man-eaters, as they were accustomed to make a feast of human flesh when a prisoner was killed. For these enormities the Sauks and Foxes, when they took any of the Twightwees prisoners, gave them to their women to be huffed to death."

And we have the following statements from Gen. Lewis Cass regarding this matter. He was, no doubt, more conversant with the history and traditions of the Indian tribes of the northwest than any person living in his time. In the great oration delivered by him at Fort Wayne, Ind., July 4, 1843, on the occasion of the opening to traffic of the Wabash and Erie canal, he said:

"For many years during the frontier history of this place and region the line of your canal was a bloody warpath, which has seen many a deed of horror. And this peaceful town has had its Moloch, and the records of human depravity furnished no more terrible examples of cruelty than were offered at this shrine. The Miami Indians, our predecessors in the occupation of this district, had a terrible institution, whose origin and object have been lost in the darkness of aboriginal history, but whose orgies were held upon the very spot where we are now assembled. It was called the man-eating society, and it was the duty of its associates to eat such prisoners as were preserved and delivered to them for that purpose. The members of this society belonged to a particular family, and the dreadful inheritance descended to all the children, male and female. The duties imposed could not be avoided, and the sanction of religion was added to the obligations of immemorial usage. The feast was a solemn ceremony, at which the whole tribe was collected as actors or spectators. The miserable victim was bound at a stake and burned at a slow fire, with all the refinements of cruelty which savage ingenuity could invent.

"Here, where we are now assembled in peace and security, celebrating the triumph of art and industry, within the memory of the present generation our countrymen have thus been tortured and murdered and devoured. But, thank God, that council fire is extinguished. The heinous feast is over; the war dance is ended; the war song is unsung; the war drum is silent, and the Indian has departed to find, I hope, in the distant west, a comfortable residence; and, I hope also, to find, under the protection and, if need be, under the power of the United States, a radical change in the institutions and general improvement in his morals and condition."

PLAY SYSTEMS AT CARDS.

In gambling one thing is certain, and that is the very large percentage is in favor of the bank or the game. Caprice is the only law of chance. And the results are as fanciful as they are unanticipated. One summer—the last of John Morrissey's life—a party from Washington were making merry in the wine-room of the club house in Saratoga, among whom was a youthful attaché of the French embassy. Without remark this attaché suddenly rose, entered the playroom, and going to a roulette table tossed a $100 bill on ten, black. The dealer politely informed him that he had exceeded the limit. The attaché was insistent. Morrissey, snatching up, needed to the dealer to let it go. It won. Refusing to accept odds, the attaché gathered in his winnings and rejoined his friends. Half an hour later he did the same thing and was again successful. At frequent intervals he repeated his trips, invariably winning, never once losing until he had won $17,500, when his friends carried him off. As he left Morrissey remarked to a friend: "I never take the limit off that the bank doesn't lose." Nevertheless there was a profit on the night's play for the bank.

Only last summer a theorist watched for several successive nights the roulette game at Saratoga and conceived a system.

Seeking the proprietor he preferred his request.

"Got a system?" asked the proprietor with a smile.

"A winning system," was the reply.

"All right, then, I'll take the limit off for you."

Now, this great system consisted of playing red or black, no numbers, and doubling every loss and repeating the winning bet. Thus, if he chose red to play, he bet $1. Losing he bet $2; losing this he bet $4. If red then came up he would win $4, being one ahead, and repeating his $4 bet if red followed he would be $5 ahead. This successive turn up of the color he bet on he had calculated, based on his observations, would occur fifty times in 100 and make his winnings, for he would change his color every time he went back to his initial bet. On the night of his experiment he chose red to begin on and black won. More than that, black turned up seventeen consecutive times. On his tenth play he weakened, for two things broke on his mind: First, that if he did win that bet his profit would be only $1, and that if the run continued he would need the capital of a bank to play. He was out as it was $1,023. Fortunately for him he was a man of wealth.

If he had continued to double to the seventeenth bet he would have been $131,071 out. On the eighteenth turn red came up and his bet would necessarily have been $131,072. When his net winning would have been a single dollar. The next turn was black. So out of nineteen turns eighteen were black. His system had gone to pieces on the first application. Yet after he stopped the run of color was about as he had counted on for an hour. "It has cost me $1,023 to realize that there is nothing but caprice at the bottom of chance," was his comment.

"The system players," said a well-known gambler, "are a great source of revenue to the games. A lucky win by one of them sends in others in greater number. The player who knows nothing about the theories but gambles purely on chance placings more often wins the big money. But even there the bank wins 97 times out of 100." The dope-book sends get their money on the wrong horse 99 times out of 100.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PASS FROM HUMAN SIGHT

Phenomenal Frequency of Mysterious Disappearances—Some Recent Instances.

(Baltimore Sun.)

The discovery of Charles H. Newhouse, of Culpeper, Va., in South Africa, is not an uncommon sequel to mysterious "disappearances." Young Mr. Newhouse, who is a son of a member of the Virginia legislature and a man of political and social prominence in his county, came to Baltimore on the 23d of last December to sell two car loads of cattle. He sold his cattle the next afternoon, took dinner at a restaurant with some friends and then went to the theater. After the play Mr. Newhouse left his companions at the corner of Baltimore and Howard streets, telling them that he was going back to the Howard house, where he was staying. This was 12:15 o'clock Christmas morning. He did not return to the hotel, and that parting at the street corner was the last anyone saw of him or heard of him until his mother received a letter from him the other way telling her he was in Cape Town.

The failure of the young man to return to his home when he was expected caused uneasiness to his parents and inquiries were sent to this city. The people at the hotel knew nothing about him and it was believed that he had no intention of leaving the city, as his baggage was left in his room.

SEARCH WAS UNAVAILING.

The father came on a number of times, the police made a most careful search, large rewards were offered and pictures of the lost man were distributed far and wide. But nothing could be heard of him. If he had dissolved into thin air his disappearance could not have been more sudden and complete. It was known that he had a large sum of money on his person and was a man of regular habits. His father and friends finally concluded that he had been murdered and his body destroyed or effectively concealed, and he was given up for dead. Now comes the happy explanation of young Newhouse's disappearance. He had gone to South Africa without announcing his intention to do so.

The headline "Mysterious Disappearance" is not an unusual one in the daily newspapers. As a rule there is nothing mysterious about it, and in nine cases out of ten the so-called mystery is cleared up in a day or two by the reappearance of the lost man with some commonplace explanation of his absence. He may have been called away suddenly on business without having had time to communicate with his family and his family may have become unreasonably alarmed. In many instances the mysterious disappearance is due to a somewhat prolonged and seclusive drunk. In some cases the unexplained absence is prolonged and is due to a careless and selfish disregard for the feelings of others. Men upon a sudden impulse leave their homes without notifying their friends and finally reappear as if nothing had happened. Sometimes there is a crime to explain the disappearance. But now and then there are disappearances caused by mysteries which no man can fathom, the strange operations of the human mind and the mysterious maladies to which it is sometimes subject.

ROMANCE OF CHARLES.

On the 17th of last May a man died in a sanatorium in Los Angeles, Cal., having in his possession the great sum of $142,000 in cash. Nothing was known about the man except that he gave his name as Charles Hill. An administrator of the estate was appointed and the set to work to find out who Charles Hill was, where he came from and who he was entitled to his money. It seems that the man had disappeared from among his friends. No one knew anything about him and no claimants for the money came forward.

This week the mystery has been cleared up and by an accident. The administrator found among the effects of the dead man an old Bible and on the flyleaf there was what appeared to be an illegible inscription. Under the magnifying glass the word "Charles" and "Brim—Maas," appeared. The administrator went to Brimfield, Mass., and there found that the man's name was Salem Charles, that he was a native of that town and that in it he had numerous relatives who are entitled to the estate. No reason for the change of name or for the disappearance has been discovered.

In the first week of January, this year, a man walking one day down a street in Victoria, B. C., suddenly stopped as if he had received a shock. He put his hand to his forehead, and, feeling dizzy, went into a doctor's office. After receiving restoratives he told the doctor that his name was Franklin Strong, of Abideen, Mass. "I am a lawyer," he said, "and yesterday was trying a case in court there, defending an old lady who had been unjustly accused of stealing money. As I was leaving the court house I felt badly, but when I got home, and how in the world did I get here. I can remember nothing since I was on my way

SPECIES OF MENTAL DISORDER.

He said he had a wife and two children in Abideen, from whom he had mysteriously disappeared three and a half years before. These three and a half years had been blotted absolutely from his mind and memory and he knew of nothing that had occurred since Aug. 26, 1898.

The more usual form of this mental disorder is that described in Charles Reade's novel, "Hard Cash," and cases of that kind are not unusual. A man suddenly loses his recollection of all past events. Not long ago a stranger appeared in a New England town. He was perfectly sane and rational, but he could not tell his name nor where he came from. As to all events which occurred before he found himself in the streets of that town his mind was a blank and of them he had no recollection. He assumed a name and went into business, at which he was successful. Later on some incident recalled his past and he was restored to his family, from whom he had mysteriously disappeared. There are now and then cases like this, and one or two have occurred in this city. Sometimes those who disappear have been murdered, but the dead body is, as a rule, speedily recovered. It seems to be as difficult now to successfully dispose of a dead body as Eugene Aram found it in his dream or as Dr. Webster found it in reality.

DEATH LURKS IN THE KISS.

Since the kiss of Judas there have been many instances where that token of affection has resulted in death. Perhaps the most fatal kiss ever known was that given by a young Spanish sailor to his fiancée nine years ago, for it brought about the decimation of a town. A Spanish vessel put into the little seaport of Candalo, on the coast of Florida, flying the yellow flag, and was accordingly ordered to remain in quarantine, for more than one member of the crew exhibited symptoms of bubonic plague.

But the sailor disobeyed orders and put off in a boat for the shore one evening, where, having sought out his fiancée, whom he had not seen for some years, he kissed her. A few days later the effects of the kiss became painfully evident, though the culprit returned to his ship by stealth the same night. The girl succumbed to the plague, which spread through the town so rapidly that more than 200 persons died out of a total population of 1,600.

Kisses once cost the lives of many brave soldiers in the British army. The beautiful duchess of Gordon in 1794 raised the famous Gordon Highlanders by giving 1,000 recruits a kiss and a golden guinea apiece. The regiment was raised to its full strength in a few days.

The men were then sent out against the French and in the very first battle in which they took part more than 250 fell, either killed or wounded.

Previous to this, in 1715, a war was brought about by a thoughtless kiss on the part of a young Bavarian prince of somewhat reckless character, named Ferdinand. During a visit to a neighboring state he inadvertently kissed a beautiful member of the royal household, Princess Thyra, ignorant of the fact that she was already affianced. Her betrothed happened to be standing near and witnessed the incident.

High words ensued, followed by blows, and a duel was arranged which led to the discontinuance of diplomatic relations between the two nations. A war broke out ultimately and resulted in thousands of deaths before there was a declaration of peace.

Before a burglar could tunnel into the money vaults of the Philadelphia mint he would have to pierce a solid rock so full of veins of water that the smallest opening is immediately flooded. The gold vaults are of steel seven inches thick, and the silver is protected by one inch of steel.

POLO, PING-PONG AND GOLF

Timely Gossip of Three Popular Pastimes.

POLO ENTHUSIAST

Imagine a group of Americans planning to spend $50,000 next year to win a trophy abroad! The only venture that first suggests itself on this basis is the international yacht race for the America's cup. Millionaires have expended nearly a million dollars in a season to contest for and defend that ancient looking silver trophy. But the $50,000 is to be spent in gathering and training polo ponies to relieve the deficits suffered by the American team in the recent contests at Hurlingham. Capt. Foxhall Keene, the distinguished polo player, Wall street operator, with his father, James H. Keene, golfer, yachtsman, club-fellow and immensely wealthy patron of sports, has forsaken automobilism as a representative sport, and will eschew golf to devote his leisure to polo. He expects to lead a team on the turf in England next season that will be successful.

Polo is a rich man's game. In vain the enthusiastic members of the country club teams may write letters to the editors of metropolitan papers, urging them to give more space to polo, and emphatically denying that the sport is so costly that it is confined to the classes, but the fact remains that polo in the west at least is interesting only the leisure folks at the country clubs. In the east, great crowds turn out to see the matches—all England would be at Hurlingham if it could be accommodated when a great contest is on—and the most widely discussed poloists to-day are George J. Gould, his sons, Jay and Kingston, and Ben Nicoll who play as the Lakewood team.

As in the game of golf, so in polo, the boys are in the ascendancy, and soon the veterans must give place to the prolific youngsters. The young Goulds are rapidly becoming such experts that Foxhall Keene will have to look to his plus minus handicap or he will find he is being outclassed. The Gould boys are 13 and 14 years old. It is said that their mother recently, in watching their reckless yet brilliant work on the polo field, shuddered to think of the consequences of a fall or collision, and subsequently urged the lads to eschew such rough and dangerous sport. But when Mr. Gould and his sons and Mr. Nicoll attracted a great throng at Van Cortlandt park in the match with the crack Squadron A soldier team, and won a hard fought game from the soldiers, the old American love of outdoor sports and dashing recklessness overcame her motherly instinct to shield her boys from possible dangers. She withdrew her expostulations and the lads play the game every evening with their father, who, like that other disciple of the strenuous, President Roosevelt, loves to have a tump of the "young 'uns" following after him as the ponies go dashing across the sward.

POPULARITY OF PING PONG

Ping-pong must not be despised. Not only has it become the rage at every summer hotel, every country club, in the parlors of the rich and the people of moderate means, but it has taken a firm hold on the royalty and nobility of the old world. Ping-pong has added words to our language—words that some day will be incorporated with the long list in the standard dictionaries. Ping-pong has caused doctors to take up new Latin terms for afflictions of the eye muscles caused by watching the bounding celluloid ball on the green table. Ping-pong has advanced steadily from a novelty to a great blessing for those afflicted with ennu.

It was recently while Kneigh Collins, the former western tennis champion, who seemed almost as invincible in his class as was Bob Wrenn before the latter became a rough rider and got the fever in Cuba, was being

"joshed" by some golfers about his proficiency in ping-pong, that a friend came to his rescue. "Don't you know that great diplomatic international problems are going to be solved by ping-pong in the future?" he asked. "Bismarck and Napoleon knew nothing of ping-pong, yet they played battle-door and shuttlecock with the diplomats of the world. But the other day the sultan of Turkey was introduced to the mysteries of a 'dence set' by a Russian statesman who is also an army officer. Perhaps when some nation clamors for the payment of a debt the 'Unspunkable Turk' will invite the representative of that country to play a set of ping-pong and if the foreigner permits the sultan to win he may get a chance to collect his bill."

Ping-pong has been taken up in the navy. One-half of the ward room of the splendid new battleship Kearsarge, that recently returned from a cruise to South America, has been given over to ping-pong tables. Ping-pong has been a "leveler" on this ship. The senior and junior officers, who used to sit at separate messes on account of the arrangement of the room, now dine together so that the ping-pong tables may have their places. Paymaster W. L. Wilson, of the ship, is the champion. He has beaten all the officers and even the surgeon and chaplain have fallen before his little racket. If the ship gets into a foreign port soon, the paymaster may send challenges in the various princes and potentates who play the game.

NOVELTIES IN GOLF CLUBS

Shades of Allan Robertson! If the veterans of "golf" as the game were played in Scotland more than half a century ago were to visit a U. S. G. A. championship tourney how they would deary the use of the variety of clubs that the brilliant young golfers are playing with. The old bulger, drivers and brasses, the ugly-looking spoons and the clumsy putters, to say nothing of the irons and the more or less indescribable club that was the progenitor of the modern mashie, used by Robertson and men of his time have given place to all sorts of "freak clubs."

This is the year for aluminum in golf. The aluminum midiron, mid-spoon, mashie, spoon, putter—in fact, all clubs but the driver, and that does not seem to enjoy much of a vogue when made of aluminum—seem to have caught the popular favor. These clubs are made in England, too, and that seems treasonable to the Scotchman, who is slow to adopt any "improvements" on the material of a half century ago, more especially if the same are the result of "Yankee ingenuity." The Scotchman rebelled against the use of the rubber filled, American patented golf ball until the adoption of the globe by the contestants in the championship at Hoylake forced them to use the ball or he out-driven and out played by weaker golfers. And now the Englishman has insisted on using aluminum where formerly the player used a hand-forged iron that showed the grain of the metal and clicked like a musical instrument when the hard gutta percha ball was struck by it.

Few now use the gutta percha ball, and so many have the aluminum clubs that the "music of the spheres," so delightful to the old golfer, has degenerated into a "punky, dull thud" that is scarcely heard by the caddy a few feet away from the player who uses the new clubs.

"These aluminum clubs began to get their vogue in the west when the young college players, who had learned to use them while in the east, brought home their bags full of golf paraphernalia," remarked an old golfer. "I was rather dubious about their use, and thought they were a 'fad' until the national championship came, when I saw so many of the players using aluminum. Alce Smith, a promising candidate for the championship (open), which he threw away last year after having Willie Anderson beaten for the premier trophy, swears by the aluminum, and showed by his score of 75 the first time he went around the Glenview golf course that he knew how to use the spoon for approaching. He was deadly with the aluminum clubs, and says that with a hard blow he can elevate a ball from a poor lie to clear the biggest tree on his course, even if he is very close up to the tree. It looks as if the day of the polished steel, the bright midiron, the pretty hand-forged mashie and the grained putter had passed and the time for aluminum had arrived."

NINE HUNDRED FEET UNDERGROUND.

AN AMERICAN CIRCUS IN BORDEAUX.

When Barnum & Bailey's circus pitched its tents in Bordeaux, France, recently, the canvas was erected in the Place des Quinances. In the very heart of the city and the principal public square and show place of Bordeaux. That a private enterprise of this kind should be given the use of a public park is surprising to Americans, who relegate such shows to vacant lots. A circus in Madison Square park, New York, or on Boston Common would almost be cause for a riot.

HEATHERBLOOM, CHAMPION HIGH JUMPER.

Heatherbloom, the champion high jumping horse of the world, with a record of 7 feet 4 1/2 inches, is a feature of all the summer horse shows. The picture shows him clearing the bars when he made his record. The horse has jumped 8 feet 3 1/2 inches, but that is not an official record. The jump was witnessed by five men and measured by two. He was ridden by his trainer, Richard Donnelly. Heatherbloom is owned by Mr. Howard Willet.

of adventure he took it full of hope to a publisher, who promptly declined it on even the most advantageous terms. Twenty years afterward this identical publisher brought at his hands a sensational story—one of those serials which were the delight of grisettes—offering any price within reason. "Well," said De Montepin, "I will oblige you, but my terms must be somewhat heavy; I want £1,000." After many protests it was paid. In telling the story De Montepin added: "The best of the business was that it was the very same story which he had previously rejected, and which I had in various directions endeavored in vain to dispose of."

viously rejected, and which I had in various directions endeavored in vain to dispose of."

REFUSED TO GRANT A LOAN.

A well known business man was standing at an F street corner talking with a friend the other afternoon, when a seedy looking chap, with a bloated countenance and a whining voice, approached and tackled the business man for the loan of a dollar. The business man gruffly declined the shabby chap's appeal and told him to be on his way in a center.

This rather puzzled the companion of the business man, who knew the latter was of an extremely charitable and open-handed disposition—a man who rarely resisted the appeal of the commonest street beggar and who made it a point never to turn down an appeal for financial aid from unfortunate friends of former days.

"You no doubt think it odd that I sent that fellow, whom you could see knew me by my first name, on his way with such suddenness and severity. So I might as well put you right in the matter. That fellow is the only man in the world that I actually hate and despise and I marvel at his gall for bracing me for as much as a sneering. And I'll tell you why I despise him. We two are of exactly the same age and we were brought up together in this town in the same neighborhood. He was the model of the neighborhood. I was the hoodlum of the neighborhood. And that boy was thrown up to me morning, noon and night. I never did anything absolutely vicious or wrong, but I was simply a tough kid, at the head of all the boyish devilry going on and never out of mischief.

"That fellow was a marvel of all that was good—good in a boy. He never got into mischief. He never got in trouble with his folks. He was the whole thing as to tidiness, punctuality at school, lesson-learning and all that sort of thing. So, of course, he was thrown at my head constantly. My mother and all of my sisters every time I got into some sort of a scrape that required a warning would wind it all up by asking me why I couldn't be like little So-and-So, naming that fellow. Naturally I grew to hate him. I couldn't help hating him. I longed to kick the daylight out of him, but I was solemnly assured that if I ever did so I would be put in a reform school and that scared me. But I woke up and went to bed hating that model boy.

"Well, now he's a booze bum and he brags me on the public street for a dollar. Time is a pretty hot old boy, isn't he? But I'd rather give all the money I have on earth to build a mormon church, than ever hand that ex-model boy one cent."—Washington Post.

FIRST TRUST IN HISTORY.

The trust is not as new a thing as most people imagine. They have existed ever since the necessities of man created commerce. The earliest form of trust that ever existed was undoubtedly the cornering of foodstuffs by monarchs and their agents. Accounts of such transactions are to be found in Assyrian records dating back 7,000 or 8,000 years, and the Bible describes a very large operation of this kind carried out by Joseph, when out of the wealth of the seven fat years he provided for the poverty of the seven lean ones.

The Romans did the same thing through their tax farmers, who laid embargoes on the food supplies of the provinces against arrears of taxes, and the probability is that similar operations were also conducted with regard to manufactures.

Another form of monopolies, known as trade guilds, has existed from the very early times, and these in the middle ages amounted practically to the cornering of certain arts and industries, as well as means of distribution. The greatest of them was the famous league of the Hanse towns.

So close a "combine" was this that it possessed its own fleets of armed merchantmen and even armies of mercenaries in order to guard its monopoly—a length to which not even American capitalists have yet ventured to proceed.

HAD A CHOICE OF WORDS.

A few weeks ago a resident of Chicago, being on a visit to Columbus, Ohio, called upon an old friend, the chief physician of the insane asylum there, and was shown through the institution by the physician and the superintendent, who told him many interesting anecdotes about the various inmates. One, an Irishman from Steubenville, that state, had been brought to the asylum at a time when it was filled almost to its capacity, and the superintendent, turning to one of the physicians, had asked:

"Doctor, what ward would we better put this new man into?" The Irishman recognizing that he was the new man referred to, spoke up and said: "Indade, an' I say-ye very little what ward yez put me into so long as it beez dimmered!"

MARVELOUS DEVELOPME

A Century's Wonderful Evolution in Fruits and Flowers—What Has Been Done.

(David Fairley St. Clair in Success.)
If the farmers and gardeners among the 80 million people who now inhabit this country should plant this year only seed of the quality that their great-grandfathers planted a century ago, the United States would not export grain, cotton, beef or fruit; but, instead, there would be a famine in the land.

A century ago most of the seeds used by American farmers were brought here from Europe, but by themselves they would not grow here with results equal to those attained in their native soil. Crossed with our indigenous plants, fruits and grains, in the infancy of their cultivation, our apples held on to the bitterness of the wild crab, our grapes continued sour, our pears were juiceless and our peaches retained their pungent acidity.

Our native maize, being little removed from the wild state, and having no possible cross from abroad, yielded little grain and much cob, and our cotton ran to stalk and seed without a desirable staple. The wild strawberries and blackberries, whose "lucious" cultivated progeny now satisfies the universal palate, were then the forgotten children of the fields and hedges. Many of the flowers of field and wood, whose lovely children and grandchildren thrive in the hot houses of metropolitan florists, lifted their pale hues to the unheeding glances of the retiring red men and sent feeble fragrance into the unconscious nostrils of the man hunter.

Apples, grapes, Indian corn and many cultivated fruits and vegetables were found here, either in the wild state or grown by the red men, and we have some slight knowledge of what these wild plants were like. We know what the wild crab apple, one of the parents of many of our best apples now, was and is, the product of a tree overgrown in wood, and as much at home in the forest or hedge as in the orchard. The fruit was always small, ill formed, bitter and warm eaten, but the frontiersman encouraged this wild tree to grow in his yard and soon it began to show the result of his care. Near it stood a tree brought from Europe.

The imported tree was feeble; its fruit failed to ripen, and was faulty. It was not acclimated. It needed as much the vigor of the wild crab apple as did the latter the European form and pulp and sugar in its fruit and a ridance of its burden of wood.

The native and imported fruits were crossed, and by long and tedious care in selection "and" in "crossing with thousands of varieties, we now grow the finest apples in the world. The Rhode Island Greening, with its many modifications, has long been a favorite for its pleasant acidity and its excellent keeping qualities. For a century, too, the Baldwin and the Newtown pippin, both chance results, have added glory to the apple crop of New England. In the flesh and blood of these magnificent fruits are doubtless the vigor, tenacity and endurance of their ancestor, the wild crab, which graced the yards of the Pilgrim Fathers. These famous apples, no less than the men and women of this New England generation, inherited the character of the first settlers, who, in turn, acquired from the soil the toughness and tenacity of the wild crab. The Concord grape, the first of all for hardiness, endurance and health, was the chance discovery in 1840, of Ephraim Ball, near Concord, Mass. It certainly has in it the vigor of the New England climate and the keeping quality of New England granite. Where did this grape come from? If all the hard, scrubby vines growing in New England hedges a century ago could speak, some of them would doubtless claim this marvelous offspring as a cross with some fine European grape.

It was not until the beginning of the Nineteenth century that scientific efforts were made to increase the values of fruits, flowers, vegetables, cereals and fibrous plants, in this country, but quite all the families of these plants have been improved in quality and varieties have been increased. Indeed, in some of them, the quality has been improved a hundred-fold and the variety multiplied a score of times.

There is an apple, a peach, a pear, a grape and a melon for every soil in this country that can possibly grow them, and for many localities there are scores of fine varieties. In no other sphere of cultivated plant life has increase in value been so marked as in floriculture. When a layman visits a great flower market in a city, he is astounded at the endless varieties of roses, chrysanthemums and carnations. He wonders how on earth so many forms and colors were produced in these flowers. Let him not forget that a flower, more than any other thing that springs from the sod, is the language of the human soul. A flower is, by nature, very ready to express itself in variety. It yields most easily to all the moods of man. Plant a rose, and the chances are nine in ten that there will spring from the plant one or more buds unlike the parent in form and color. Plant a snow white chrysanthemum, and dream you will have a red or a variegated one in the coming flower—and, behold, you have it!

So each of these three families of flowers is capable of endless varieties, and florists for the last twenty-five years have multiplied the varieties ad libitum. Within the past fifteen years, more than seventy varieties of chrysanthemums have originated in this country. The violet, too, is now grown for the multitude, whereas, thirty years ago, only the few could have it. W. H. Smith, the superintendent of the national botanical garden at Washington, says that, in 1850, there were only eight potted palms in all this great country. In no other branch of purely ornamental art have the American people made such progress as in the cultivation of plants and flowers.

Our flowers and plants stand for more than our physical needs. In them, hardly less than in our houses, our books, our pictures and statuary, and our music, are represented our imagination and spiritual life as a people, and also as individuals; for the plant, as completely as the fish, the fowl, the quadruped, and man himself, represents the unity of life. The law invoked to grow a better grain of wheat, or a better grape of apple, is indeed the self-same law by which man climbs to claim his better self. Within the pulp of the wild, sour fox grape, that hung from a vine upon a New England hedge, was the germ of the Concord grape, even as in the cave-man was the ancestor of a Washington. In the ages past, each type has been developed, and the whole procession—plants, animals, and men—must march on in accord with the law of evolution.

The violet, too, is now grown for the multitude, whereas, thirty years ago, only the few could have it. W. H. Smith, the superintendent of the national botanical garden at Washington, says that, in 1850, there were only eight potted palms in all this great country. In no other branch of purely ornamental art have the American people made such progress as in the cultivation of plants and flowers.

Our flowers and plants stand for more than our physical needs. In them, hardly less than in our houses, our books, our pictures and statuary, and our music, are represented our imagination and spiritual life as a people, and also as individuals; for the plant, as completely as the fish, the fowl, the quadruped, and man himself, represents the unity of life. The law invoked to grow a better grain of wheat, or a better grape of apple, is indeed the self-same law by which man climbs to claim his better self. Within the pulp of the wild, sour fox grape, that hung from a vine upon a New England hedge, was the germ of the Concord grape, even as in the cave-man was the ancestor of a Washington. In the ages past, each type has been developed, and the whole procession—plants, animals, and men—must march on in accord with the law of evolution.

WAS BURIED ON SUSPICION.

The law courts sometimes furnish a morsel of humor. Not long ago a certain person who figured on the register of an English revision court was objected to by one of the agents on the ground that he was dead. The revising barrister declined to accept the assurance, however, and demanded conclusive testimony on the point. "Pray, sir, how do you know the man's dead?" demanded the barrister.

"Well," was the reply, "I don't know. It's very difficult to prove."

"As I suspected," returned the irate barrister. "You don't know whether he's dead or not."

"I was saying, sir, that I don't know whether he's dead or not, but I do know this—they buried him about a month ago on suspicion."

NOT OVER WISE.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl seated at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by all druggists. 8-14-2m

WERE GOOD AFTER ALL.

The eminent French novelist, Xavier De Montepin, who died recently, had, like most of his craft, experienced hard times at the beginning of his eventually very successful career. To some experience he always referred with particular zest. On concluding a long and elaborate tale

Every woman in the country ought to know about

Mother's Friend

Those who do know about it wonder how they ever got along without it. It has rubbed children of its terrors for many a young wife. It has preserved her health and saved her much suffering. It is an external liniment and carries with it therefore, absolutely no danger of upsetting the system as drugs taken internally are apt to do. It is to be rubbed into the abdomen to soften and strengthen the muscles which are to bear the strain. This means much less pain. It also prevents morning sickness and all of the other discomforts of pregnancy.

A druggist of Macon, Ga., says: "I have sold a large quantity of Mother's Friend and have never known an instance where it has failed to produce the good results claimed for it."

A prominent lady of Lamerton, Ariz., writes: "With my first six children I was in labor from 21 to 30 hours. After using Mother's Friend, my seventh was born in 4 hours."

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

MR. AND MRS. ADAM WEBER TO CELEBRATE TOMORROW.

Pioneer Fort Wayne Couple Completes Fifty Years of Happiness Together.

From the dawn of a wedding day fifty years ago down through half a century of life with its alternate sunshine and shadow, its joys and its sorrows, is a period longer than is couched in the greater majority of brides and grooms. But when the completion of that fifty-year cycle finds both husband and wife yet living and hale and hearty, it is a rare thing.

MR. AND MRS. ADAM WEBER.

ing in the identical city where the marriage vows were taken, both enjoying excellent health, able to take an active part in the duties of life and brought closer and closer together by the ties that have grown stronger in the test of time, the case is still more remarkable.

Such, however, is the history of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Weber, of 313 Montgomery street, who tomorrow will celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding. It was fifty years ago tomorrow, in St. Mary's Catholic church in this city, that Rev. Father Heller, long since deceased, pronounced the service that united Adam Weber, then 21, and Miss Margaret Heil, aged 22, in marriage. Their entire married life has been spent as residents of Fort Wayne, and for forty-two years they have resided at their present location on Montgomery street.

LOVERS IN GERMANY.

Mr. and Mrs. Weber were lovers in Germany, and the perseverance of the laws then in force in that country were responsible for a pretty little romance. Mr. Weber was born December 25, 1837, and in boyhood was apprenticed to a shoemaker, from whom he acquired a thorough knowledge of the business. His wife is also a native of Germany, having been born at Frankfurt-on-Main, May 25, 1830. The husband was serving as a soldier in the German army when the two met. Under the laws then existing in the empire it was impossible for the young soldier to wed his intended bride until the completion of his military service. Love was impatient. "The soldier loved his country, but he loved his intended more," Love conquered, and Mr. Weber and Miss Heil happily embarked for America. Fort Wayne was the objective point, for Mr. Weber had an uncle here, John Weber, who had been a pioneer shoe maker in this city, and the father of John Weber, Jr., cashier of the Hamilton National bank.

There was no ocean grayhounds then, and it was thirty-three days after the lovers sailed from Germany May 22, 1852, before they set foot upon America at New York. Reaching Fort Wayne by the slow and primitive methods of travel then available they went at once to the home of Mr. Weber. But a few weeks later and fifty-two years ago tomorrow the marriage was solemnized. It was the beginning of a life of happiness and contentment already prolonged beyond the usual limit of human companionship, but which countless friends trust may yet be extended many years. And the hope seems not without promise, for Mr. Weber at 74 and his good wife at 72 are yet enjoying excellent health.

PIONEER SHOEMAKER.

Mr. Weber's first employment in Fort Wayne was in the old Mohr shoe establishment. Later he worked for Mr. Henderson, another early shoe man, and finally for Mr. Noll also a shoe merchant. Then Weber & McNulty embarked in business for themselves and the partnership existed a number of years. Mr. McNulty died some years ago. For many years Mr. Weber has been conducting a shop of his own at Lafayette and Montgomery streets, where he still is able to do a pretty fair day's work, and where he yet conducts the business with as much interest and care as in the younger days of his business life.

Mr. and Mrs. Weber were the parents of twelve children, but only six of them are living. The children are Edward Weber, of Columbus, Ohio; Val Weber, Henry Weber, Fred Weber and Mrs. Richard Brown, of this city. Mr. Weber has two brothers in New York—Fred and Theodore Weber, who, with the absent children, are expected to attend the golden wedding celebration tomorrow. None of Mrs. Weber's own family survive. She is the last of fourteen children. The late Mrs. Katherine Miller, of this city, was a sister.

AT ROBINSON PARK.

Robinson park theater will offer next week an exceptionally fine vaudeville bill. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins D. Fisher are one of the features and will present a one act play written by Mr. Ezra Kendall called "The Half Way House." In speaking of the act the following is what the Chicago Journal had to say during their engagement at the Masonic Temple last night: "The daintiest bit of the program is the Ezra Kendall sketch 'The Half Way House,' which is played by Mr. and Mrs. Perkins D. Fisher. An actress enters a way down east hotel and in the absence of the landlord has a chat with the man who takes care of the hotel. Kendall has connected a dialogue for the two such as only a man of his keen sense of fun could make up. Asked by the actress what the name of the hotel is, the old man says: 'Well we used to call it the Half Way House, but some New York drummer said it was the limit, so now we call it the limit.' The playlet comes to an end when the Marini cocktail, to which the actress has introduced the old man, get in their work and the Yankee comes in the limousine." Billy Single Clifford is also another feature. He is the famous Clifford, late of Clifford & Smith. Maude Hutch, it will be remembered, played the part several weeks ago and made a hit with the people. Barton and Mack, two black face comedians, will do a very neat turn which is sure to please. Escatel, the man with a hundred forms, and Anna Clara, America's favorite harpist, will also add to the amusement.

Tomorrow morning in St. Mary's church Father Ochtersheim will conduct at 7:30 o'clock a service approximately celebrating the golden wedding anniversary, and hundreds of friends of the aged couple will be present to honor them. Later in the day an elaborate dinner, with friends and relatives present to the number of fifty, will mark the home observance of the happy occasion.

SAFE IN THE OFFICE.

One of the minor hotels in town cannot hope to pick and choose too fastidiously as to its guests because of the low rate charged, and, so, tries to atone for promiscuity by doing all possible for the safeguarding of those who patronize it, says the Philadelphia Times. Thus, folk who feel timid about their money or jewelry when retiring are told by placards in every corridor and room: "Safe in the office."

WAS SOMETHING OF A FALL.

There is a practical joker in Chicago who deserves to be chased with the doctor in Mark Twain's "Linnecents Abroad." The doctor's conversation with the guide in relation to the mummy is hardly more amusing than this man's conversation with a guide in relation to Niagara Falls. He recently made his first trip to the falls and a guide that he hired was trying to impress him with their magnitude.

"Grand!" suggested the guide. "Great!" acquiesced the Chicagoan stolidly. "Magnificent!" persisted the guide, disappointed at the lack of enthusiasm.

"Finer than the bear trap dam in the drainage canal," admitted the Chicagoan.

The guide looked to see if he was joking, but there was never a smile. The Chicagoan seemed to be interested, but not at all impressed.

"Millions of gallons a minute," explained the guide.

"Few many in a day?" asked the Chicagoan.

"Oh, billions and billions," said the guide.

The Chicagoan looked across and down and up, as if gauging the flow, and then turned away disinterestedly.

"Runs all night, too, I suppose," he remarked nonchalantly.

The guide was dazed and he had not recovered when the Chicagoan left.—Brooklyn Eagle.

HIS SIGHT THREATENED.

"While picnicking last month my 11-year-old boy was poisoned by some weed or plant," says W. H. Dibble, of Sioux City, Ia. "He rubbed the poison off his hands into his eyes and for a while we were afraid he would lose his sight. Finally a neighbor recommended DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The first application helped him and in a few days he was as well as ever." For skin diseases, cuts, burns, scalds, wounds, insect bites, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is sure cure. Relieves piles at once. Beware of counterfeits. Meyer Bro. & Co.

Thus, folk who feel timid about their money or jewelry when retiring are told by placards in every corridor and room: "Safe in the office."

Not long ago, the night clerk was dozing over his desk about 2 a. m., and was suddenly startled by a deep, prolonged snore, followed by a snort; then another snore and another snort. He looked about him and found a middle-aged stranger, respectable in appearance, sound asleep on the floor behind the door, his clothes and gripsack beside him.

The aroused countryman looked around him for a minute and then explained: "You see, I'm just a bit afraid of fire; so, I took the tip on the sign about it being safe in the office and came down here to snooze."

TO MY FRIENDS.

It is with joy I tell you what Kodol did for me. I was troubled with my stomach for several months. Upon being advised to use Kodol, I did so, and words cannot tell the good it has done me. A neighbor had dyspepsia so that he had tried most everything. I told him to use Kodol. Words of gratitude have come to me from him because I recommended it.—Geo. W. Fry, Viola, Iowa. Health and strength of mind and body depend on the stomach and normal activity of the digestive organs. A NIGHT AT THE PLAY.

THE WEST BIG MINSTREL JUBILEE.

LEE.

The William H. West Big Minstrel Jubilee will appear at the attraction at the Temple next Wednesday evening. Among all the minstrel organizations in America none stand higher in the estimation of theatergoers than the West show, which has always presented high-class minstrelsy with refined and prize-worthy features. This season the late Mr. West was determined to eclipse all his previous efforts and with this end in view succeeded in organizing a company of distinct merit from both a musical and comedy standpoint. The first part setting is said to be one of the most costly and richest stage pictures ever shown on the minstrel stage, the scene representing a beautiful summer hotel in America's picturesque section, the great Rocky mountains, brilliantly illuminated with hundreds of electric lights, while the costumes are said to be very rich and in good taste. It was the aim of Mr. West's managers when he conceived his plans for this year to give the public a minstrel entertainment with comedy strongly in the foreground. With this end in view he has secured only laughing acts for his olio features, with the exception of one number. Of course the strong feature of minstrelsy with most people is singing. The West show has ever been noted in this respect. This season the vocal numbers comprise some very delightful

It requires two sixty foot baggage cars to hold the scenery and properties alone, two coaches or sleepers for the company and as it is impossible to travel by regular train schedule the organization is moved from point to point by special service. "Florodora" will be seen here on Sept. 5.

"A POOR RELATION."

An early attraction at the Temple will be Sol Smith Russell's great play, "A Poor Relation," which has not been seen here for some time. Mr. Horace Lewis, as Noah Vale, has achieved a perfect triumph during the past year in this part and a splendid production of this play may be looked forward to. The supporting company is made up largely of Mr. Russell's original company and all the original scenery, costumes and stage settings are carried.

"SANDY BOTTOM."

Hampton & Hopkins' magnificent production of "Sandy Bottom," that comes to the Temple Thursday next, like the "Old Homestead" and "Sag Harbor," appeals to the general public tastes. It deals naturally with life as it is among the sun-kissed hills of Arkansas, where the scenes are laid. There is no clap-net or artificial elements in the play. It is a mirror of human nature that is graphically pictured. Being a melodrama, of course there are exciting backlogs, which are sung by the very best vocalists that have ever been enlisted under the West banner, including Clement Stewart, the great English tenor, late of the Moore & Burgess Minstrel of London; Harry Sylvester, a young and handsome tenor, possessing a voice of remarkable cultivation; George Jones, a youthful baritone; E. W. Chipman, and several others of note. Billy Van is again this season the principal comedian with the company. Van is a very funny fellow and a prime favorite everywhere. His assistants in the fun making are John King, Tom Moore, Fred J. Huber and Frank Hammond, who undoubtedly comprise the best quartet of comedians ever seen with this organization. The olio comprises five acts, each of which is entitled to rank among the most prominent headliners of vaudeville. They include the Zarrow trio, comedy and trick cyclists, who will present an amusing bicycle sketch entitled, "A Night on the Board Walk;" McMahon and King, Ford Brothers, Swift and Huber, and the inimitable Billy Van.

SCENE IN "SANDY BOTTOM."

"FLORODORA."

There have been so many complimentary things said of the production of "Florodora" and so general has been the satisfaction evidenced by this presentation, that at this late day it would seem almost superfluous to add anything in praise of that which has been conceded to be the premier minstrel comedy of the generation. No musical play has ever been sent on tour with greater strength or cast, more beautiful stage surroundings or more gorgeous display of artistic costuming, than that seen in connection with this piece, while numerically it is one of the largest in the country, numbering as it does nearly 100 people. In transporting this great aggregation

TERROR OF THE SIOUX

Fred Hans' Influence Over Rosebud Indians—Only Man Sitting Bull Was Afraid Of.

"We-Chach-Pe Wan-Gela (One Star, literally, Lone Star) comes tomorrow. And as the news passed around every Sioux on the Rosebud Agency ceased grumbling and the little crowds of discontented warriors melted away, says a letter from the Rosebud Indian Agency, S. D. On May 1 of this year the government ceased to issue rations to aboriginal Indians on the Rosebud reservation, but instead furnishes the Indians with work, building roads, bridges, etc., and pays them $1.25 per day for their labor. This caused grumbling and discontent among a large number of the Indians, who did not relish the idea of working. There was no danger of an outbreak, but the authorities thought it worth while to let the Indians know they were in earnest.

And so, instead of sending to the military post for a battalion of blue-coats, they sent to Omaha for Fred M. Hans, known to every tribe of western Indians as "Lone Star," the best known Indian fighter and man of nerve in the west. The man who, at 18 years of age, was Sheridan's chief of scouts and who acted in the same capacity for Miles, Crook and other commanders and holds commendatory letters from them all.

The Rosebud Sioux Indians knew the quiet man who was coming the next day. Among the old men he was remembered as the only man of whom Sitting Bull was ever afraid; the man who half-persuaded, half-forced that wily old chieftain to come down from his retreat in Canada and surrender to the authorities. They also knew him as the friend of Chief Gall, leader in the field of the Sioux when Custer and his men were massacred. The young men well remembered the day back in 1890, at the battle of Wounded Knee, the last battle of the red men against the whites, when this slight man stood forward, pistol in either hand, and fought Big Foot's entire band until the soldiers arrived. True, that was for only a few minutes, but in those terrible few minutes nine of their number were killed and one mortally wounded. And Lone Star only fired ten shots.

So, the day following the news that We-Chach-Pe Wan-Gela would arrive, the Indians were all at the work assigned them. Lone Star came, rode over the reservation for a few hours, entered into conversation with many of the braves, most of whom he knew personally, and then went back to the city. The mere fact that he was near or had been in their midst was enough. There has been no further trouble and no revolts against the superintendent and work.

This quiet man with the cold, gray eyes did not acquire such control over the red man in a year nor by soft means. During the years of fighting from 1875 to 1888 Hans, or Lone Star, was continually in the saddle, scouting and fighting in the employ of the government. The Indians knew him as a friend when they themselves were friendly; but as their most deadly foe at other times. Dearly, because their equal in cunning and woodcraft, and their superior in endurance and skill with pistols. (Lone Star never used a rifle during his twenty years of Indian warfare). It was the fear in which he was held that caused him to be sent into South Dakota during the fall of 1890, when the "Messiah" craze and "ghost dancing" were at their height. For the same reason and at the same time he was commissioned to capture Sitting Bull, and was the last white man to see that old chief alive, the two having a talk of several hours' duration the day previous to the killing of Sitting Bull by the Indian police.

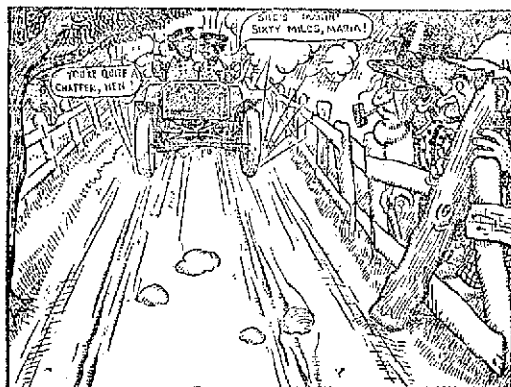

Two weeks after that tragic event, on December 14, 1890, the day previous to the battle of Wounded Knee, Hans and the redoubtable Little Bat, chief of the Indian police, were sent after Big Foot and his band, who had left the reservation and were threatening an outbreak. These two daring spirits went among the hostiles and secured their consent to return to the agency. The Indians were afraid of being killed but were promised immunity for past deeds. Three of the band, however, led by the medicine man, conspired fighting to the death and swore they would never surrender. The band started for the reservation and camped for the night on Wounded Knee creek, several miles from the camp of the soldiers.

The following morning Hans went over to the troops who were under command of Gen. Forsythe, and told that officer that a fight would surely occur unless the medicine man and his two supporters were arrested before troops came up. Forsythe did not think so, and advanced with the regulars. Capt. Wallace, however, agreed with Lone Star, and with the scout and Little Bat, rode ahead of the troops and went up to the party of Indians, to be near and to pacify the medicine man in event trouble came on.

Suddenly a shrill, weird chant

Mrs. Peck—Let her whip a little, Henry. Mr. Peck—All right, Maria.

Uncle Zenas—These here automobiles is a danger to life an' limb! Silas Shagbark—Yep, an' here goes——the limb!

Uncle Zenas—This'll teach these here city dandriffs to respect the safety of honest country people!

arose from the medicine man. The two followers joined in. "Look out!" yelled Hans, who knew that some one's death was intended. "That's the death song," Hans, from his association with the Sioux, could speak the language like a native, and understood the meaning of the death song. From their positions neither Lone Star nor Little Bat could fire. Capt. Wallace did not understand the deadly danger in which he stood, and advanced to meet the singing trio. He held out his hand to the chief medicine man. The Indian grasped it with his left hand, and like a flash of lightning, drew a tomahawk from beneath his blanket with his right. With a mighty blow he split the head of the brave captain through to the neck. Little Bat put a bullet through the medicine man's heart and started on a run for the soldiers. This was the signal for a fierce battle to begin. The hostiles attempted to head off Little Bat and kill him; but as fast as an Indian would run in front of the fleeing man, Hans would shoot. Hans killed nine Indians in less than a few minutes, and Little Bat escaped without a scratch.

The soldiers were so surprised at the lightning course of events that they had taken no action up to this time. But the action lasted only a moment. The commanding officer ordered "fire," and the deadly work began. There were about 450 Indians in the band, and these immediately took refuge in a ravine from whence the soldiers could not drive them.

In the meantime Gen. Forsythe wrote an order for re-enforcements and handed it to Lone Star with instructions to make for the agency, fourteen miles away. The scout made the ride in thirty-five minutes, and Gen. Henry started his troops back without giving them time to place saddles on their horses. Hans rode the same horse back to the battle, and arrived there before the troops. They reached the scene one hour and twenty-eight minutes after Forsythe wrote the order, Hans covering twenty-eight miles in that time. For this and the daring work in saving Little Bat the government gave Hans a handsome medal.

The re-enforcements came up, the Gatling gun was trained up the ravine in which the Indians had taken refuge, and dozens of the redskins were killed. The ravine has since been known as "Bloody Gulch."

COSTLY OPERA GLASSES.

Queen Alexandra owns one of the most costly pairs of opera glasses in the world. They were specially made for her in Vienna. The barrels are of platinum, and set with diamonds, sapphires and rubies. Various estimates have been made as to their probable worth. An expert in such matters fixes their value at $25,000. They will, however, never come into the market. If they did, they would certainly bring far more than their mere intrinsic value. The Empress Eugenie was once robbed of a historical pair of opera glasses in Paris. Curiously enough, in spite of the keenest search, they were never heard of again. The barrels were made of the richest pearls, set on a framework of wrought gold. With their historical connections this pair of opera glasses must have been worth many thousands of dollars.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Something Extraordinary.

Bird Island, Minn.
Since Sept., 1890, our daughter had spells of unconsciousness, sometimes for 3 times a day and sometimes as high as 10 or 12 times. She was then very cross and irritable, lost her red cheeks, became thin in flesh, and her mind gradually failed. An eminent specialist treated her nearly one year without any effect. Instead of improving, she became worse, then we tried Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic. In a few weeks she showed improvement and also March, 1893, has not had a symptom of the disease, is now in good health and flesh, and completely herself again. There is something extraordinary about Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic to effect such a wonderful cure of such a tedious disease.

A MESSAGE BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER.

THE TWO GREAT HIGHWAYS

One Leads to Life, the Other Ends in Destruction—Bible the Guide

Book, Christ the Leader.

(Copyright, 1902.)

Text: Enter ye in at the Strait Gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.—Matt. 7:13, 14.

The Figure.—In this text Christ has given us a figure which easily and clearly illustrates the thought that the soul in this life is moving on towards a destiny which reaches beyond time into eternity. Two gateways and two roads are mentioned, each with its destination definitely fixed; one ending in the blackness of the bottomless pit and the other reaching the eternal glories of Heaven, where the soul is clothed upon with immortality. One road is crowded with the many who press through the Wide Gate; the other echoes with the footsteps of the few who have sought and found the Strait Gate and entered in thereat. A command sounds forth in the hearing of all travelers entering these two ways which is authoritative and positive. God meets every soul and cries: "Enter ye in at the Strait Gate!" The many are so engrossed in chasing the butterfly of worldly gain and pleasure which flits just before them that they fail to hear and heed. The few stop to listen and then begin to seek; and in fulfillment of the Divine promise, "he that seeketh findeth," the flitting wicket gate of Himmah's Pilgrimage is seen to lie just ahead, and a knock at the door admits to the Narrow Way as it did to that earnest traveler whose journeyings we have followed with such absorbed interest.

"Broad is the road that leads to death, and thousands walk together there; but Wisdom shows a narrow path. With here and there a traveler."

"Dignity itself and take thy cross." Is the Redeemer's great command. All men must count their gold but deers; if they would gain the Heavenly land.

"The Two Ways."—In the day in which the words of our text were spoken the roads or highways were the main arteries of communication and trade between cities and there was generally but one road leading from a point to point, so that our Lord used an illustration which would appeal forcibly to his hearers. In this day, when the country is covered with its network of railroads, and many excellent roadways lead from city to city, the figure has lost much of its meaning. It is hard to find the city of any considerable size which is not reached by two or more roads or railroads, but in the days of our Lord there was the one road between cities over which the travel and commerce passed. Furthermore, the cities of those days were walled and gateways opened out upon the highway, and through these gateways all must pass who sought to travel by that road.

Rome had built her highways broad and long from the large cities of the then known world back to the home of the Caesars and the center of the world's power. While the commercial life of the world was flowing over these splendid highways and the many were passing to and fro bent on the worldly ambitions and aims, with Rome as the center, the devout Jew's thought and hope were centered in Jerusalem, and the narrow, rugged pathways of Palestine were traveled by the pilgrims as they journeyed toward it to keep the feast days and worship the true God. May it not have been that the thought of the two ways first came to Jesus as he journeyed towards Jerusalem when he was 12 years of age, and probably for the first time saw and crossed the great roadway built by Rome from Damascus in the south through Palestine? Here was Rome and her great highways on the one hand and Jerusalem and the narrow rugged road which led over the brow of Mount Olivet and on into the city to the temple gate on the other. There is a forcible contrast here which would have readily suggested itself to those who listened to our Lord as he spoke these words which would not at first occur to us.

A Wide Gate and a Broad Way characterize the road which leads to destruction, and a Strait Gate and a Narrow Way the road which leads to life. Why is it that man's way should be on such a grand scale and appear so attractive, and God's way so limited and the Strait Gate there so hard to find? The Broad Way spreads out into all the world and takes in everything and ends in destruction. The Narrow Way leads through the world to a definite point where the soul drinks in life eternal and finds full scope for its powers. The Broad Road yields a present reward at the sacrifice of the eternal welfare of the soul. The Narrow Road leads from the allurements of the world, past the pitfalls and snares of the Devil, to the sure reward of the Father's house. The Broad Road has a Wide Gate and expanding roadbed, because the Devil is the architect and he builds for time and not eternity, and seeks to give the souls of his followers all that they will ever get. The Narrow Way has a Strait Gate and contracted roadway, because this life is but a pilgrimage and the home of the soul is in Heaven.

The Two Gates.—They are alike in that they both stand at the beginning of the highways and admit the traveler to the road he seeks to travel. But the one is wide and easily entered. The other is strait and is only found by seeking. One stands for the will of man. The other represents the will of God. The Wide Gate is attractive and gives promise beyond all that the heart could desire or long after. In gilded letters over the archway is inscribed the word SELF, and underneath is the declaration that you can take anything with you into the Broad Road which you desire, that you can do anything you wish while in the way, and that you can find any religion to suit your fancy except the religion of the Strait Gate and Narrow Way. The Strait Gate is solid and massive and plain. It stands as a glorious triumph of the ages, and the one word "GOD" blazes forth from the keystone. And, in contrast to the declaration in the stones of the Wide Gate that those entering could take anything with them which they wished, it is specifically stated at the entrance to the Strait Gate that only those who will be admitted who leave self behind and accept Christ as the new Leader.

The Guide Books.—Those which are found at the entrance to the Broad Way are almost innumerable. They are being turned out as rapidly as man can give advice and the printing press can do the printing. They all pretend to give explicit directions for the finding of success and happiness and honor and riches along the Broad Road. At the entrance to the Narrow Way the Word of God is offered to the traveler, that it may become a "lamp unto the feet and a light unto the path" which lies ahead. It makes the way plain, and sets one right when he wanders into bypaths, which for a time look similar to the Narrow Way, but soon lead to difficulty and darkness and despair. It puts a song in the month as one journeys along the path, and inspires hope in the heart as to the certain blessing to which the Narrow Way leads. This Guide Book gives abundant biography of those who have traveled the way before. Of Noah, who spent 100 years in carrying out the one task the Lord had given him to do in building the Ark. Of Abraham, whom the Lord led out from the land of his fathers to a land which he promised to give to him as an inheritance. Of Isaac, and Jacob, and Moses, and Joshua, of Samuel, and David and hosts of others who lived before Christ came in the flesh. Of Christ Himself, who declared that he "was the Way, the Truth and the Life," who overcame Satan and filled up many a pitfall in the way that we might follow after him in safety.

This Guide Book also tells of those who have chosen the Broad Way and have perished miserably by the way-side. Of the people before the flood who did not listen to the word of Noah but chose their own way. Of the proud and willful at the tower of Babel. Of Solomon and Gomorrah; of the Pharisees; of the heathen nations which withstood the onward march of God's chosen people; of Nabab and Abihu, who burnt strange fire before the Lord and were consumed; of those who through unbelief refused to enter into the promised land and perished in the wilderness; of the disobedient and faithless kings of Israel, beginning with King Saul, who, defeated in battle, fell upon his own sword, and ending with Zedekiah who was the last king of Judah before the final captivity; of the heathen kings who were punished and destroyed; of wicked Herod and his desire to kill the babe Jesus; of Judas, who pretended to be walking the Narrow Way and was on the Broad Road to destruction as he planned to betray the Christ; of the rulers of the Jews, the Scribes and Pharisees; of Pilate and Herod, and the Roman soldiers and the mocking throng which surrounded the cross. Oh, what a long list! Just take your Bible and make two lists, one of those who walked the Narrow Way and the other of those who sought the Wide Gate and Broad Road, and you will see that Scripture bears out Christ in his statement that the many are found in the way which leadeth to destruction, while the few pass through the Strait Gate into the Narrow Way which leadeth unto life.

Yes, and the true Guide Book is a faithful record, because it also tells of the failures of those who have traveled the Narrow Way. It tells how Noah got drunk; how Moses lost his patience and took glory to himself which belonged to God, when he brought water out of the rock for the complaining people; how David, a man after God's own heart, committed adultery and murder; how Peter denied his Lord, and Paul and Barnabas had a contention which was so sharp that they parted asunder. It tells of the human failures in order that we, traveling the same way, may be warned and helped thereby.

Entering the Narrow Way.—It is so easy to enter the Broad Way with its Wide Gate that it is not necessary to tell how people drift, or step into it, but entering the Narrow Way is a different matter, and requires some seeking in order to find the Strait Gate through which one must pass to gain the highway. It is not always easy to strike the right road. I had occasion the other day to go to an outlying town, and as I supposed started upon the right road. Hailing a traveler passing in the other direction I asked if I was on the right road to Holmesville. "You are," he said, and on I sped, over the easy and broad road, which descended before me. Being anxious to make doubly sure that I was on the right road, a mile or so farther on I accosted an elderly man who, much to my dismay, informed me that I was all wrong and that the road to Holmesville lay back the other way, up a hill and over a difficult way. "Are you sure?" I asked, telling him that a considerable ways back I had passed a man who told me I was going all right. "Well," said the old man before me, "I ought to know. I used to live near Holmesville and have been over the road hundreds of times." He then proceeded to give me instructions and describe landmarks along the way which I afterwards found were correct and made the way perfectly certain before me. Roads look a good deal alike sometimes, and it is hard to strike the right one unless we secure directions from a reliable guide—one who has been over the road we are traveling and knows to what point it leads. We have a Guide Book furnished us, but we need a Leader. The day I got on the wrong road to Holmesville I had my guide book with me, but I found I needed some one who knew the way to help me use it. So it is with the one traveling the Narrow Way. Not only does he need a Guide Book but a Leader. In order to enter the Narrow Way one has to seek for the Strait Gate. It is easy to get on one of the many paths of the Broad Way and, imagine one is going safely on the Narrow Way. To really get on the Narrow Way one has to pass through the Strait Gate, and to do this one must needs meet the great Leader, Christ, who will assure the heart that it is on the right road and point out the way, every inch of which He has been over.

Chance never takes one through the Strait Gate into the Narrow Way. When one is about to start upon a journey, the road is selected and the time of the starting of the train learned. It is not mere chance that takes you to the right depot and places you aboard the train going to the point you wish to reach. With definite purpose you lay all your plans and so successfully reach the destination desired. So it is with one who travels the Narrow Way. The soul believes the declaration of the Guide Book that it is the only road which reaches the desired haven of eternal life. Thought is then taken how to enter the right road, and the Guide Book again faithfully directs the soul to the Strait Gate. As one cannot travel over a railroad without ticket or pass, so one seeking to pass over the Narrow Way must obtain properly accredited credentials. These consist of a full and free pass signed with the precious blood of Jesus Christ and certified to by God the Father. To pass through the Strait Gate and obtain one of these precious passes, which insures for one a safe journey and certainty of eternal life, one must come as a penitent and have the travel-stained garments of sin removed and be clothed upon with the righteousness of Jesus Christ. For our Guide Book declares that "all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags," and that only the blood of Jesus Christ is efficacious to cleanse from all sin. In addition to this, the human will must be surrendered and the Divine will of God accepted as the ruling factor in the life.

The Hypothesis.—God wants to control entirely in the life of the one who has entered the Strait Gate and started upon the Narrow Way. But very few yield perfect obedience to the will of God, and as a result the soul gets off into the many bypaths which are met with in the way. These bypaths seem at first to parallel the Narrow Way and appear pleasant to travel. One feels free and the road smoother sometimes when seeking one's own will, not exactly following Christ Jesus, the Leader, over the hard and rougher portions of the Narrow Way. But the smooth and pleasant bypath which seems to skirt the difficult places in the road is but a snare, and before long leads the soul into darkness and Doubting Castle. Then it is hard work to get back to the Narrow Way again. But our Guide Book comes to our relief, and we read: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

Sometimes the Broad Way winds its way as near to the Narrow Way as it can, and by its worldly attractions tries to lure the soul from the right path. All kinds of assurances are given that the soul can enjoy the fruits of sin for a season and get back upon the right road at last. But our Guide Book declares that "he that putteth his hand to the plow and looketh back is not fit for the Kingdom of Heaven." And on the other hand, we hear Jesus say: "Those that 'Thou givest me I have kept, and none of them is lost.' If we really belong to Him He follows us into the bypaths of sin, and when we have come to ourselves, as did the prodigal son, He leads us back to the Narrow Way. Dear friend, have you wandered from the Narrow Way in which you started months or years ago? Have business cares or domestic trials taken you from your Leader's side? Have self-indulgence and love of ease caused you to stop by the wayside while your Saviour went on? Have worldly attractions and pleasures drawn you into their mad whirl? Have the demands of society been placed before and above the call of your Lord to serve Him? While you are wandering from the Narrow Way your Saviour stands waiting to clasp the lost sheep to His bosom and carry it back to the path of safety and righteousness.

The Narrow Way is the only safe and happy and prosperous way. The Broad Road leadeth to destruction, but the Narrow Way to life everlasting. "When we walk with the Lord in the light of His Word, What a glory He shows on our way! While we do His good will, He abides with us still, And with all who will trust and obey."

"Then in fellowship sweet We will sit at His feet, Or we'll walk by His side in the way, What He says we will do, Where He leads we will go, Never fearfully trust and obey."

Lesson in the International Series for August 24, 1902—Report of the Spies.

THE LESSON TEXT.
(Numbers 13:25-14:14.)

25. And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the wilderness of Paran, to Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and showed them the fruit of the land.

27. And they told him, and said: We came unto the land which thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it.

28. Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great; and moreover we saw the children of Anak there.

29. The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south; and the Hittites, and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30. And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said: Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31. But the men that went up with him said: We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we.

32. And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched out, unto the children of Israel, saying: The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are men of great stature.

33. And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants; and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.

1. And all the congregation lifted up their voice, and cried; and the people wept that night.

2. And all the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron; and the whole congregation said unto them: Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or would God that we had died in this wilderness!

3. And wherewith hath the Lord brought us into this land, to fall by the sword? our wives and our children should be a prey? were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

4. And they said one to another: Let us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Murmuring.—The particular trouble now was the lack of variety in food. The manna did not satisfy the people. The plague (11:33) was probably a natural consequence of overeating unaccustomed food. God is generally able to let the law of cause and effect administer the punishment his children need.

The Spies Sent Out.—In Deut. 1:22, the sending of the spies is said to be in answer to a petition of the people. The men chosen, according to Jehovah's direction, were the best and most representative that could be selected. Each tribe had one of its leaders among the spies. The commission given the men was clear. The observations they were to make included the "day of the land," the offensive and defensive abilities of the people, and the desirability of the country for a home. Verse 21 shows that they did their work very thoroughly; for they journeyed to the northernmost limit of the land instead of stopping at Hebron or Bethel. The Anak tribes appear to have been redoubtable warriors of great stature, but they really made very little trouble when Israel actually entered the land.

The Spies' Report.—There have been many tragedies in the national life of the Hebrews. The failure at Kadesh-barnea is one of the first and one of the greatest. Through all these long and weary months since leaving Egypt the Israelites had but one thought—rest and home in the promised land. Now they had come to the threshold. Their hope was high. At last the land of their national dream, and of Jehovah's promise, was almost in sight. They lay down only for the report of the spies. The men returned, and hope turned to despair, simply because there were obstacles to be overcome. The spies reported that (1) the land "flowed with milk and honey," but (2) there were giants there. The ten spies proved that they were still cowardly slaves at heart by emphasizing only the latter.

In studying the lesson, note (1) the different ways of meeting obstacles; (2) that God helps those who help themselves. Israel wanted the promised land, but was not willing to win it. (3) The ten spies had no faith in God, and they were "as grasshoppers" in their own sight. The people who have faith in God and "faith in themselves are the ones who overcome 'giants.' (4) From Kadesh-barnea there were just two ways open—forward into the promised land and backward into the wilderness. Every life has its Kadesh-barnea. A great cause may come to Kadesh, fall, turn back into the wilderness for 40 years, and come again; but a soul seldom sees Kadesh-barnea but once. The Hebrews who failed died before the second chance came.

The Rebellion.—Read 14:39-45. It is the old, old story of hopelessly trying to get back a lost opportunity.

A PHYSICIAN HEALED.

Dr. Geo. Ewing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky., for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Foley's Kidney Cure: "For years I had been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostate gland. I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced to use Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles. I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success." Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

COMRADES OF THE QUIET HOUR

The Comrades of the Quiet Hour consist of all persons that are willing to sign the following covenant: "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will make it the rule of my life to set apart at least fifteen minutes every day, if possible in the morning, for quiet meditation and direct communion with God." Covenant cards will be furnished free to all that will send their names, addressing Rev. Francis E. Clark, Tremont Temple, Boston. A stamp should be sent for the return of the card. Literature for use in extending the movement is also furnished free.

Our motto: "O satisfy us in the morning with Thy mercy." Ps. 100:14, R. V.

This week we are glad to report 30,487 Comrades of the Quiet Hour.

VARIOUS GOOD THINGS

A schoolhouse Endeavor society of fifty-two former boys and girls, five miles from Fort Scott, Kan., connected with the Dunkard church, is doing remarkable work. It has eleven Tenth Legionaries. One member supports an orphan in China. You don't have to have a stone church, in a town on three or four trunk lines of railroad, to have the true spirit of triumphant Endeavor.

A society that trains the children in Bible study and giving synopses of the pastor's sermons, that helps build churches at home and supports two scholarships in Mexico, and that aids in prison work and every good cause, ought to be held up as a beacon light. Name it? The Hopkinsville, Ky., Cumberland Presbyterian Endeavor society.

Some very interesting facts that will be welcome to Miss Frances R. Patterson's many friends are given in a report of the Tienstin station, China, where Miss Patterson is working. She says that the girls in the school are very faithful in their Christian Endeavor pledge. One of them, whose home was burned by the boxers because her father would not deny Christ, said, "Don't cry; we have a heavenly home."

The Fort Wayne district convention will be held Nov. 27th to 29th. The press and advertising committees have been appointed and are at work.

Keep the junior societies going. The Christian Endeavor Union will have a junior superintendent to give help and suggestions to societies already organized, also helping to organize new societies.

The state paper will be issued about Sept. 1, 1902, known as the "Indiana Endeavorer." Its value depends upon the support received throughout the state by cash society. It is to be an eight-page monthly, 25 cents per year, 20 cents in clubs of five or over. It is to be published by Edward W. Clark, of Indianapolis, a practical newspaper man, whose business talents are consecrated to the cause of Christ.

It's Pretty Hard

For any Fort Wayne woman to attend to household duties with the aches and pains of a bad back. A woman's back wasn't made to ache and it won't if the kidneys are well. Most backache pains, most nervous headaches and other bodily troubles of womanhood come from sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cure every form of kidney ills; cure all urinary troubles, diabetes, down to the first stages of Bright's disease. They are endorsed by Fort Wayne people.

Mrs. A. S. Booth, who lives at 70 Barr street, says: "I had kidney trouble ever since I can remember and a backache seemed to be as much a part of me as my hands or feet. I had a hemorrhage of the kidneys, which I thought was going to end my life. I became so nervous that I could not control myself and I had great difficulty in remembering things. One day a lady friend of mine was going to get Doan's Kidney Pills and I thought I would also try them, so I got a box at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store. I began taking them and continued the treatment, with the result that I steadily gained in health from the commencement until I was better than I had been in a long time."

HISTORY OF EMIR ISSUE

Rome, Aug. 22.—The Vatican authorities have completed the collection of documents referring to the Philippines question for the use of the apostolic delegate at Manila and it is conjectured that his appointment is imminent. A complete history of the negotiations on the subject of the friars' lands is given, including a summary of the voluminous report of Mgr. Chapelle, the former papal legate in the Philippines, and the full text of the notes exchanged between Governor Taft and the Vatican. These are supplemented by precise instructions regarding which secrecy is maintained, though Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, expresses the hope that the instructions are so framed as to enable the delegate to fulfill the pope's promise to Governor Taft, namely, to reach a solution satisfactory to both parties.
